J. Smith.—I am assuming the bird is indoors; if not, bring it in at once, and keep it in the lightest and most airy part of your living room and don't turn it out again till spring. Canary, white and spray millet seed, with a piece of plain biscuit (dry) to nibble at, also a small piece of sweet apple daily and clean cuttlefish continually in the cage will suffice for diet. Give two drops of Dinneford's Magnesia direct to the mouth by means of a quill, repeat this every other day till the bowels are moving freely and keep them so, but if the voidings become watery-loose, you must lengthen the period between the doses, or cease them for a time. In conjunction with above give the following on the days you are not giving the magnesia ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills and glycerine in equal parts—take a small quantity of the mixture, dilute with an equal bulk of water, and give 5 drops twice a day by means of a quill direct to the mouth. The bird must be kept out of reach of draught. If the bird dies, as is probable, I should advise sending body for post mortem. In future with such queries give diet and full details of treatment, etc.

A Feather Puller.

J. T. Holmes.—If you refer to rules you will see you were not entitled to a reply by post, but under the special circumstances am sending you one. A feather puller of 12 months' duration, apparently well, eating heartily and talking as usual, rather points to the habit being a vice, and in such case it is practically incurable. Confine its diet to seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts (shelled walnuts or hazel nuts are best) and plain biscuits. Put a pinch of grit daily among its seed mixture. Keep a clean piece of cuttlebone in the cage and supply piece of rotten wood (non-splintering willow is best), empty cotton reels, etc., to keep it occupied. A short piece of light steel chain hanging from the top of cage makes a good plaything for many Parrots. Give in lieu of the ordinary drinking water every fourth day a mixture of Dinneford's Magnesia and water in equal parts, so long as the voidings are not watery-loose, and on the other days well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. Anoint the bare parts with a thin decoction of bitter aloes, and spray the plumage twice weekly with a saturated solution of quassia, and if you suspect parasites rub pyrethrum powder into the plumage till they are eradicated. The cage also should be scaled out, every part of it several times, till you are assured you have got rid of the pests. The treatment must be persevered with as any improvement will of necessity be slow.

Amazon Losing Its Feathers.

C. A. Cox.—Some of the feathers sent have come out in the ordinary course of the moult, others show signs of having been bitten off and pulled out. Keep the bird warm, but in some light and airy position out of the reach of draught. Keep the bowels moving freely by giving every fourth day a mixture of Dinneford's Magnesia and water in equal parts, in lieu of the ordinary drinking water; on other days continue to give the chemical food. Diet as under: Seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, boiled maize and plain biscuits, and occasionally a piece of dry potato. Give the following seed mixture: Two parts each canary and white millet seeds and one part each oats, hemp, maize, paddy rice, and sunflower seed. I should give a little of the boiled maize daily, say about a tablespoonful when boiled boil till soft, then drain away and dry up all superfluous moisture—this must be prepared fresh daily as it soon turns sour. Do not give tea, coffee or milk sops, table scraps, nor any kind of animal food whatever. Anoint the bare parts with a thin solution of bitter aloes, and spray the plumage twice weekly with a saturated solution of quassia. If you have occasion to report progress, please give full details as to how the bird has been fed and treated during the past twelve months, it will help me to assist you. It would also be well to give the bird a few playthings, such as pieces of non-splintering wood (willow is good), empty cotton reels, and hang a short piece of light steel chain from the top of its cage.

About Budgerigars.

M.H.O.—Budgerigars are as hard as the proverbial nails, and a warm, moist atmosphere would keep them in a more or less continuous moult and enervated condition, so that they would take a chill from the slightest contact with cold air and "shuffle off" at once; again, birds out of tone fall a prey to many minor complaints which, when in health, they would shake off without difficulty. Budgerigars are better out of doors or in a cold, dry room, but, of course, yours must not go out again till spring. Gradually harden them off and get them into a cold, dry room as soon as possible. Send me their history while in your possession, and I will try and help you further. Continue the chemical food and give an occasional dose of Dinneford's magnesia.

Cactus Conures.

E. G. Toby.—All Parrakeets are long lived once they are established, if rationally treated. We do not care to give value, they are so irregular on the market that dealers get almost their own prices for them unless a quantity arrives, which happens occasionally. Yes, you correctly describe their demeanour. Give every fourth day in lieu of the drinking-water, Dinneford's Magnesia and water in equal parts, but if the vuidings become watery-loose you must lengthen the period between the doses or stop them entirely for a bit. On the other days well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. If the bird uses the metal ring continuously, remove it and leave only the wood perch for roosting on. Diet: Seed, principally canary and white millet; a small portion of a mixture of oats, paddy rice, hemp, and sunflower seed may also be given, also ripe fruit and a little green food, with, of course, grit, cuttlebone and water. If there are parasites you must scald out the cage and utensils at intervals of a few days till you have got rid of the pests (a gill of paraffin and sufficient soft soap to make the water soapy will be a help), and you must either treat the bird with a saturated solution of quassia or dust with insect powder till the pests are got rid of.

Green Amazon (Fisete): (1) Many Amazons are now moulting. (2) Supply a liberal diet, keep the bowels moving freely with an occasional dose of Dinneford's Magnesia, and put it on a course of Parrish's Chemical Food. (3) If the bird does not bathe, spray with tepid water twice weekly, but see that it does not take a chill while drying. (4) Seed mixture: Two parts each canary and white millet, and one part each oats, maize, paddy rice, hemp and sunflower seeds, the whole to be well mixed to form the staple dietary. In addition, supply ripe fruit, plain biscuit, nuts, and a little dry potato, with, of course, grit, cuttlebone, and water. If the bald place spreads anoint it with Spratt's "Pennakura."

Amazon Parrot with eye trouble (Am, Parrot): You must send me a little more information. Is there any open wound, that is, is the part entirely healed where the operation took place? Is there any discharge of any kind? It is very difficult attempting to advise after a vet's treatment, but, at any rate, foment with tepid water and keep the place well cleansed, rubbing as dry as possible with a piece of clean linen on each occasion. Keep the bird strictly out of draught and feed and treat with magnesia and chemical food as advised to "Fisete" in this issue. On receipt of further information will try and assist you further. The loss of sight in one eye will not affect the bird's well being or cheeriness, providing the trouble has been permanently removed and the place properly tented.

Back-faced Lovebirds (Black-Cheek): (1) Yes, but with Lovebirds and Parrakeets it is rather risky for a number of young and adult pairs to mingle together promiscuously—there are sure to be some tragedies—but you have plenty of room and these should not be numerous. (2) The outward sexual distinctions are not definitely known yet, but it appears to be definitely settled that the iris of the eye is lighter in male than in the female—this appears to be fairly constant, but the distinction only applies to adults; sex distinctions of young birds, if any, not yet ascertained. (3) Canary seed, white and spray millet, green food and ripe fruit. When they can get sufficient the young are almost entirely reared upon spray millet.

Avadavats and Java Sparrows (J.R.B.).—(1) Both cock and hen are very similar in the winter, but in the summer the cock becomes more or less fiery scarlet or coppery-red, thickly spotted with white. The hen retains her brown garment all the year round. (2) They have done so on the Continent, and there is no reason why they should not do so here; supply them with a cocoanut shell nest and a little hay and moss in the breeding season, and do not let your curiosity run riot. (3) Zebra Finches, Cutthroats, White Java Sparrows, Bengalese and Long-tailed Grass Finches. (4) Yes, but these are not free breeders, while the White are. (5) Yes, and a free breeding strain of Greys is the usual result.

Budgerigars, etc. (Amateur).—You ought not to keep above a couple of dozen at the very most, at any time, in your aviary, or it will be overcrowded. Finches and Budgerigars, though dwelling together in amity for a time, do not permanently do so, and sooner or later would maim or murder the Finch-like birds. A good selection would be Green Budgies, Yellow Budgies, Blue-winged Lovebirds, and Cockatiels, and you could put in a cock Red-crested Cardinal, which would give you a pleasing array of colour. Cockatiels you could also keep, but these would lessen numbers, as you must give them the space of six Budgies. But you could keep the four pairs and the odd Cardinal safely; but young birds must be got rid of as they are able to feed themselves.

Blue-winged Lovebirds ("Aviarist").—(1) Yes, but very infrequently. Use a husk or log (large size), and supply leaves, or, better, a living branch for them to strip the leaves off; also pieces of thin bark and small twigs—they will line the husk or log with these, hence it must be a roomy one. (2) They will agree with Budgies and Cockatiels, and thrive on the same treatment. (3) The Passerine Parrakeet (their correct name) is often sold as low as 3s. 6d. per pair, but losses are numerous among newly-imported specimens, and an acclimatised pair at from 10s. to 15s. is the cheapest, and gives most satisfaction. Colouring: Green cock has flights and rump bright blue. (4) I always leave mine to follow their own "sweet will," and I never have losses from egg-binding—though young sometimes die—you can only stop them by separating the sexes.

Birds for Aviary Cage (Peckhamite): Unless you give the cage up to a single pair your prospects of breeding will be small indeed. Either of the following would be suitable: Zebra Finches (4/6), White Java Sparrows (10/6), Long-tailed Green Finches (10/- to 15/-), Rufous-tailed Grassfinches (10/- to 12/6). While, if you have a mixture and take your chance of breeding, the following are all beautiful and not costly: Pair each of Zebra Finches, Golden-breasted Waxbills, Avadavats, Green Avadavats, St. Helena and Orange checked Waxbills (all from 8/6 to 7/6). The figures in parenthesis are average price per pair. "Foreign Birds for Beginners" would help you; 1/1 post free from our Manager. So long as these birds get light and air without draught and a not too changeable temperature they will do well once they are established.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by G. E. Weston.

In a Birdroom (G.G.).—I do not think you are feeding quite correctly, as lime, maw, and gold of pleasure are seeds which should be given occasionally only, and not as a regular thing. The other seeds are all right. I certainly do not think a temperature of 45 degrees is too low for Canaries. Your birds should do quite well, have a real good time, in fact, in such a room as you describe. If you think any are ailing, they should be caught and caged by themselves (and, of course, suitably treated).

Ailing Linnet Mule (W. J.).—I certainly think you might try a course of a good tonic medicine with advantage. Get an ounce of compound syrup of hypophosphates, B.P., from a chemist, and stir 2 drops in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water for 8 or 10 days. It is very difficult to advise without seeing the bird. Couldn't you get some local fancier or dealer to examine it? The leg may have been wrenched in the wires, etc., a not at all uncommon happening, and the "panting" be due to this accident.

The Redpoll-Canary Mule (E. Clift).—I advise you to get that part of Mr. Houlton's book on Hybrids which contains a coloured plate of this bird; then you will be able to compare your own specimen with this. The Redpoll-Canary is, of course, plain in col., and your description seems to answer to this cross. The "yellow bar" across the head of one of the cock birds would disqualify him from competing in a dark Mule class; he becomes a pied bird. Greenfinch Mules (dark) show yellow edges to the flight and tail feathers, handed down, of course, from the cock Greenie.

An Outdoor Aviary (G. B. Carter).—You omitted the most important detail, viz., the size of the place. It is always advisable to have a portion at one end boarded off to make a shelter; it need not necessarily take the form of a house. The front only should be wired; top and both ends should be closed (boarded), to give protection from cold winds, rain, etc., 2. The Robin can be extremely pugnacious, and I do not advise with any confidence its inclusion. Further, only one pair each of Thrushes and Blackbirds should be put in. Subject to these instructions, the group mentioned should thrive well. 3. If you get the "Nutshell" booklet or the "Thrush and Blackbird" (2½d. post free), it will tell you all about the feeding of these large Softbills. The following mixture would suit the seed-eaters: Canary three parts, teazle and hemp two parts each, linseed, sunflower, summer rape and charlock one part each. Give the other seeds (wild seeds, maw, niger, etc.), occasionally as a special treat. 4. Earth makes a good flooring for an aviary, but a covering of good gritty sand (or builder's gravel) is better for small aviaries.

Two Mixtures (Star).—(1) You cannot do better than give your Goldfinch Mule the following stock seed-mixture: Can. 3 parts, teazle 2 parts, hemp 1 part, summer rape and linseed ½ part each. (2) A good "summer mixture" for Goldfinches (to ensure breeding condition) would be: Teazle and hemp 3 parts each, Canary 2 parts, linseed and niger 1 part each, with just a sprinkling of summer rape. When feeding add a small quantity of cracked sunflower, or safflower seed (crack it fresh daily). Goldies need dandelion (leaf, flower, and seed), as soon as obtainable; this is grand stuff for getting them into breeding condition.

A Quartette of Mules (F. Long).—The mixture you mention will suit the four Mules admirably, I should think; or they can have the one given by me this week in the reply to "Star." (2) Egg-food is not at all an essential item for Mules; a little during the moult is relished, and is good for them. If you are making egg-food, however, a teaspoonful once a week can be offered. Wild seed mixture they would delight in; once or twice a week is sufficiently frequent to give it. The Linnet Mule can be fed in exactly the same way as the others. I do not recommend sawdust as a floor covering for a Thrush's cage; try finely broken-up peat-moss litter; put on thickly, and you will never regret it. It is obtainable at poultry food stores (corn chandlers). A Lark should have a dust (or sand) bath.

GENERAL.

Answered by The Editor.

A Suggestion (The Countess Von Hahn).—We are much obliged to you for the suggestion you make, which we think an admirable one, and will give effect to at once. We thank you for your kindly remarks concerning our Journal.

Delay in Transit (Staff-Sergeant A.S.C.).—If the birds died owing to unreasonable delay in transit (as certainly seems to be the case), then we are of opinion that the railway company is liable for their value, notwithstanding the clause you mention. The owner of the birds will have to sue the company (if, that is, they refuse to pay without recourse to law) in the County Court.

A Plate (F. Shore).—Thanks for your breezy note. We have already published a coloured plate of Larks. Haven't you got a copy of it?

Cuttings (J. Wallace, P. L. Bartholomew, and others).—Accept our hearty thanks.

The "Redpoll Championship" (J. A. Tyler).—We had your letter posted on at once to Mr. Pooley, the correspondent in question.

TONBRIDGE (Kent).

Show held 29th Nov., Public Hall. A special room was set apart for the Cage Bird Section; it was well lighted, comfortably heated and well ventilated without draught. Mr. J. Robson judged. The secretary (Mr. P. Stonestreet) had arrangements well in hand, and cards were up before opening time. The stewards, Messrs. Creed, Smithers, Cross and Richards, were most attentive, and looked well after the comfort of the exhibits. The quality was well up to the mark, and the majority well staged. Best bird in show was a very fine young colour-fed Norwich, belonging to Mr. F. Gooding. Britishers made a good show, especially the Goldfinches, several excellent birds being staged.

Proposed New Cage Bird Society for Walsall & District.

SIR,—A meeting will be held at the Vine Hotel, Cross Street, Walsall, on Wednesday, December 7, at 8 p.m., for the purpose of forming a Cage Bird Society for this district. Will all fanciers in the Walsall district please attend or send their names to me?

FRANK PRICE.

18, Milton Street, Walsall.

A Disclaimer.

SIR,—In CAGE BIRDS, dated November 26, under heading of "Twitterings," you give a list of entries at the L.C.B.A. show, and state that "many Cage Bird Union men are exhibiting, including Mr. Longden, who is on the Council of the C.B.U." I must ask you to kindly contradict same, as I am not a member of the Council of the C.B.U., neither am I am a member of the C.B.U., having resigned from all affiliated societies on November 11. Hope you will contradict same in your next issue, as it is likely to do me harm.

D. A. S. LONGDEN.

The Millom C.B.S.

SIR,—I should like to know what has become of the Millom Cage Bird Society this year? I haven't seen a balance-sheet of last show yet. From what I can gather they have a few pounds in hands; then why should they be so disheartened? Some of them were not satisfied when they had a nice local show; nothing would do but to have an open show. But by this time I think they have learned a lesson. I should like to suggest to the Millom committee to try and come to some terms with the Barrow-in-Furness Society for a show held in Barrow, as Millom and Barrow District show. I think it would put fresh life into the Barrow and Millom fanciers. I should like to know what our Barrow fanciers think of it. Surely something can be done. Or would our Barrow friends throw their show open to Millom and district?

Alleged Stained Linnets at York Show.

SIR,—May I claim a short space in answer to Mr. Richardson, Mr. Waud, and Mr. Boyle, re stained Linnets at York show? I may say that I did not know to whom these Linnets belonged, and it did not very much bother me either. I am no respecter of persons in such a matter as the one under consideration. As to wanting to send them up to you, sir, for inspection, this is of no use after the time that has gone by since York show. I am very sorry that these birds were not tested at the time. I shall be very pleased to get this matter put right. I hope to see all the gentlemen concerned at our next meeting, the date of which will be announced shortly.

P. JOWETT,
Joint Hon. Sec. Y.C.B.B. and M.C.

SIR,—Mr. Richardson's letter in last week's issue calls for a reply. As far as I can judge it in a tissue of misstatements from start to finish. The other gentlemen referred to in it no doubt will justify themselves. But, as far as I'm concerned, I will make him prove the truth of this phrase, "the one put down at York and then boasted about." I challenge Mr. Richardson to prove that I ever staged a stained Linnet at York or had one put down there. Now, let him come forward with his proof, which must be backed up by some truthful, straightforward man, not on the word of any of the "faking brotherhood," which he seems so anxious to defend. I was delighted to see a letter from such an able authority as our esteemed secretary of the Y.C.B.B. and M.C., and I hope all honest British bird fanciers will rally round and help him to stamp out this faking business. He can rely on my assistance in the matter. I may say in conclusion that I still maintain my opinion with regard to the judge's awards. Will Mr. Richardson say the Linnets referred to were not stained?

J. NICHOLSON.

SIR,—I was greatly surprised to see that Mr. Waud, secretary of York show, states in his letter that what I said was not what took place. This is a serious statement to make, for what was in my letter did actually take place, viz., I went to object, and it states in the rules all objections must be made on Friday. What could I do then? My money was ready, and the objection in writing would soon have been made. But he said, "We must abide by our rules." I then asked him where the president (Mr. Richardson) was, as I wanted to see if he couldn't stretch a point and take my objection. But the president never came to the show while I remained, and I hadn't an opportunity of seeing him. The secretary knew I would have done anything to have got my objection laid. Why didn't he mention to me that he wanted it in writing? He saw me often enough during the afternoon, for I asked him several times if the president had come in. I am inclined to think he was afraid to take it. I wish he had given me the opportunity when the birds were in our midst; if it had been £5 it wouldn't have mattered. Mr. Richardson (chairman) seems awfully upset at York C.B.S. having been mentioned. Does he think this should have been omitted, for fanciers to blame some other society? This is just where it proves the writers are not afraid to speak their minds. Mr. R. says that two gentlemen and myself (one of the former I never saw before) were not satisfied with the awards in the Linnet class, seeing that my Linnet had never before been beaten. There couldn't have been such a remark passed, for my old bird was beaten at Leeds a month before by Mr. Hunt, of Leeds, mine being 2nd. Concerning having a shot at York, there was never such a suggestion made in my hearing. He also says he will pass over my letter, seeing I am a disappointed exhibitor. Of course, I expected a lot of this "disappointed." Mr. R., it only makes me smile, so I will pass your letter over. Mr. Boyle makes an emphatic denial of his birds being faked in any way. He says the perfection to which they were brought was effected by careful feeding, washing, etc., and advises me to learn how to do this properly, then I should be more successful. I don't want to learn it, Mr. B., I would rather remain a "disappointed exhibitor." What I said to Mr. B. when I drew his attention to the Linnet class was this, "Not going to stand being beaten with such things as these; and I am giving you a chance to defend yourself, for I am going to object." He said, "Well, get at them with your chemicals; you can object if you like." I might tell the secretary and chairman of York C.B.S., if I am a disappointed exhibitor I am not discouraged, for I hope to visit their show next year, and will no doubt give them some entries. But I hope Mr. Richardson keeps his promise, and gives every assistance to clear this matter up.

JOHN BEATTIE.

SIR,—I should like to say a few words to Mr. Richardson in answer to his last letter. Mr. R. evidently knows some member or other who has left the Y.C.B.S. on account of faked Linnets at members' shows, and suggests that they must have been my birds. Well, Mr. Editor, I am not a member of York C.B.S., and never was. I have often been to members' shows in York, and on one occasion an official was asked about another official's Linnet, and the reply was: he does right until he gets caught. If Mr. R. would like the names of these two officials he can have them privately from me, if asked for through CAGE BIRDS, and perhaps he would be surprised at the names and the proof I could give. I thank Mr. R. for his invitation to their next meeting, and would avail myself of his kindness, and no doubt join the society, and perhaps bring them a few more members, but not under the present conditions and working. If Mr. R. and his committee can assure me that no faking is allowed by its officials I will join and bring another half a dozen members also. I will "wait and see" if the exhibitor in question is cleared before I accept his invitation.

EBOR.

A New Cage Bird Society for Skipton and District.

SIR,—A meeting was held in the Globe Coffee Tavern on November 21, for the purpose of starting a Cage Bird Society. It was most encouraging to see the number of fanciers who turned up. Rules were adopted, and the meeting night fixed for the first Monday in every month, at 8 o'clock. Headquarters, Globe Coffee Tavern. The following officers were elected:—President, Mr. Nicholson; secretary, Mr. Gill; assistant secretary, Mr. Roberts; treasurer, Mr. Miller; committee, Messrs. Pickles, Hodgson, Beck, Child, Gates, Scott, Bradley, and Baxter.

J. NICHOLSON.

Correspondents Please Note.

SIR,—I should like to call the attention of those who answer advertisements that a letter needs a penny (and not half-penny) stamp. I have had two sent me this week and have had a penny on each to pay. How can people expect a man, especially a working man, to find money to advertise his stock and also pay for cost of letters to him, and also have to find stamps for answers? I think fanciers must make a mistake and not put the stamps on properly. I cannot think it is done intentionally. Perhaps, after drawing their attention to the matter, they will take more care. Enclosed please find two that I have received this week insufficiently stamped.

H. J. L. WILLIAMS.

Bad Luck in an Outdoor Bird-room.

SIR,—I see Mr. Golsby is complaining of his bad luck with the Norwich Canary in an outdoor bird-room, because of an "unpleasant smell." I have an outdoor room, 7ft. long, 5ft. wide, 8ft. back, and 6½ft. at front, lean-to roof, window 4ft. by 2½ft., half to slide open, 6 inch holes bored over door, which is on N.E. side of house. The window is in front of house, facing S.E., getting most of the sun. I never find any sort of unpleasantness when room is shut up all night, only a slight smell of wood from the new cages I have just fitted up. If Mr. G. has not raised his house up from off the ground that might cause the smell. Mine has been a lot sweeter inside since I raised it up about 4 inches from the ground, to let the air right through. The floor of house is ordinary floorboard. If the house is already raised off ground, Mr. G. could try the following way. Take the flood boards up in middle of house, dig a hole big enough to hold a bucket of lime, and put enough lime in to fill hole, and leave it. He will find it will go to powder; then he can put more in if needed. It might be just possible that the house is standing over ground that has been used as a chicken run, and the smell is caused through the ground being "sour." If so, the lime could be dug in the same (as manure is dug in to the garden). I hope Mr. G. will be able to get rid of the smell, and see the house, as I think birds do better outside. I am a novice myself, having had birds for only four years, but, thanks to CAGE BIRDS, I have learnt a lot about them in that time.

Theft of Foreign Birds.

A Warning.

SIR,—May I warn your readers against purchasing foreign birds from this district without first satisfying themselves they were honestly obtained? My aviary was entered twice last week, and about 50 birds were taken. They included specimens of the following species:—Bicheno, Longtailed Grass, Masked, Zebra, and Gouldian Finches, Avadavats, Spice Birds, Blue-winged Lovebirds, Grey-green Singing Finch Hybrid, Napoleon Weavers, St. Helena Waxbills, Grey Waxbills, Striated Finch, Siskins, etc.

Dublin. H. A. SWAYNE.

A New Cage Bird Society for Thatto Heath and District.

SIR,—Our first meeting was held on November 14 at Nutgrove School. It was decided to call the club "The Thatto Heath and District Ornithological Society"—with no fixed radius. The annual subscription was fixed at 2s. 6d. Our next meeting will be held on December 5, at 8 o'clock, in the same school, to draw up the rules of the club and election of officers, and other things. Will anyone wishing to join kindly communicate with me, as secretary, at 29, Elm Road, Thatto Heath, and I will be pleased to supply him with all particulars.

H. G. TYSON, Hon. Sec.

Where Was "Kruger" this Time?

SIR,—I am delighted to see the interest taken in the exhibiting of my champion Lesser Redpoll, "Kruger," and I am very sorry that for reasons which do not concern anybody but myself, I abstained from showing at the City and Suburban show. I can quite understand the disappointment of Mr. Pooley, who appears genuinely grieved that he did not see the bird, and I hope he may find an opportunity of doing so at a show of perhaps greater importance than the City and Suburban. I do not think anybody can accuse me of hiding "Kruger," since at Swansea, Notts, and Wimbledon he was awarded three consecutive first prizes by three different judges, being in his show cage continuously for ten days, from Tuesday, November 8, to Friday, the 18th, and travelling 800 miles during this time, while during 1910 he has been on the show bench fourteen times in open competition, and has only been defeated once by a Lesser Redpoll (at the L.C.B.A. last week), and I heartily congratulate the owner. He has always been entered under his name in the catalogue, wherever he has been shown, and there is no question as to his identity, and I shall continue to enter him wherever he is exhibited under his name. Mr. Pooley can easily see whether the bird is on show or not before the awards of the prizes, so that his concluding remarks are not worth notice. This is my first and final reply to such absurd questions.

A. J. A. MARLEY.

P.S.—Still happy and contented.

SIR,—Having read Mr. Pooley's letter, I would like to enlighten him that I happen to know "Kruger's" career from the beginning. Secondly, he seems to make light of CAGE BIRDS reports, but "Kruger" never has been applauded any more than he deserved. He was a hero in field-moulted plumage, and is still a hero, as will be seen from his record this season, and Mr. Marley ought to be congratulated on the able way he has moulted him. As a Lesser Poll he is certainly an exception, as all true fanciers will admit. But when disappointed exhibitors or spiteful fanciers rush into print, then we have just to take their opinion for what it is worth—nothing. "Bobs" and "Kitchener," etc., were certainly on the wrong track last Saturday, and perhaps it is as well for them, for if "Kruger" had been present instead of conquering they would have died. For the benefit of readers, especially Mr. Pooley I am proud to say that last Saturday's City and Sub. winner has already fallen under "Kruger."

F. M. MACGILLIVRAY.

An Open Letter to the Cage Bird Union.

SIR,—Seeing that the Cage Bird Union has been very quiet this last few weeks. I would like to pen this open letter to them, asking if the Union was not brought into existence with the idea of its being a National Institution for the advancement and betterment of all things concerning our bobby? I would draw their attention to the fact that the R.S.P.C.A. have been very active of late in trying to crush out of existence our British section of fanciers. Come, come, Cage Bird Union, here is a fine job waiting for you, so wake up and let us see what you can do. "But, perhaps, you are too busy sharpening up your old swords to have another go in defence of Rule 22. If so, I would strongly advise you to let it go, and scrap the old weapons, and if you must have a lethal weapon to fight with, go into your bird-room and select a suitable perch, insert a pin in one end, leaving a little bit of the business end projecting, and use it as a lance! Take up this matter vigorously, and it will, perhaps, save that "coroner's inquest," and you will be justifying your own existence as a Union, and, at the same time, earning our gratitude, besides, doing much good to yourselves, and helping to bridge over the differences that ought never to have been. Then there is also the vexed question of where novices are to show their British birds. In some parts of the country they are allowed to show them in the open classes and win, if able to, without its affecting their status as novices in the Canary section, while here in the Manchester district, if a novice shows a Linnet in the open (perhaps it costs him 6d. in the rough), and wins a third prize with the bird, he at once becomes a full-blown professional, though his Canaries may not be good enough to hold their own in novice members' classes. Surely, we can devise something better than this? Why not have one rule for the whole of the kingdom? It would be a big help to the novice, the shows, and also to the C.B.U. by its proving to us that the Union is not a divider of fanciers(stirring up dissension by their cussedness), but a real help in our time of need.

W. DOWNING.

The R.S.P.C.A. and British Bird Keepers.

SIR,—We have read with much interest the articles relating to this case in your issues of the 19th and 26th November, and the correspondence published thereon. We may say that we have received a letter from the society's solicitor, stating that his clients will appeal against the magistrate's decision in this case, and we understand that the society accordingly applied to the magistrate to state a case for the decision of the Divisional Court, this being the higher court before which the appeal would have to be heard. The magistrate, however, refused to grant the society's application, and we learn that they will now apply to the High Court for an order directing the magistrate to state a case for appeal. No doubt the object of the society in appealing is to obtain from the High Court a definition of the words "recently taken" used in the Wild Birds Protection Acts, and they will no doubt contend that a bird is recently taken if it has been caught at any time within the previous six months. Having regard to the importance of the point, it is possible that the High Court may permit the society to appeal, and, if so, it will be a matter of the greatest importance to all bird fanciers, and to the general public, that the case against the society's contentions shall be presented as strongly as possible. Mr. Bennett would gladly bear the whole expense of these proceedings, but his circumstances will hardly permit him to do so, and he will very gratefully accept any assistance that your readers may think fit to give him. We propose to keep you informed of the course of events, and beg to thank you and your correspondents (and notably Mr. Trower) for their kind interest in our client's case.

ODY AND WILMOT.

SIR,—It is a few years now since I first advocated a protection fund for the protection of fanciers. I think it was about the time when Mr. Glasscock lost that grand Crest at the Palace. I dare say many readers will remember it, and I have often thought when cases such as the Preston and Flowers and all such like cases have occurred, what a benefit it would have been had my scheme taken root at that time—what a strong concern it would have been by now. I don't think there would be need of such a thing as a Cage Bird Union, as I think all a bird fancier wants, whether he be dealer, exhibitor, or private fancier, is protection. My scheme is that all fanciers contribute, say, 1s. per annum to a fund to be used for the benefit of its members. In cases of accident by rail, fraud, or stolen birds, or anything in connection with the Fancy, which a committee deems fit to take up. I think it could be worked on a much cheaper scale than most other schemes, as all it would want is treasurer, secretary, and committee, to work it, and they could be paid out of the funds. Mr. Editor, I believe I asked you to act as treasurer when I wrote you before on this subject. Could you accept this post now? It would be a great lift to such a scheme, and would give the Fancy confidence to become members. Our friend, Mr. Trower, is offering £10 10s. towards a scheme. What a chance for a beginning! I should like to hear from other fanciers their views on this subject. The amount of subscription could be raised or reduced according to the opinion of members.

J. R. SLACK.

SIR,—Being interested in the R.S.P.C.A. prosecutions, and especially that of Mr. S. Bennett, I feel justified in stating some views upon the matter. First of all, the R.S.P.C.A. is a society against cruelty. I have yet to learn that there is cruelty attached to having recently taken Goldfinches. The worst part of these cases is that inspectors institute proceedings against fanciers who have made bird life a study, and in many cases the inspectors themselves know nothing of the hygiene and principles of bird keeping. I firmly maintain that the keeping and catching of wild birds is a subject more fitting for the Local Government Board than for the R.S.P.C.A. For one reason, bird shops are liable to be inspected under the Public Health Acts. ("Premises in such a state as to be a nuisance or injurious to health.") I am not going to say that bird shops are in such a state, but I will go as far as to say that certain by-laws should be made for bird shops; and the authority to do that is the Local Government Board. Now, sir, being a qualified sanitary inspector myself, as well as a life-long keeper of birds, I am naturally disposed in favour of bird keeping as a workman's hobby. I consider that if bird shops were kept on perfectly hygienic principles, and an inspection made by the authorities periodically, nobody, corporate or otherwise, need dream of extinguishing the science which is making rapid headway toward making birds in cages as comfortable, and perhaps more comfortable, than birds that struggle through a hard winter in a wild state. But I say that cubic space should be enforced as regards the number of birds kept. I don't think anyone will dispute this.

J. KERSHAW.

An Accrington Competition.

SIR,—Some few months ago I was induced to take part in a watch competition promoted by the Accrington and District C.B.S., the object of the competition being to help the society financially. Owing to the fact that so few entered, the date of the competition closing was extended, and the secretary of the society stated in your columns at the time that he would announce the result in CAGE BIRDS at the end of October. But up to the present I have seen no announcement made by him, and I, at least, do not know the result of the competition. Will Mr. Taylor be so good as to let me know through CAGE BIRDS the result, or, if the date of closing has been again extended?

LANCASHIRE LAD.

Yorkshires at Liverpool O.S. Show.

SIR,—A committee meeting was held November 26, to investigate the judge's mistake in Class 17 (Yorks) at above show. Messrs. Thornton and Bower and Mr. W. Young were invited to attend. After the chairman, Mr. V. H. Deacon, had explained the reason of this meeting, Mr. Young stood up and honourably handed the prize money back to the society, saying there had been a mistake on the judge's part, and he was pleased to hand over the money and points to Messrs. Thornton and Bower. The meeting accorded Mr. Young a most hearty vote of thanks for the straightforward step he had taken. The show manager was authorised to send prize money on to Messrs. Thornton and Bower, through the Y.C.C. secretary, Mr. Greaves.

J. W. METCALFE, Show Manager.

A Linnet Singing Challenge.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Lupton's letter, I should advise him to close the club doors and "play by ourselves." I have had a great deal more experience than you, Mr. Lupton. As you are assistant sec., you should look to the club's welfare, and not turn visitors away. Don't be frightened of being beaten; let them have a sing, no matter whether the last pair of birds are up or not. I once went to Blackburn, Lancashire, and did not get there until 3.30. The last pair of birds were singing, but they did not send me away, neither did they say, "No; you can't sing; besides, So-and-so has had a good sing." That was said to me at your place. But I don't want to spend time quarrelling. Mr. Soloman had most of the talk. He said he would sing me or anyone else. Now, Mr. Soloman, I have given you a fair chance for a match (in my previous letter), but you have not replied. Will you please cover my 10s. deposited with the Editor, and sing me at Selby for £10? Or I should be pleased to sing you from £2 upwards. I am taking no advantage. We both pick a judge each. The Editor picks a third judge. Selby is 20 miles from Leeds, and 37 from Hull.

FRED ALLEN.

Tin-lined Seed-boxes at Scottish Y.C.C. Shows.

SIR,—An anonymous correspondent in your issue of November 26, draws attention to the fact that certain members of the Scottish Y.C.C. show birds in cages other than the standard Yorkshire cages. Had "Onlooker" signed his name to what he wrote instead of skulking behind a nom de plume he would have been manly. However, seeing he has chosen the course of keeping in the dark, he will, perhaps, not cavil at me for writing as I am about to do. (1) Who is "Onlooker"?—He is a busybody, afraid of his identity, hiding in the dark. (2) Is he a member of the S.Y.C.C.?—He says, no; and I think the S.Y.C.C. have no desire for his kind. (3) Do the S.Y.C.C. by constitution standardise cages?—No. (4) What is the object of "Onlooker's" letter?—To draw attention to the supposed markings and to cast suspicion on judges and competitors. (5) Who benefit or derive assistance from marked cages?—Competitor and judge alike. (6) If a competitor has tin-lined seed boxes, does he use them to assist the judge, thereby expecting benefit?—(?) (7) In whose interest is "Onlooker" raising this subject?—(?) (8) Who are the judges at the S.Y.C.C. patronage shows?—Breeders of the Yorkshire Canary and members of the Scottish Y.C.C. (9) Who elected them judges?—The S.Y.C.C. members. (10) Are the judges above suspicion?—(?) (11) If by reason of seeing cages marked often the judge became aware of the identity of the competitor, would the judge use his knowledge to the competitor's advantage or otherwise?—(?) I should like to have "Onlooker's" answers to questions 6, 7, 10, and 11. They should be interesting and instructive. If "Onlooker" attaches his name and address to his reply, I am assured of a pair of spectacles and a microscope for his use, as he is in much need of them. In the interest of fair play (?) he rushes into print about a certain kind of markings, omitting to detect or hiding the fact that there are several different patterns of cages and various sizes and shapes of perches, all of which might also be of assistance to judge and competitor. These different cages and perches I have no doubt the several competitors have a reason for using, and as the S.Y.C.C. has no fixed standard the members are well within their right in showing as they do at present. Had there been a standard fixed I do not for one minute imagine, Mr. Editor, that your valuable space would have been encroached on, as the members of the S.Y.C.C. are sportsmen—everyone of them—and do not require the assistance of scheming to enable them to establish the breed they are interested in in Scotland. "Onlooker," as an onlooker, is an adjunct to a show, but to rush into print as he has done without full knowledge of all the facts, and write a letter such as he did, he becomes a danger and a nuisance.

E. BARRON.

An Appeal in a Good Cause.

SIR,—I observe by an advertisement under "Border Fancy Canaries," that Mr. Cant, secretary of Hamilton show, is trying to dispose of the late Mr. Wm. Hamilton's stock on behalf of the widow and family, and as they have been left in poor circumstances, I hope that fanciers in need of stock will give Mr. Cant their patronage when buying, as by so doing they will help a most deserving case.

M. JAMIESON,
Hon. Sec. Border Fancy C.C.

Border Fancies at Liverpool Show.

SIR,—I was much amused at Mr. Wright alluding to the remark of your reporter—"Pretty North Country type"—which I take to refer to the Border Fancy class at Liverpool. I think he must be wanting to learn the points of the Border Fancy, or he is very jealous of the owner of the bird, who is going very strong at the leading shows this season.

NORTH COUNTRY TYPE.

Novice Classes for British Birds at the Palace Show.

SIR,—Kindly permit me to inform "Kentish Novice" that my committee have provided 4 classes for British birds, 2 for Canary Hybrids, and 1 for Hybrids between British birds, at the forthcoming Crystal Palace show. Competition restricted to novices. If these classes are well filled, I have no doubt that my committee will extend the classification at future shows.

J. W. RAMSDEN, Show Manager.

SIR,—I notice that a correspondent has opened the question of novice classes for British exhibitors. I think this of the greatest importance, as I know that there are large numbers of British bird-keepers who will not join a society or show their birds simply because they know that they will not stand a possible chance of winning when they have to meet in competition some of the most successful and experienced men in the Fancy. As an instance, I might mention that when I first entered my birds for a show I was an absolute novice, only having had my birds a few months. I was astonished to find that no provision was made for novice classes, and I had to compete against men who were big winners all over London. As a result my birds passed unnoticed, the honours going to a previous year's Crystal Palace winner. What encouragement does this give to a beginner? Week after week we see in the reports that "the British classes were not very successful," and as long as the British novice is ignored and no provision made for him, you cannot expect otherwise. A novice has either to give up showing altogether, or, if not, to keep on paying entrance fees for the purpose of having his birds laughed at by more experienced fanciers. It is certainly time something was done to alter this state of affairs.

Notes from Erin.

BELFAST N.C. and Y.C. eighth annual show has come and gone. Exhibitors at this fixture must have been members at least six months previous, and all exhibits in the Canary classes must be unflighted and bred and reared by the exhibitor. Mr. Birse won the club's valuable challenge cup for best bird in show with his tick. yell. Yorks. cock. Mr. Fleming was runner-up, and secured the gold medal. In the Crest section Mr. Adams won the gold medal, while in the novice section Mr. Thompson secured two gold medals.

I HAVE just received a schedule from a certain society, and I regret to see the classification for Yorkshires limited to 6 classes (4 open and 2 for novices). What is wrong? For a number of years this club has always provided a good classification for this popular variety, and held their show under the patronage of the Specialist Clubs.

A MATTER which secretaries of clubs should bring up before their committees for consideration is the question of entry fees. Many of the societies charge 2s. entry, and give 4 and 5 money prizes. Certainly this is all right in one sense, but the rules of the York hire Specialist Club require shows under their patronage to charge 1s. 6d. entry fees per cage, and only require 3 money prizes in each class. Seeing that Yorkshire fanciers only wish for three money prizes, would it not be better for societies to try and come to some arrangement and thus insure the success of the Yorkshire section? It will be noticed this season up to the present that any show having the patronage of Y.C. and Y.C.C.B.S. has proved a huge success financially, and the entries have been all that could be desired.

I AM now going to ask a question: Is it pleasant to send a bird on the evening previous to a show and on attending the following evening to find our cage behind a case, with very little seed and no water, and to have it suggested on taking exceptions to this, to "go out and purchase seed"? In such a case the bird might not be placed before the judge. Of course, even with the best of management an error is likely to occur. Still, even though it be only a members' show, we cannot all attend personally, and we all like to feel that our pets will be fully attended to. Stewards take a great responsibility upon themselves, and no doubt the majority do their duty well.

Illustrated Ideas

No. 466.
A Novel Seed-box.

Sent by Mr. G. E. Morgan, 69, West Street, Crewe.

I send you an idea of my own; I say my own, because in the aviaries I have visited I have not seen anything like it, but have always been told it is a good and very simple idea. In the first place, it is a seed box, and the majority of seed boxes hold seed so that it is impossible for the birds to get at it. Now, by placing a thin piece of wood or cardboard as in sketch, it not only means putting less seed in, but the seed that is put in is always within reach of the birds, because as they eat it from the front it slides down the piece of thin wood or cardboard, whichever may be used; but I only use thin wood. I find this a grand idea. I have been a constant reader of CAGE BIRDS, and have not seen the idea illustrated, or anything like it. No seed, I may say, goes underneath the sloping piece of wood.—G. E. MORGAN.

No. 467.
A Prize-Card File.

Sent by Mr. Jos. Taylor, 19, Aden Road, Ilford.

The enclosed sketch is of a "double file" which I use in my bird room for the keeping of "prize cards" together, in sight, and handy for reference at any time, without covering up the whole of the walls, which takes up the space we want so badly, on which to put those splendid plates we get from time to time with our weekly journal in connection with the Fancy—CAGE BIRDS. The "file" can easily be made with less than two feet of ordinary cage bird wire, and can also be made to any size to suit requirements; if a little stiffer wire is used, so much the better. The sketch will, I think, explain itself.—J. TAYLOR.

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

*The Plucky Blue Tit.

My chums and I once came upon a Blue Tit's nest in a hole of a wall. We put in our hands, but could only feel some moss and straw. We stood back, and as soon as our hands were out the parent Blue Tit bopped to the edge of the nest and hissed at us and went calmly back to the nest. This plucky act shows that small birds are as plucky as larger ones, and pluckier sometimes.—Sent by Charlie L. Davidson (age 13), Ellensea, South Esk Street, Brechin.

An Offended Robin.

A friend of mine once had a tame Robin that used to come to her to be fed every morning at 10 o'clock. She used to feed it with bits of nut, and it would come and take it from her lips. One day I went with my brother to see her, and he got a piece of nut between his lips, but when the Robin came to get it he drew back. This seemed to offend the Robin so much that it did not come again for some weeks afterwards.—Sent by Harold Tunbridge (age 14), Nethercott, St. Marks, Cheltenham.

*Owl in Mid-Atlantic.

News reached Queenstown recently that far out in mid-Atlantic a flock of more than a dozen birds, including one Owl, several Wrens, Thrushes, and Chaffinches, alighted on the British steamer "Caledonia," bound from Manchester and Liverpool to Boston. The birds were exhausted after their long flight from shore, and all but the Chaffinches died in a short time afterwards. The birds had probably been carried over the water in a gale.—Sent by JOHN GILL (age 14), 59, Lister Street, Rotherham.

OUR COLOURED PLATE.

The Grey Parrot.

The Grey Parrot is so well known that a description seems superfluous. Young Greys when first imported may be distinguished by their dark grey, almost black, eyes, which begin to get paler when the birds are about seven months old, and when they reach the age of twelve months, are almost as pale as the adults.

How to Sex.

I believe the late Mr. J. Abrahams was the one to discover a difference in the sex of Grey Parrots by the shape of the white skin on the face. He carefully compared them for a number of years, and came to the conclusion that the bare skin of the face was more rounded behind the eye in the case of the hen than in that of the cock. In the latter the white is more pointed behind the eye. My own opinion is that male Grey Parrots are very scarce in this country, but for what reason I cannot say, unless it be that more males than females die on arrival. Why I have formed this opinion I will state. I have been a taxidermist for over thirty years, and during that time I have had many Grey Parrots pass through my hands for stuffing; some have been the most noted talkers, one bird having a forty years' reputation. Yet, during the whole of my experience, I have never found one of them to be a male, although every one has been carefully dissected after being skinned.

So, in choosing a Grey Parrot, I think no one need trouble about the sex of the bird. There is a Grey now only about a mile from my home, belonging to an old cottager; this bird is a most talented talker, and would not be dear at £10. Yet there is not a year goes by but she lays two or three white eggs in the bottom of her cage. So it is far more important in buying a Grey to see that you get a good healthy bird, than to trouble about its sex.

The Feeding.

The very best food for a Grey when first imported is boiled maize, made just soft enough to be pressed quite flat between the finger and thumb. Great care must be taken to give this fresh, as it will soon go sour, when diarrhœa will result. The food tin must also be scalded out each time before fresh food is given. After the first week or two, the bird may be weaned on to dry seed. This can be done by three-parts filling its tin with hemp and small grey sunflower-seed, and covering the top with the boiled maize. When the bird has eaten the maize he will taste the hemp and sunflower, and will soon prefer these to the maize; but the maize must not be given up too suddenly.

Also offer the birds every day a bit of dry biscuit and a bit of banana. Apples they are fond of, but my experience is that apple is liable to give birds diarrhœa; I much prefer banana. Young Greys have a habit at first of making a horrible squawking noise every time anyone goes near their cage. The best way I know of stopping this is to put the cage on the table when the bird has become hungry, stop your ears with cotton-wool, and then sit down and talk to it in the most endearing tones you are capable of, and (if it will eat it) offering it a piece of banana at the same time, or a piece of sweet biscuit; and don't forget that the bird does not make this noise in anger, but in fear. As soon as you convince your bird that you are not going to hurt it, and that you are its best friend, you will get no more squawking.

When and How to Train.

When your bird gets fairly tame, and allows you to feed and water it without making a noise, then is the time to tame it, for the sooner it becomes perfectly tame, the sooner it will learn to talk. Now, the best way to make your bird quite tame is to hang its water tin always in the doorway of its cage, or better still, on the outside of the doorway, with the door open. Get your birds used to coming down to the doorway for its drink. When it is used to this, let it get very thirsty, and then open the cage door and hang a water tin outside, so that it has to put its head outside to drink. Then when it attempts to drink (have your hand just above where its head will be when the bird is drinking), without frightening it try to scratch its poll.

An Invaluable Book.

The above paragraphs are taken from Mr. C. P. Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (post free 7d. from the offices of CAGE BIRDS), the most practical and up-to-date booklet on the market for lovers of the Parrot tribe. It deals fully with the feeding, taming, training to talk, ailments, management of newly imported birds, etc., etc.—an invaluable work at a wonderfully low price.

Mr. Goodchild's marvellously life-like and artistic picture will, we anticipate, be warmly welcomed by our readers, and find a place on the walls of the homes of a great number of bird-lovers. We think it one of the best paintings of this artist that we have as yet had the pleasure of reproducing.

The Ringed Plover.

Some naturalists are under the impression that there are two races of that interesting bird, the Ringed Plover, inhabiting this country—the larger bird, which is mostly found around the coast at all seasons, and the smaller variety which is migratory and arrives in the spring to spend the summer here. Their habits and nesting are identical, but seen side by side there is certainly a great difference between the birds.

CARDIFF.

Cardiff and His. C.B.S. 14th annual open show, held Cory Hall, Nov. 30th, and Dec. 1. The hall was very tastefully laid out, and is one of the finest in the principality for a cage bird show, being well lighted and free from draughts. Birds were all staged ready for judging by 9.30, thanks to the untiring efforts of a hardworking committee, Messrs. A. Shellam (chairman), S. T. Whetton (vice-chairman), W. Sampson, Thorne, Smith, Jones, Wilson, Banks, Dymond, Thomas, Ford, Howard, and Muggs. The secretary, Mr. J. W. Dunmett, is a very energetic and courteous official. Lord Ninian Crichton-Stuart declared the show open in a very pleasing speech, and Cardiff are to be congratulated on having such a gentleman at hand who takes more than a passing interest in our hobby. Lady Stuart also spoke, and seemed keenly interested in the exhibits. The Canary section was very strong, and the prize winners were hard to separate, some good birds having to take back seats through lack of condition. Mules and British were well up to the standard. Foreigners also came up well, some beautiful exhibits being staged. The attendance on the opening day was fairly good, and we trust our Cardiff friends had a bumper "gate" on the Thursday. Mr. Jonas Knight's Yorkshires were all absent. Before we left three of Mr. Tristem's Norwich were claimed at catalogue price. Messrs. Payne and Battye judged.

LEEK.

Leek C.B.S. show, held November 26th, Co-operative Hall. This hall is a splendid place for the purpose, being nicely heated and having good light. Unfortunately the day was a very wintry one, and the light none too good at times. The entry was only a moderate one, but 14 classes, we are sorry to say, were cancelled. The Norwich section was poor, only averaging a trifle over six per class, but the quality of the birds was of a very high order. Yorkshires had eight classes, allotted to them, but half of them had the pen put through them; the exhibits were nicely staged, and well looked after by the committee, who are a body of practical fanciers. The post of hon. secretary was filled in a manner as only an experienced exhibitor like Mr. R. Hall can fill it. Catalogues were posted to exhibitors shortly after four o'clock, and many of the exhibits were packed and put on rail by seven o'clock. Mr. J. H. Roe judged.

NEWARK.

The 25th annual show of the Newark and Dis. F.A. was held Nov. 24th, Corn Exchange. The cage bird section was a feature of the show. There were 72 exhibits in all, and some of the best quality birds for miles round were on view. Cup for best bird in show went to Mr. J. Lamb, a member of the Newark C.B.S., with a buff Norwich. Foreigners were good class birds, but poorly judged. The judge was Mr. Ward (Derby), and his placings in some sections caused comment. Mr. H. A. Shelbourn, the secretary, is to be complimented upon his successful management. Judge's Steward: Mr. J. Staniield. Penning stewards: Messrs. F. Smith, W. Lidgett, and H. Mackender.

DENNY AND DUNIPACE.

Denny and Dunipace O.A. annual show, held Nov. 26th, Foresters' Hill, Denny. The hall was splendidly lighted from the roof, and although the day was not characteristically clear and crisp, yet it was reasonable, and visitors were rewarded with a good look at the birds without difficulty. The only thing that we thought could be bettered was the too inadequate space at the executive's command for holding a mixed show. Especially was this noticeable in the afternoon when visitors began to pour in from the various districts. President, Mr. R. Waddell; vice-president, Mr. R. Anderson; secretary and treasurer, Mr. A. France, all these gentlemen officiated in a most masterly way, and it would be hard to particularise, but we venture to advise the Association to stick to their secretary, who is a most devoted fancier, and one who, by his genial and masterly style of handling every item, is the right man in the right place. The committee, Messrs. Marshall, A. Parker, McMurdo, Herd, Robertson, Lowrie, Binnie, Fauld, McIntosh, and Anderson, and the assistant secretary, Mr. R. Parker, all devoted themselves most ungrudgingly to attending the exhibits. Mr. Charles Campbell (Glasgow) made the awards; he got through them in nice time, and with few exceptions gave general satisfaction. Cup for most points won by R. Martin; runner-up, McNaughton.

The Critique.

SCOT. FCY. CK.: 1, Bennie, nice yell pied, good drive and reach. HEN: 1, Bennie, nice sized Foul Green, good depth through, nice top end, slow to work. CREST CK.: 1, Paterson, monster cl. body D.C., rare length of feather, nice droop, good one all over, nicely staged; 2, McNaughton, var. D.C., any quantity of feather, grand top piece, fine drop, round as a penny, well put down, must have pressed for 1st place; 3, McDougall, another var., fine size, good feather; 4, McNaughton, Grizzle Crest, nice size and crest formation. HEN: 1, McNaughton, nicely staged Grizzle Crest, cl. body, fine size, fine thick crest; 2, Bennie, broken Green, both quantity and quality of feather, nice size. C.B. CK.: 1, Paterson, large var., fine length feather, good shaped skull, in the best of condition, well put down; 2, McNaughton, another good one, not much to choose between the first two; 3, Bennie, quite a nice one, in grand condition, just lacks the size and density of feather of leaders; 4, McNaughton, nice exhibit, fails only in skull. HEN: 1, McNaughton, real feathery hen, fine size, well put out, nice dome shaped skull; 2, Campbell, again, nice one, fails just slightly in breadth of skull, equal in every other respect; 3, 5, McIntosh, nice one, not quite the size or quantity of feather of those in front; 4, McNaughton, similar. CL., ETC. YELL. NOR. CK.: 1, Herd, grand one, fed to perfection, lovely even col throughout, fine type and quality, good head, neat wings and tail, well put down; 2, Buchanan, nice col., good quality feather; 3, Strath, nice quality feather, fine, even col, grand head, a trifle open at chest; 4, Bishop, grandly staged, fine type and quality; 5, No. 10; 6, Martin. HEN: 1, Martin, nice quality, fine head and type, good wing and tail carriage, very stout and cobby; 2, Hutton, smaller, not quite the bloom of winner, could have been staged to better advantage; 3, Martin, fine, large, typical specimen, tight in leather, good quality; 4th, Lothian, fails only in head and neck, nice one; 5, Donaldson; 6, Gauld. BUFF CK.: 1, Martin, nice typical exhibit, well fed, level col, grandly mealed, fine quality feather; 2, Bishop, another nice one, fails to winner only a trifle in size, good quality, well put down; 3, Martin, very nice youngster, fine size and type, creditable one; 4, McNaughton, good size and quality, falls only in head and neck; 5, Gauld; 6, Herd. HEN: 1, Parker, large, stout and typical, short, good quality feather, not quite so sweet in head as we like to see; 2, Buchan, fine large wing, mkd, nice head, well filled in at neck; 3, Ritchie, nice one for type and size, just wants filling in at neck to set out her other qualities; 4, McNaughton, nice one for type; 5, Herd; 6, Ritchie. VAR. YELL. CK.: 1, 3 spls, Herd, wins spls for best members', best col led, and best bird in hall, grand, bot, and level col throughout, grand quality, sweetly moulded; 2, Hamilton, good one, but not quite so hot in col, or so steady as winner; 3, Gorrie, fine hot saddle mkd. one, nice bead, fine feather, must have been a tight run for 2nd; 4, Cameron, very nice Broken Green; 5, Gauld. BUFF: 1, Paterson, fine, stout typical exhibit, fine substance, nice quality feather, good head; 2, 3, Martin, 2nd, nice specimen, Grizzle Cap and wing mark, splendid type, feather like silk; 3rd, real nice typical cap marked, fine feather, grandly staged; 4, 5, McNaughton, good one for size and type; 6, Ferrier. HEN: 1, 2, Bishop, 1st, almost Green, right stamp to breed winners, very typical, short, and chubby, A1 feather; 2nd, fine, typical exhibit, mkd. wing, grizzle cap, just fails a trifle in head and wing carriage; 3, Ritchie, larger, but rather long behind; 4, Martin, quite nice; 5, Anderson; 6, Wallace. CL., ETC., YELL. BORD. CK.: 1, 4, McIntosh, 1st, nice, tight, and typical little chap, scarcely finished moulting, yet; 2, Kay, fine quality and col, just fails a trifle at neck; 3, McGreachen, real nice one for type, and sound col, put down in creditable fashion; 5, Ayton; 6, Sharp. HEN: 1, spl, for 2nd best Bord. in hall, McIntosh, real little gem, very stylish and typical, carries wings and tail, well put down to win; 2, Ayton, nice typical one, good head and neck, scarcely so nice and tight in feather as leader; 3, Cameron, sweet little exbibit, which might have done better if it had had a good wash; 4, Shields, looks a nice one, soft; 5, Craig. YELL. BORD. CK., A.O.V.: 1, Irvine, nice and jaunty, good col, grand Border head and neck, put down in nice trim; 2, McIntosh, typical Green, good wings, nice tail, inclined to be bronzed on wing coverts; 3, No. 5 (no name), nicely mkd., good quality feather, nice type; 4, Patterson, broken Green, real nice specimen for type and wing carriage; 5, Cameron. HEN: 1, Buchan, fine size and type of exhibit, var., neatly mkd. finely carried wings, neat head, close tail; 2, McGreachen, another var., good size, nice type and feather, carries wings strains somewhat loosely at times; 3, Watt, var. cinn. mkd., neatly folded wings and tail, if better staged might have gone up a peg. CL., ETC., BUFF CK.: 1, Shields, grandly staged cl., splendid wings and tail, fine texture of feather, travels the perches well, must have given a run for the specials; 2, Tierney, good tick, neat wings and tail, fine type, beaten here to-day; 3, McIntosh, very nice one, running hard for 2nd place; 4, (no name). HEN: 1, Rae, real nice, jaunty little lady, very typical, good head, wings and tail; 2, Shields, real natty little exhibit, good in all points, in the opinion of many a clear win; 3, Ayton, nice one, a trifle thin in neck, not quite so stylish as those in front; 4, spl, McIntosh, nice typical one. BUFF CK., A.O.V.: 1, Godfrey Bros., neat 3-pointed, fine type and quality, jaunty carriage, nice win; 2, Shields, nicely marked ou wings and eyes, well staged, very steady. HEN: 1, spl, for best Bord., Irvine, ideal little specimen, eye mark, nut down in the pink of condition. V.1 type and quality, best of carriage, fine even wings and pipe tail, popular win; 2, Tierney, nice, typical var., good type and quality of feather, a little rough in legs; 3, Godfrey Bros., very nice one for type and carriage, running hard for 2nd place. SISKIN, ETC.: 1, Kirkwood, finely polished Twite, good size, well pencilled, staged in best of order, steady as a rock, wins well; 2, 3, Parker, 2nd, Lesser Redpoll, grand red head, and large black bib, finely mkd., and well pencilled, had met its match; 3rd, fine little Siskin, in grand col, nice yellow markings, staged nicely; 4, Richardson, another good Twite, not quite the depth of col of winner; 5, McIntosh, Mealy 'Poll; 6, Cooper. GOLDFINCH, ETC.: 1, Kirkwood, fine, large, and steady Foreign Goldie, grand deep blaze, pure in whites, finely tanned, good yellow wings, nicely buttoned, wins well; 2, Parker, another Foreign Goldie, put down like silk, not a feather out of place, deeper in blaze col, with just a little more size might have won; 3, Hamilton, grand Bullie, rare depth of col, fine dark cap, neat wing bars, worth position; 4, spl, Gauld, grand little house-moulted British Goldfinch, put down in creditable condition; 5, Miller and Eadie, nice Bullie; 6, Herd, good Brit. Goldfinch. GREENFINCH: 1, Parker, grand yell, great depth of col, put down in spanking fine condition, polished like glass, steady; 2, Miller and Eadie, another nice yell, equally well staged, but scarcely so hot in col yet, hard runner; 3, Paterson, yet another yell, in nat. col., fine size, nice condition; 4, Hamilton, quite a creditable exhibit, beaten in this company; 5, Cooper; 6, Godfrey Bros. LINNET: 1, Miller and Eadie, good nutty col., well pencilled, nicely staged, steady; 2, Binnie, another good one, nice nutty brown, but inclined to run a trifle in markings; 3, Watson, very nice one, better in markings, and equally good in size, some thought might, without giving offence, have gone one up; 4, Hamilton, quite a nice one for size; 5, Craig; 6, Kirkwood. A.O.S. HARDBILL: 1, Robertson, grand Hawfinch, good size, deep col., large bib, well defined in markings, very steady; 2, 4, Miller and Eadie, 2nd, nice col, and steady Yellowhammer, good size, faint a trifle in head markings; 4th, nice steady Bramblefinch, neatly marked; 3, Kirkwood, fine, large Corn Bunting, nicely marked, well staged, good one; 5, Binnie, very nice, good col Chaffie; 6, Parker, fine Yellowhammer, some thought easily a better one than 2nd, fine size, steady, clean, and well defined markings on head, perhaps overlooked. A.O.S. SOFTBILLED: 1, spl, for best British, Kirkwood, really tip-top Waxwing, not one of the largest, but put down in faultless condition, as smooth as glass, not a ruffled feather; 2, Baird, fine, steady, Missel Thrush, neatly and richly marked, good one; 3, Richardson, another of the same, fine and deep in col and markings, getting somewhat rough in legs now; 4, No. 5 (no name), very nice Blackbird, real amber beak, and faultless in its coat of deep jet, might perhaps have split the difference between 2nd and 3rd here. FOR.: 1, Hamilton, charming Glossy Starling, in the pink of condition, large and steady, well put down, what a pity such a grand exhibit should have a deformed toe! MULE OR HYBRID: 1, Parker, nice sized Jonque Linnet Mule, good type, and quality, wins, well put down; 2, Herd, nice Dark Yellow Goldie Mule, fine deep col, well staged; 3, Gorrie, nice Greenie Goldie, shows cross well, rather unsteady and inclined to bang on wires; 4, Miller and Eadie, another Goldie-Can., not one of the largest, but a gem for col; 5, Hutton; 6, Craig. SELL. (12/6): 1, Binnie; 2, Martin; 3, McIntosh; 4, Davie; 5, Cameron; 6, Herd.

FOLKESTONE.

This fixture, held Nov. 29 and 30, was favoured with nice weather on the opening day, and the committee had the cage birds grandly staged on one side of the Drill Hall in the coolest part of the building. The entry was but moderate, due, no doubt, to the oppression of the Southern Railway Companies, who will eventually kill their own traffic by the exacting conditions as to rates and charges. Surely railway companies are not so unmindful to profits as to be able to disregard the enormous revenue that show traffic, stock, and passengers yield them? The classification was too extensive, perhaps, for a fixture where one general secretary had to work up the entries. The quality, however, of the birds staged was good, Yorkshires being even better than the Norwich. Mr. Gamhrill, the secretary, is a capable organiser, and much of the success of the society is due to his untiring efforts. Mr. T. J. Ambrose judged.

NOR. CL. YELL. (4): 1, Taylor, nice col. and shape, just a tendency to be browy; 2, Taylor, good col. and feather, not quite as chubby as leader; 3, Gibbs, nice one, but a bit soft; vhc, Taylor. BUFF (5): 1, spl, best exhibit shown by a member, Taylor, rare shape, A1 feather and nicely frosted; 2, Gibbs, good shape body, nice wings and feather, loses only in col.; 3, Taylor, but for being a bit browed and not as well shown, a really good one; vhc, Ward; No. 689, ticked on neck. TKD., ETC. (7): 1, Taylor, yell. tkd. on shoulders, nice type, good col. and feather; 2, Ward, heavily mkd. buff, good shape and feather, nicely braced; 3, Gibbs, hot col. buff, tkd. on chest, grand feather, nice colour; vhc, Taylor; hc, Gibbs; c, Howard. HEN (5): 1, Gibbs, big, romping cl. yell., A1 feather and shape; 2, Taylor, buff, loses size, nice feather and quality; 3, Howard, yell., good col. and feather, loses only in head. NOR., BRED 1910 (5): 1, Gibbs, cl. yell., A1 shape, feather, and col., shown well; 2, Taylor, yell., nice col. and feather; 3, Taylor, buff, beaten only in shape, good feather and colour; vhc, Howard; hc, Taylor. YORKS. CL. YELL. CK. (6): 1, Reeve, rattling fine length, shape, and feather, stands well; 2, Owen, longer, but loses shape and position, does not brace himself up as nicely; 3, Taylor; Nos. 713 and 715, buffs, in wrong class. TKD., ETC. (7): 1, Taylor, Cinn. mkd. yell., beautiful shape, quality of feather, and condition; 2, Lockett, yell., hotter col., beaten only in length and style; 3, Johnson; vhc, Owen; hc, Rayner; c, Taylor. YORKS., BRED 1910 (11): 1, Lockett, buff tkd. on wing, racy and stylish, A1 leather and shape; 2, Lockett, cl. buff, lovely quality, not quite as long or stylish; 3, Leaver, yell., grand feather, not quite as well up on leg; vhc, Rayner; hc, Hendry; c, Gibbs; one bird in this class came in a little box, the cage having been sent empty; it was placed in the cage, but, naturally, it didn't make a brave show. LIZ. (4): 1, 2, 3, vhc, Wood, nice team, a good broken cap Gold leading. BORD. FCY. (6): 1, 2, 3, Dr. Bowes, very pretty trio, a topping little Cinn. leading, grand shape and feather, 2nd buff, loses only in feather and swagger; vhc, hc, Owen. SELL., £1 (5): 1, Gibbs; 2, Taylor; 3, Hendry. 15/- (6): 1, Wood; 2, Howard; 3, Taylor; No. 746, absent. 10/- (5): 1, Gibbs; 2, Brent; 3, Taylor. BRIT. SOFTBILL (4): 1, Brett, Crested Lark, in grand feather; 2, Brett, Pipit, very nice feather and condition; 3, Austin, Nuthatch, A1 col. and feather; vhc, Miss Hopwood. A.O.S. (6): 1, Wickham, topping Hawfinch, rare col., markings, well defined; 2, Leaver, another good one, not quite as steady; 3, no name, very nice Chaffinch, good col., steady; vhc, Brett; hc, Austin. Mr. Brett staged a very interesting team of Britishers, not for competition.

LYE (Stourbridge).

Eighth annual show, held Temperance Hall, Nov. 23 and 24. There was a real hardworking committee, but they had the very worst of luck, as the pens did not arrive on the morning of show, so they had to wire for some from a local firm. This upset all their arrangements, some of the exhibits not being staged till the following day. The entries in our section came up very bad indeed, as they did not average above two in a class, but no doubt the fact of their having a rabbit judge to award the cards accounted for this, and caused a lot of grumbling. The following are the awards, as near as we could make out from the cards on the cages. Mr. C. Ward judged.

NOR.: 1, r, Hingley, nice Cl. leading, good size and shape, short wings, r, another good bird of equal merit; vhc, Niblett. UNFLIG. (4): 1, 2, Niblett, Yell. and Buff, in order named, nice size, fine head and neck, good col., 2nd, excellent col. and quality, a wee bit long behind; 3, r, Hingley, two good ones, some thought the best in class, leader has the pull in head and neck. YORKS. (8): (These classes were amalg.): 1, 3, r, Raybould, 1st, nice length, position and quality, 3rd, good position, well filled neck and back; 2, Flavel, a nice bird, but surely a mistake in this position. CREST and C.B. (Amalg.): Only five birds in two classes, all belonging to Mr. Groves, who deserves every credit for sending such a team: 1, Varg. C., crest of good size, nice frontal, very neat centre, 2nd, eye and wing mkd., C.B. of rare size, good skull, plenty of feather, deserved its place. 3rd, Griz. Crest, very neat, loses only in length and quality to winner, all were very nicely shown. BRIT. CLASSES (All amalg.): The exhibitors did not like this, but what were the committee to do, there being only 8 birds in 5 classes? 1, Capewell, Waxwing in good feather, nicely shown; 2, 3, vhc, Hingley, grand team, Hawfinch leading, spleudid size, good bib, nice col. and condition, in its right place, 3rd, Goldfinch, grand blaze, lovely col., vhc, good Nightingale, in splendid bloom, some consider the judge missed the two best birds in class—the finest-plumaged Starling we ever saw staged, and a perfect Bullfinch, a picture to look upon. FOR. (Both classes amalg.) (9): 1, 2, vhc, Baker, 1st, pair of Javas, in nice plumage, 2nd, grand pair of Lavender Finches; 3, Hingley, good plumaged Amazon; r, Price. SELL., 10s. (4): 1, Groves; 2, Hingley; 3, Grazier.

LEYTON & DIST. C.B.A.

Fourth annual show, held Nov. 19 at Leyton Constitutional Club, High Road. There was a record entry of over 340 exhibits, the quality all over being really excellent. There was a splendid "gate," and the attendance was, we were informed, the very best the society have ever had. Messrs. Forse and Son, the Hon. Secs., were congratulated on all hands upon their able management of affairs, and to them undoubtedly is due much of the credit for the success of this fourth venture. Other officers: Messrs. Williamson (chairman), C. R. Carr (vice-chairman), C. H. Cooper, J. A. Bartlett, F. Wallace, A. T. Billingsley, A. W. Farmer, F. Marsball, J. Shankley, J. S. Roberts, H. Ovenden (treasurer), G. B. Leclair, and S. Griffin (auditors), and last, but by no means least, Mr. H. W. Burbidge, the assistant sec. Messrs. T. Heatb and J. Robson judged. Cups were won by Messrs. R. Farmer (two—one for best unflighted in Champ Section, and the challenge cup for best unlighted, presented by A. R. Wilson, Esq.), A. T. Billingsley (for best unflighted in amateur section), S. C. Rhodes (ditto Novice), H. C. Archer (ditto for Mule or Hyb.), and S. Griffin (for best British). Mr. Farmer also gets the Association diplomas (for champion and "Wilson" Cup winner), and other specials. Other special winners were, Messrs. Forse and Son, Williamson, Bennett, Cooper, Marley, Billingsley, Gravestock, Roberts, Rhodes, Skinner, Parr, Wallace, Taylor, Teasdale, Mills, Burbidge, Webb, Watcham, Walker, Morris, Archer, Griffin, and South.

S. LONDON COL. & F.A.

Annual show held Nov. 23, at the Baths, Old Kent Road, where a capital collection of cage birds was staged, many of the birds being fit for open competition of the keenest character. The quality all through was good, and did credit to the exhibitors. Mr. G. A. Jeffery's, the secretary, is an able official, and "knows the ropes" well, being admirably supported by Mr. G. H. Phillips. Mr. J. Robson judged.

HOUNSLOW.

Held in Public Baths Nov. 29th and 30th. Notwithstanding a splendid schedule, liberal prize-money, a capital room, and every possible inducement to exhibitors, the entry was a failure. So much so, as to be disheartening to the committee. The hon. secretary, Mr. D. J. Rees, is a gentleman admirably suited to the post, being methodical after the manner of Welshmen born, courteous and happy. The committee are all fanciers in one or the other sections of stock. Hounslow is easy to reach for Londoners, and also by railway, and the reason for the small entry is not easy to discover, except it be that of clashing. Anyway, only two classes were allowed to stand; these were judged by Mr. Geo. Gardner. The quality therein was very fine.

YORKS. (11): 1. Mole, typical Yell., nice position, plenty of nerve, good on the leg; 2, Huxley and Phipps, another Yell., trifle stronger in build, nice position; 3, Mrs. England, very neat and nice in leather; vhc, Cooper; hc, c, Mrs. England. NOVICE, NOR. CRESTS (amalg.) (18): 1, 2, Lack, leader Yell., 2nd, Buff Nor., both very rich quality, good type, col. level and well up, nicely posted; 3, 5, Gutteridge, two Crests, and both of them good size and neat birds; 4, vhc, hc, Priest, Plainheads, of fine shape and quality.

BARNET.

Eighth annual show of the Barnet and Dis. F. and F.S. held Town Hall, Nov. 26. The president is Lady Rachel Byng, whose interest in the society is very gratifying. In addition to the countenance given to the Fancy by her ladyship, there is that of a long list of influential vice-presidents, and a splendid working committee of which Mr. F. Pendletou is treasurer, and Mr. F. Chandler hon. secretary. The cage birds were staged in a separated room, which added to their comfort and the convenience of visitors. The entry was about the same as last year, and the quality all round was very good. Cup for best exhibit by a member in the cage bird section was won by Mr. G. T. Green with a typical Yorkshire, and amongst the other special winners were Messrs. E. Hills, A. Drage (2), and G. A. Parish. The attendance of visitors from Barnet and the district was numerous, and the interest shown cheering. No officials could have worked harder than the secretary and treasurer, and the ladies also rendered conspicuous help in the secretarial work Mr. Geo. Gardner judged.

NOR. (8): 1, 2 spls, vhc, c, Hills, the winner clear buff, typical, lovely undercolour and frostiug, short close feather, nice wing carriage, well shown; 2, r, hc, Bell, variog. buff leading, nice type, neat head, good quality feather, but just a little frec. YORKS. (6): 1, cup, spl, r, vhc, hc, Green, a straight nervy variog. yell. securing premier position, neat head, well up and nice behind the leg; c, Parker. NAT. COL. (9): 1, spl, 3, Drage, nice shapely buff Nor., soft and rich in texture of feather, and nice shape, head, and wing carriage; 2, Parker, good upstanding Yorkie, inclined to spread tail a little at times; r, Bell; vhc, hc, c, Parker. LINNET (9): And a good lot; 1, spl, 3, Parish, winner steady, rich col., nicely mkd, needs only a little polishing to take front rank; 2, Gardener, nicely polished, not quite so lusty or so well mkd., yet good; r, Mileman; vhc, Nott; hc, King; c, Dulk. GOLDIE, ETC. (6): 1, r, Gardener, nice faced and barred Goldie, steady and lustrous; vhc, King; hc, c, Nott. MULE (5): 1, hc, Drage, leader variog. Greenfinch-Canary, of good size and fair col.; r, Vergottini; vhc, Hills. A.O.S. BRIT. (6): 1, Gardener, a very smart, rich coloured, close feathered Greenfinch, about the best British bird in the show, staged in the pink of feather; r, c, Colburn; vhc, Beard; hc, spl, Drage SELL., 12/6 (5): 2, r, Hills; vhc, bc, Parker.

BERWICK-ON-TWEED.

The 4th annual exhibition was held Nov. 24th. Entries all over showed a balance to the right side compared with former years, and, if capable management and courtesy go for anything to help this society hold its own, fanciers can depend on getting them here. The Corn Exchange in which the show was held is one of the best lighted halls we have been in, and is well heated. The exhibits were tastefully staged, and without being crowded too close, gave the benches a full appearance. All fanciers on the committee gave the best of assistance, and birds were quickly dispatched on the evening of the show, so as to reach their destinations that night. President, Mr. H. G. M'Creath; vice-president, Mr. J. E. Carr; chairman, Mr. W. R. M'Creath; hon. secretaries, Messrs. Smart and Gray; committee, Messrs. G. Hogarth, J. L. M'Creath, J. Brigham, A. Suthern, T. McDonald, R. Armstrong, J. Heriot, J. Wright, J. Tenby, A. Hay, W. Hay, T. Walker, A. Arnott, A. Thompson, C. Makins, and J. Whitlie. This society may well be proud of having so painstaking fanciers at the head of management as Messrs. J. Smart and Gray, and everything was done necessary for the comfort of the exhibits and exhibitors alike. Mr. J. F. Dewer (Edinburgh) judged the Scotch Fancies, Norwich and Brit., while Mr. H. Bennet (Kelso) had the handling of the Border Fancy classes; and their awards gave general satisfaction. Messrs. Thompson Bros. (Scremerston) secured cup for best bird (confined), with a very fine buff Scotch Fancy cock; Mr. A. G. Cameron (Kelso) won special for best Norwich with a very fine chubby buff cock. The B.F.C.C. medal was won by Messrs. Duncan and Logan with a clear buff hen, shown in grand condition.

CORK.

Cork C.B.A. annual show, held Assembly Rooms, Nov. 23-24. The room is an ideal one for a show. The birds were nicely staged, and great credit is due to the hon. sec., Mr. J. A. Tuckey, for the attention he paid to the exhibits. The Yorkshires turned up well and the British bird classes were well filled. Mr. W. Mundell (Bradford) placed the cards.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Twenty-first annual show of Sunderland C.B.A. was held Nov. 19th, St. Peter's Hall, Green Street, a really grand hall for the purpose, being lofty and large, and capable of accommodating the largest shows, and quite free from draughts. Entries came up well, totalling about 300. Norwich, Lizards, Borders, and Yorkshires were the strongest sections, and in these classes were found several well known winners, especially amongst the Lizards, these classes containing all the recent winners at the big Northern shows. The exhibits were all staged in rows two tiers high, and made a really grand display. The hon. secretary, Mr. J. Jeffrey, had all the arrangements well in hand, and, being well supported by a hard-working body of fanciers, everything passed off without the slightest hitch, judging being completed and the show opened to the public in good time. There was a grand array of specials, including four silver cups, and the principal special winners were Mr. James Walker, who secured silver cup for best bird in show with a really grand Crest-bred (1910), that would take some stopping anywhere; Dr. O'Neil won the 21/- special for best bird, other than Crest or C.B., with a grand yell. Yorks. Mr. W. Reid won silver cup for most points with five nominated birds; and Mr. H. Fenwick silver cup for most points in old bird classes, and also the silver cup for most points in young bird classes. Sandiford's medal was won by Mr. J. Riseborough, and Mr. W. F. Swan secured special for most points in Crest section. Mr. T. Dixon (Bedlington) judged, and his awards were well received.

ATTERCLIFFE.

Annual show held Nov. 19, at Friends' Adults' School, Leeds-road. The room was an ideal place for a showroom, being well lighted by large windows all along both sides, and, at night well lit up by gas; it is lofty and airy, and the weather being cold it was gently heated by a very efficient hot-water apparatus. Entries were good (though not a record), considering the very indifferent season experienced by many of the members. The management was all that could be desired, the secretary having every item of information at his fingers' tips. The president, Mr. L. Havenhand, was in attendance, and he and Mr. B. Welbon did yeoman service, and rendered the secretary, Mr. Richinson, every assistance, and also the members generally. Special winners: For the first time in the history of the society, a handsome solid silver cup (very generously given by the treasurer, Mr. H. Justice), was competed for, and was well won by a splendid team of young birds owned and bred and well staged by our honorary president, Mr. L. Havenhand. For the best members' Norwich, W. Richinson; ditto Yorks., L. Havenhand; ditto Novice Norwich, J. Hibberson; ditto, Yorks., H. Thornhill; ditto Nor. Unflig., F. L. Beamer; ditto Yorks., F. Hinchcliffe; best Can., J. Hibberson; best British bird, J. Williamson; 2nd best bird in Gift Class, W. Blunt; Sandiford's sp., L. Havenhand; Ramsden's spl., J. Hibberson; most points gained, L. Havenhand; British classes, G. WINDHILL, SHIPLEY.

Windhill, Shipley and Dist. O.S. 24th annual open show, held in Carnegie Library Hall, Windhill, November 26th, a total number of 375 birds being staged in the 25 classes provided, giving an average of 15 per class; the total number of exhibitors was 166. The show was held under the rules of the Yorkshire Union, and the patronage of the Yorkshire C.C. Specials were given for most points in each class, and one for best novice bird, this latter being secured by Mr. R. Wade. Mr. H. H. Towers secured medal for best coloured bird, also members' special for most points gained by a member. Mr. R. Garnett and Mr. J. Cook (joint secretaries) had things well in hand for the comfort both of the birds and visitors, and were greatly helped by a large committee, cards being up and the show open in good time. Mr. P. Mason (Windhill) was the official judge, he being assisted by Mr. H. W. Battye (Huddersfield), the former, of course, taking all open classes, and the latter the two selling classes only.

LAUNCESTON.

Annual show of the Launceston F.A. held Nov. 28th, Market Hall, a spacious building, admirably adapted for the purpose. The cage bird section was accommodated in a corner of the showroom and the birds numbered just over 170 exhibits. Owing to lack of support several classes were cancelled, although the committee had somewhat generously arranged the classification. The birds on view were generally of very good quality, some well known West Country exhibitors patronising the show. The novice class especially contained some excellent birds, as also did the Goldfinch and Local classes. Mr. N. Reed is a painstaking and genial secretary, and was ably assisted in the cage bird section by Messrs. F. Bright, T. Jasper, and C. Sargent, Jnr. Mr. Thos. Pope (Plymouth) judged.

OTLEY O.S.

Show held Nov. 26th, club room, Queen's Head Hotel, and proved a great success in every way. The exhibits were well staged and made a nice display. Yorkshires and Norwich were a good lot, and made a fine display, special for best bird going to Messrs Thornton and Laughey. Special for most points throughout season went to same exhibitors, also special for best vhc bird. Mr. Bona obtained 2nd post points, and J. Casling 3rd. The committee are a hard-working set of fanciers, and deserve their success. The hon. sec., Mr. J. Thomas, is the right man in the right place, and had everything working as smoothly as clockwork, and was most tactful, courteous, and obliging. The awards were made by Mr. J. Willman, and were well received.

LOCHORE & GLENCRAIG.

Second annual show held 26th Nov. The cage bird section was a great improvement on last year's. Scotch Fancies, although allotted 9 classes, only mustered an entry of 2, and 1 only was on exhibition. When Show Committees cut these classes out, fanciers have only themselves to blame. Norwich, Crests, and Crestbreds, although not large in numbers, were high-class, and competition was very keen. Mr. Lambie, who judged in place of Mr. Ferguson (who unfortunately was unable to attend owing to illness) handled these varieties in his masterly fashion, being an old breeder and exhibitor of this variety, and after carefully weighing up their respective points, pleased the majority. The Yorkshires were good. Cup for best bird belonging to a member was secured by a splendid yell. hen put down in rare order by Mr. Taylor, and the win was very popular. Hyde's special was secured by a good Crested hen, shown by Mr. Sneddon. These rarities were judged by Mr. Lambie, and his awards met with universal approval. Borders, Mules, and British, were the feature of the show, some toppers being out, and competition in many of the classes was very keen. Borders all over were hot, and the medal was secured by a good foul buff cock shown in faultless order by Mr. Gilchrist, the runner-up being a grand all-round yell. cock. Mules and British were good. Spl. for best shown by a member was secured by Mr. A. Anderson with a good Goldfinch. These classes were judged by Mr. J. W. Bruce, and his awards were well received. The committee are composed of good all-round fanciers, and they had everything in apple-pie order. The secretarial duties were in the hands of an old fancier, Mr. Peel, who carried out his duties without a hitch. The show was well patronised.

WIGAN.

Wigan and Dist. C.B.S. annual show (under C.B.U. rules), held Nov. 20th and 20th. The Legs of Man Assembly Room, which has nice light, good size, free from draughts, and centrally situated, was utilised for the purpose. The committee of management consists of a capital band of workers, ably led by Mr. E. Ball (chairman). Mr. J. Webster acts as vice-chairman, proving himself a very capable official. The treasurer is Mr. H. Young, assist. see Mr W. Dyer, both of whom are assets to the Society. Mr. W. Ridge, the secretary, is evidently the right man in the right place. A more courteous, energetic, and true fancier one cannot wish to meet with. Staging was of a nice description. Stewards Messrs. Dyer, Ball, Fairhurst, Partridge and Roberts, all worked well and efficiently. The entry totalled 330. Yorkshires were nice, and Norwich made a capital display. Borders, Mules, and Variety added to the attraction, and the Britishers were excellent. The Foreign, too, found many admirers. Members' classes contained many quite capable of doing themselves justice, had they been displaying their qualities in the "higher circles." Hyde's special was captured by Mr. H. Young. Members' grand amateur challenge cup, Mr. E. Ball. Judges, Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) and Mr. J. W. Metcalfe (Liverpool). Both appeared happy in their selections which were well received.

CITY OF DUNDEE.

City of Dundee and Dist. C.B.S. annual show, held City Assembly Rooms, Nov. 26. The total entry was 500 exhibits. The offending sections were the Crests, Plainheads, and Border Fancies, while the Scotch Fancies and British birds were well up to standard. Although back in numbers, the Crests staged were of a very high standard. Mr. J. Hector (Aberdeen) had a grand team forward, and cleverly annexed all four firsts for old birds, while his now famous crested hen carried off Hyde's special. Norwich Plainheads were a good all-round lot, the northern fanciers being out in strength, but where were the West Country exhibits? Scotch Fancies were strong, and of the right stamp, but the Border section turned out a disappointment, all the best-known teams being absent. Mules and British, as usual, proved the greatest attraction, and competition was very keen; Mr. Arright was set a stiff task to sort them out. The foreign bird classes were cut out this year. We would enjoin all Dundee fanciers to rally round their painstaking secretary, Mr. Miller, who has done so much for the Fancy in this district, and we have no doubt that by next year they will be back to full strength. Special winners: Silver cup for best young Scotch Fancy cock, D. Low; hen, W. Allan; Crest or C.-B., J. Veitch; wild bird (confined to members), Dickie and Smith. Judges: Crests and Crest-Breds, Mr. G. F. Adamson (Kilmarnock); Plainheads, Mr. J. Winter (Edinburgh); Scotch Fancies, Messrs. R. Wright (Greenock), and J. Stenhouse (Kelty). Border Fancies, Mr. G. Hyslop (Stirling); and British birds, Mr. L. J. Arrighi (Edinburgh).

UDDINGSTON.

Uddingston and Dist. O.S. third annual show held Royal Hotel Hall, November 26th. Office-bearers: President, T. Prentice, Esq.; vice-presidents, H. Dornan, Esq., and G. Munro, Esq.; treasurer, Mr. J. Sheppard; secretary, Mr. J. Kilpatrick; committee, Messrs. W. Young, D. Wilson, J. Bowman, T. Hope, W. Taylor, W. Nisbet, And. Nisbet, R. Young, J. Junor, A. Junor, J. Mackay, and W. P. Campbell. Judges: Nor. Section, Mr. H. Malcolmson (Glasgow); Brit. Section, Mr. G. Marlin (Hamilton); Yorks. Section, Mr. R. B. Gibb (Glasgow); Scot. Fancy, Mr. A. Hamilton (Caldercruix). The entries mustered 450, being in advance of last year's total by 150 for 53 classes. The Royal Hall was today taxed to its utmost limit. The staging being erected down the centre of the hall, showed the exhibits to perfection, and proved a distinct advantage to the visitors and fanciers, who came in large numbers. The arrangements for the conduct of the show were of the very best description, and much credit is due to the secretary, Mr. J. Kilpatrick, and the president, James Prentice, Esq., who were ably supported by a hard-working committee of fanciers. The show was under the patronage of the Yorkshire C.C. of Scotland. The exhibits in the various classes were a choice lot, some very handsome birds being staged. Norwich and Borders were also good classes, some very typical birds being staged. The judges were through in good time. With very few exceptions their awards met with general satisfaction.

Straw, W. Cliff, J. Gregory, W. Eaton G. E. Shaw, C. Martin, A. Thompson, J. Martin, R. Smith, and Keightley. The chairman, Mr. H. Hunt, and Mr. E. Bardsley (vice-chair) are a couple of very able controllers. The treasurer is Mr. H. Marriott. Mr. Tbos. Smith, the worthy secretary, is ono of tbe "right metal"; be is a worker, and a true fancier, most courteous and obliging, and his heart and soul are in tbe well-being of the society. For a good number of years has it been our good luck to attend this fixture, and on every occasion the management throughout has been superb. The stewards were Messrs. J. Gregory, J. H. Booth, W. Eaton, ft. Smitb, W. Henshaw, and S. Keigbtley. Each and everyono deserves praise for the very able manner in which be officiated. Norwich made a nice collection, Mr. W. Vardy showing a very fine team of birds, capturing no less than four 1sts, four 2nds, three 3rds, and one 4th with 14 entries. Yorkshires were nice, and the Crests and C.B.s contained an eye-opener or two. The members' classes contained a few very fine specimens capable of running well in open competition. Sandiford's special went to Mr. W. Vardy. The Hybrids, British, and Foreign classes made a very good and interesting section, containing many really excellent birds. A fine number of "cracks" were on view, and although the birds were not here in quite so large numbers as last year, some were very notable for quality and condition. Bullfinches, Goldfinches, Siskins, and Redpolls were far above ordinary merit, and the rest of the classes were quite up to the present-day average, and gave the committee and visitors alike great satisfaction to see such excellent quality. They were a fine display. Judges, Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) and Mr. C. Houlton (St. Helens). Their awards were well received.

New Address—

I WANT TO SELL YOU the Books on Birds I publish for three reasons:—

1. Because they are profitable to me. 2. Because they are profitable to you. 3. Because they will profit your pets.

WHY SHOULD YOU BUY THESE BOOKS? Are you one of those people who believe themselves superior to books? If you are this announcement is of no interest to you, but if so you are in the minority. Books form the simplest and best way of communicating knowledge broadcast, economically and effectively, and long ago it was recognised by the mass of mankind that without books civilisation and progress are impossible. The savage has no books. That is a fact that speaks for itself. And when you come across a birdkeeper who is content to feed and manage his birds in ignorance of other people's customs and ideas, you may be certain that those birds are not being kept on the most up-to-date and approved principles.

INVERNESS.

Inverness O.A. 30th annual show held November 23rd, this year in the Rose-street Drill Hall, which proved an excellent place for a bird show, it being well lighted from the top, in the daytime, and by electricity at night. A most generous schedule was issued, and fully deserved the liberal response it received. F. J. Ford, Esq. (Unionist candidate for Inverness Burghs) declared the show open in a very appropriate speech. The staging was built at a height which enabled the birds to be examined without crouching to do so, and as they were in single tiers, this was the rule all over. The Norwich were by far the choicest collection ever seen at this ex type. Crests and Crest-breds were not as good as in previous years, but the Borders and Yorks are steadily improving both in quality and numbers. The tragedy of the show was the entire absence of Scotch Fancies, not one being staged. It is not so many years ago that 18 classes were provided, and well supported, so "buck up," ye lovers of the nervy Scotties. The Britishers made a good show. Todd's cup fell to Mr. G. Hutchinson, and it now becomes his own property. Mr. A. Smith secured the handsome special for best Cun., with a promising young Crest, and Messrs. W. and R. Duncan's Linet was adjudged the best Britisher. Too much praise cannot be given the secretary, Mr. A. Urquhart, nor his assistant, Mr. T. Sutherland, their never-ceasing efforts being no doubt responsible for the success of the exhibition. The committee, however, were not idle; one and all worked like niggers. President G. Mackenzie; vice-president, G. Dorward; committee, Messrs. G. Dunbar, A. Smith, E. Chisholm, F. Stanford, G. W. Mackenzie, G. G. Smith, A. Mackenzie, A. Smith, G. Duncan, W. Duncan, G. Hutchinson, A. Sanderson, T. Murphy, H. Maclean, G. Goodall, H. Potter, J. D. Clark, D. Falconer, D. Dallas, T. Urquhart, E. Todd, jun., R. T. Urquhart, D. Innes, M. Shaw, D. Owens, D. Fraser, A. Morrison, H. Fraser, G. T. Scott, A. Morganti, D. Anderson. The judge, Mr. Alex. Steele (Aberdeen) got through in good time, and his efforts were well received.

The Critique.

YORKS. CK. (7): 1, Maclean, well shaped, long buff; 2, Duncan, yell., close up, good length of limb, takes right angle; 3, 6, Mackenzie, former very long same type as 1st; 4, Bradie, shimmer than winners, little hard in col.; 5, Macphail, real Yorks. all over, some thought might have got the red. DARLINGTON.

Darlington C.B.S. 6th annual show, held Corn Exchange November 26th. The management was in the hands of Messrs. Todd, jun., and Underwood, who are deserving of praise for the excellent arrangements made. They were ably assisted by the members. Entries came up splendidly and totalled 497. The Yorkshire classes, as usual this year at Northern shows, were strong in numbers, and grand in quality. The only unfortunate incident of the show occurred in this section. The judge awarded 1st to a tacked yellow, and afterwards "wrong classed" it, as he could not find the tick; the same bird, at the first Darlington show was shown as a clear, and "wrong classed" by Mr. Mundell, as it is very slightly ticked on thigh. The owner of the bird later in the day found and pointed out the tick, and we understand claims the award. Norwich were not so strong in numbers, but some very nice birds were staged. The variety and pair classes were first rate, but it was not everyone who quite agreed with the judge in awarding practically all the prizes to Creste. British made a grand display, numbers and quality alike being great, and the competition very keen. Mr. R. Halliday judged all Canaries, and Mr. J. Maddison the British, Foreign and Mules.

MUIRKIRK.

Muirkirk O.S. annual exhibition, held 26th Nov., Temperance Hall. The hall is a very cosy and comfortable one for the purpose. The society does not aim at great dimensions, and what struck the visitor very forcibly on scanning the catalogue was the number of classes that were "stuck at six." All the twelve classes for cage birds were devoted to the Border Fancy, undoubtedly the favourite species around here, with the exception of one for British; and no fewer than five were "stuck at six," and three under that number. Mr. Walker (Lesmahagow) had quite a field day, capturing five first prizes, as well as being runner up in several of the classes. The single class for Britishers did not fill so well as might have been expected. Mr. Torbett, the secretary, had arrangements well made, and was assisted by a committee whose desire was to see that everything was done for the comfort of exhibits, exhibitors, and visitors alike, and in this they were eminently successful. The judge was Mr. Calderwood (Dumfries), whose awards were well received.

SALE.

Third annual show, held Nov. 25 and 26, Technical Schools, a very well lighted room all round, and equal to accommodating 1,000 birds. Some 500 entries were obtained, which made up a fine show. Norwich in the open classes were disappointing, only 16 birds in 5 classes provided, three of the classes having to be cancelled. A remarkable thing this in Manchester district, and Mr. W. Yardy the judge, too. Yorkshires were good in quality, as also were the Greens, both Yorkshires and Norwich. The Border Greens were well represented in both quantity and quality. Amateur Norwich classes filled very well, and keen competition resulted. The Border Fancy classes were nicely filled, and contained some of the cream of the country. Hybrids and British birds were very fine and a strong feature of the show, as also were the foreign bird classes. Some beautiful specimens graced the show benches here. A really classy lot of birds were in the last three sections, and very keen was the competition. A good set of officials ably carried out the work. Messrs. W. Fildes, F. Field, Grny, Wood, Dunkley, Grillith, Whitney, Critchley, with Mr. J. Irlam as hon. sec., and Mr. J. Raynes and others, all did good service; but to Mr. Irlam is due most of the praise. Mr. Yardy judged Norwich and Yorkshires, and Mr. Houlton the remainder.

The open novice classes (both Norwich and Yorkshire) were well patronised, and included many birds which could hold their own in the open. The show was splendidly managed and arranged, everything possible being done for the welfare of the exhibits and visitors. Such secretaries as Mr. Irlam, by the way, are and must be a valuable asset of any society. The attendance we were pleased to see was very good on the Saturday afternoon, and amongst other well-known fanciers present we noticed Messrs. W. Hales (Liverpool), R. Barker (Widnes), R. Braybrook (Brierfield), J. Raynes (Chorlton), S. Cook (Manchester), A. Royle (Manchester), H. Wilson (Manchester), H. Jones (Eccles secretary), W. Bayley (Altrincham), J. M. Walsh (Blackburn), and P. Harrison (Altrincham).

Mr. Houlton's Classes.

CL., ETC., BORD. (14): 1, 4, Ireland, grand pair, former typical, beauty, tight as wax, very jaunty carriage and condition; 4th, little more cobby, fine feather, etc.; 2, Mrs. R. Harrison, very like 1st in all points and hard to separate, lovely quality; 3, vbc, Bayley, grand pair, 3rd tkd. on neck, stylish and jaunty, A1 quality, shape and condition; bc, Royle; c, Hawkins. BUFF (14): 1, 3, Bayley, lovely quality pair, rare type and carriage, and tight feather and condition; 2, Hawkins, quite up to standard, full of merit all through; 4, Ireland, well up to others, runs very tight on heels of 3rd, right stamp; vbc, Royle; bc, Mrs. R. Harrison; c, Sampson. YELL. HEN (11): 1, Sampson, very compact type, style, quality, and condition; 2, 4, c, Bayley, fine trio, all in the pink of form, leader slightly in best all-round condition; 3, Ireland, longer in type than 1st, grand carriage and condition; vbc, Royle; bc, Herring; (w.c., J. Walker, Green Border by mistake). BUFF (10): 1, 3, Ireland, lovely correct typical birds, in splendid tight form, gay, jaunty carriage, wings and tail fine, cl.; 2, 4, Bayley, tick neck, and a cl., both tip-top hens, all the four very even and much like to each other in type and quality and carriage; vbc, Royle; bc, Hawkins; c, Drinkwater; w.c., J. Walker, Green Border. VARIEG. (11): 1, spl, Bayley, fine crack typical varieg. yell., in the best possible condition, we were told had won several recent 1sts under several judges, grand bird all over it; 2, Royle, buff of A1 quality, nice neat carriage and fine feather; 3, Mrs. R. Harrison, yell., smaller, but very smart and gay, stylish carriage and condition; 4, c, Booth, nice yell., just beaten in condition a little; vbc, bc, Sampson; Nos. 1, 3, and 4 in this class, each slightly tkd. on left wing, were wrong classed, they should have been shown in the clear or lightly tkd. class. The E. and W.B.F.C. Rule says: "Birds marked on both eyes or both wings to be allowed to compete in foul or ticked classes." As this denotes that a two-pointed bird is defined as a ticked bird, it seems to follow that a one-pointed bird is still more so a ticked bird. They were three grand ticked Borders, and looked like ticket-winners in their right class. CINN. BORD. (8): 1, Cubby, real yell., gem in all points, well tinished; 2, Royle, sound buff, grand type and quality; 3, Bayley, pretty yell., wee shade finer; 4, Mrs. Fildes, another smart yell.; vbc, bc, Roberts, also very neat; c, Wood. SELF., ETC., YELL. GREEN (16): Grand all round lot; 1, 3, Mrs. Fildes, lovely pair, particularly winner, best of type and carriage, and sound, solid, sweet tone of col., very level throughout; 2, Clayton, very smart jaunty carried bird, well wrapped up, fine level col. and condition; 4, G. Green, wee shade lighter at sides in col., but rest of col., type and condition all there; vbc, Forrest; bc, c, Johnson. BUFF (16): Very level good lot; 1, G. Green, very tight condition, lovely shape and col., full of bloom, rare carriage; 2, Cubby, wee shade longer, but proportioned well, grand col., feather and condition; 3, Bayley, good typo and even col., not quite so tight as others when we saw it; 4, Young, much like former in shape, col., and quality, nice carriage, etc.; vbc, Mrs. Fildes; bc, Wood; c, Clayton. YELL. HEN (14): Really a smart set; 1, Clayton, very smart self, tight feather, rare carriage, sweet shape, sound col.; 2, Bayley, foul throat, fine level colour and good shape, style and finish, in condition; 3, c, Johnson, shade more substance, grand col., carriage, and condition; 4, bc, Mrs. Fildes, fine col., good carriage, shape and condition; vbc, G. Green. BUFF (9): 1, Brinkwater, a gem of a hen, col., shape, quality, carriage, and condition excelling; 2, 4, G. Green, very like 1st, same description, suits well; 3, Clayton, shade paler col., but right type, etc.; vbc, Johnson; bc, Bayley; c, Amos; latter, and some in previous classes looked good birds a bit down in condition, probably travelling delayed them getting conditioned time enough. BRIT. GOLDFINCH (13): 1, J. Walsh, noted winner, looking well to-day, fine expanse of blaze, sound col. throughout, nice moons, good body condition; 2, Fielding, is improving, also a recent winner, good even deep col., shade smaller than 1st; 3, J. M. Walsh, nicely tanned body, good blaze, fine moons and bars, in lovely condition; 4, Hunter, very close up, and has all the properties of former; vbc, Davies, hardly so tight at the moment as we have seen him; bc, Beaty, very neat; c, Almond, good, paler in colours. BULLFINCH (8): 1, 3, J. Walsh, pair of beauties, to-day in prime condition; 2, J. M. Walsh, very smart bird, runs a hard race for premier honours; 4, Nicholas, smartly built Bullie, not quite as solid when we saw it as leaders; vbc, Davies, bit looser in feather to-day; bc, Gibbic; c, Handley. BRAMBLE, ETC. (8): 1, J. M. Walsh, prettily mkd. Bramble, good col., size, quality, and conditiou; 2, T. and J. Kearton, really fine Chaffinch, in rare bloom and condition; 3, Beaty, about the best Bramble, but carries a bad tail feather to-day; 4, Crane, smaller Chaffinch, smart in feather; vbc, Taylor; bc, Nicholas; c, Alcock. LINNET (18): Very strong class of good birds; 1, Tams and Son, fine bird in every way, col., shape, markings, and condition all good; 2, Davies, tight run with leader, looks smart and prim to-day; 3, Gale, very fine cobby body, equal to others except perhaps in width of head; 4, J. Walsh, A1 markings, nice shape, feather and condition; vbc, Alcock; bc, T. and J. Kearton; c, Whitney and Son. GREENFINCH (13): 1, 4, Beaty, pair of real beauties, well finished; 2, Fairhurst, fine bold bird, A1 quality and condition; 3, J. Walsh, good col. yell., bit rougher feather when we saw it; vbc, Whitney and Son; bc, Davies; c, Hemmings and Brereton. REDPOLL (16): A first-rate lot, too; 1, Morgan, slashing fine Mealy, splendidly mkd., and as tight as possible in condition; 2, Fairhurst, equally smart Lesser Jonque, polished like satin, rare bib, markings, col., and shape; 3, Nicholas, very neat, runs very close to 2nd in all points; 4, vbc, J. M. Walsh, good pair, runs well up to others in condition, etc.; bc, Alcock; c, Taylor, more good ones could not quite get in the tickets here. SISKIN, ETC. (11): 1, Fielding, pretty nat. col. Siskin, graud size, shape, cap, bib, markings, body colour, and condition; 2, c, Nicholas, very good Twite, well mkd., and in nice sound feather and condition; 3, Hunter, good Siskin, fed, not quite the size and condition of 1st; 4, Alcock, good Twite, wants training a little; vbc, J. M. Walsh; bc, Almond. HARDBILLS, A.O.S. (7): 1, Gale, a grand Yell. Bunting, beautifully mkd., fine size, shape, and condition, really fine specimen; 2, J. Walsh, very decent Snow Bunting, wee bit dull over plumage; 3, J. M. Walsh, smart Yellow Buuting, and runs good race for honours; 4, Beaty, very big nat. col. Yellow Bunting, right sort to stock for show purposes; vbc, bc, no name; c, Whitney and Son. SMALL SOFT-BILLS (4): 1, J. Walsh, grand Nightingale; 2, 3, 4, J. M. Walsh, very tight Grey Wagtail, in perfect feather, good Pipit and a Yellow Wagtail following. THRUSH, ETC. (8): 1, Hemmings and Brereton, finely spotted Thrush, good size, shape, col., and condition, steady and well shown; 2, Beaty, very fine Blackbird, in good plumage, nice eye cere and beak, etc.; 3, bc, J. Gray, large, profusely spotted Starling, lustre not quite up yet; 4, Lambert, very good steady Skylark; vbc, Alcock; c, Whitney and Son. A.O.S.: 1, 2, J. M. Walsh, Great Grey Shrike, in perfect condition, and fine Chough. LIGHT HYBRIDS (6): 1, 2, J. M. WHITBY.

Whitby F.S. 25th annual show, held November 23, Market Hall, a grand hall for the purpose, being free from draughts, although cold in November. Everything was in good order, as Mr. Tomlinson, the secretary, knows well how to run a show successfully. He has experienced exhibitors to help him in Collector Jackson and Messrs. Stamp, T. Calam, Porritt, Watmough, and Marland. The entry (191 17 classes) must be considered good, taking the weather into account. The quality in some classes was excellent. The formation of the show Bullfinch class, where no less than 26 [illegible] and many really first class birds had to stand. We have seen nearly all the champion Bullfinches out this season, but have seen nothing to equal the 1st and 2nd in this class. In the Mule class "an old face in new hands" won; this bird always reminds us of poor Ward, of Uttoxeter, a genius for hybrid breeding, who died about 18 months ago. Crests and Yorkshires were above the average. Mr. H. Tams (Longton) judged.

The Critique.

YORKS. CL., ETC., YELL. (16): 1, pl. Watts, very fine, long, stylish bird; 2, 3, Watmough, correct type, sweet bird, well staged, beaten only in length, 3rd similar bird, close up; 4, Messrs. E. Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made pnyable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

THERE'S ONE THING

you don't get with any of my appliances; that is the "hump." All are made by practical men, who thoroughly understand their business, and no expense is spared to make every article thoroughly up-to-date and durable. I have repeatedly said that my goods are far better than any others on the market, but I should like you to test the truth of this statement by having goods from me on approval similar articles from elsewhere, and if mine are not much better value, smash them up and I will refund money in full. A practical test such as this is worth more than pages of idle boastings. Clapnets, made from genuine ¾in. mesh thread netting, very fine but strong, 3 yards long, 5½ft. deep, 4 feet fly, 4/- pair; ditto, 4 yards, 5/-, 5 yards 6/-, 6 yds. 7/-, 7 yds. 8/-, 8 yds. 9/-, 9 yds. 10/-, 10 yds. 11/- per pair. All have two nets to the pair, and each net is guaranteed full measurement as above, and all fitted complete with improved fittings consisting of stavepoles, pegs, lines, etc., ready for immediate use. Please note the improved fittings sent with my clap nets makes them work far better than the old-fashioned sockets, iron trash. Loose netting made from 60 s/3 cord thread, ¾in. mesh, same as used in above clap nets, 7 feet deep, 3d. yard; 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; 12 feet deep, 5d. yard, all post free. Real Japancse bird lime, absolutely strongest lime made, guaranteed to hold in rain, ¼lb. 6d., ½lb. 10d., 1lb. 1/6, sample 3d., all packed in airtight lever lid cannisters and sent post free. Self-acting spring net traps, 24inc. by 18ins., 1/- each; ditto, 18ins. by 14ins., 9d. each. These net traps are different to all others, as they can be baited for hard and softbills at same time, and can be used with call bird inside if desired. Single trap cages, 6d. each; double ditto, 1/-; treble ditto, 1/3, all with separate compartment for call bird. Patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages, guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each. Round or square-topped calling cages, all wire tops and wood bottoms, 4d. each, 3/- dozen. Specially spun Italian hemp pull lines, free from snarl, and strong as boat lines, 68 yards long, 1/4 each, carriage paid. Improved Bat folding Sparrow nets, fitted on 17 feet bamboo poles, 5/6; ditto, on 17 feet poles, 6/-; ditto, on 19 feet poles, 6/6 pair. These Sparrow nets are a vast improvement on the old-fashioned idea, being a better shape, much more effective and more portable. Lark nets, flirt pegs, poles and lines, and hundreds of other articles in stock. Send stamp for full list of catcher's appliances, which also gives hints on net making. Please note, all the leading catchers of the day are using appliances supplied by me throughout England, Canada, Africa, America, India, and other places abroad. They have recognised that the day is past for the old-fashioned appliances, and so use those that are hang up to date as supplied by me. See last issue for few testimonials; or, better still, send a furniture van, and I will fill it with unsolicited testimonials received from delighted users of my nets, etc.

FAIRY TALES

may be all right in their place, but that place is not in this paper. I do not make use of a lot of nonsensical bombast to induce you to purchase from me. I would much rather you saw the birds and satisfy yourself that they are exactly what you require, and for this reason I send everything I sell on approval at my own risk, either on receipt of cash or deposit system of this paper, and if not satisfactory, birds have only to be returned, and back comes your money. No quibbling about me whatever. You return birds and I return money, that's straight enough isn't it? I have a spendid lot of Worcestershire cock Goldfinches, all in pink of health and condition, and full colour, at 2/- each, 3 5/-, 6 9/-, 12 17/-; selected, larger cocks, guaranteed in song, 2/6 and 3/- each, 3 6/6, 6 12/-; real exhibition specimens, 4/- and 5/- each; Hen Goldfinches, 1/- each, 3 2/6; real Siberian cock Goldfinches, in perfect condition, and full free song, 5/- and 6/- each; few specially large birds for Muling and showing, 7/6 and 10/- each; grand lot cock Bullfinches, 1/6 and 2/- each, 3 4/6, 6 7/6; selected cocks, for exhibition, 3/-, 4/- and 5/- each; hen Bullfinches, 1/- each, 3 2/6, 6 4/6; selected large, rich-coloured hens, 1/6 each; splendid lot genuine hand reared German hen Bullfinches, finger-tame, ideal birds for hybridising, 4/- and 5/- each; enormous stock of cocks brown Linnets, in superb condition, all guaranteed red-breasted, 8d. each, 3 1/6, 6 2/6, 12 4/-; specially picked, larger cocks, for contest singing and Mule breeding, 1/- each, 3 2/6, 6 4/-; exhibition specimens, exquisitely pencilled, and of correct type, 2/6 each. Please note I handle about 100 dozen of cock Linnets weekly, and supply most of the Lancashire and Yorkshire dealers and Linnet singers, so no man has a better chance of getting exhibition Linnets than myself. Cock Siskins, 2/- each, 3 5/-, 6 9/-; hen Siskins, 1/- each, 3 2/6, 6 4/-; cock Chaffinches, 8d. each, 3 1/6, 6 2/6, 12 4/-; exhibition specimens, 1/6 and 2/6 each; cock Greenfinches, 6d. each, 3 1/-, 6 1/6; exhibition specimens 1/- each; very large cock or hen mealy Redpolls for Muling and Hybridising, 1/-, 1/6 and 2/- each; Lesser Redpolls, 6d. each, 3 1/3, 6 2/-; cock Goldfinch Mules, in full song, day and gaslight, 6/- and 7/6 each; cock Snowbuntings, 1/- each, 3 2/6; grand lot of hold, plump cock Skylarks, in superb condition, 8d. each, three 1/6, 6 2/6, 12, 4/-; few very steady, guaranteed in song, 1/6 each. Linnet, Goldfinch and Bullfinch cages, 6d. each, 6 2/6, 12 4/6; Lark cages, 6d. and 8d. each, 4/- and 6/- dozen; special Linnet and Goldfinch stock and singing cages, 1/- each. Dealers supplied with cages of every description; send stamp for wholesale list. Notice to intending bird purchasers, my prices may not always be the lowest, but I sell cocks for cocks and hens for hens, and my prices are absolutely the lowest that genuine cocks can be sold at. All birds are guaranteed properly netted in county of Worcester, and are thoroughly on hard seed before sent out, a signed guarantee sent with every bird, saying birds are not recently taken, and I also give an indemnity to every customer against all costs arising from a prosecution for keeping birds in protected areas. I handle more English birds than any other and as I do not exhibit, all are for sale. (See Appliance column, also Roller Canary column for other advertisements.

Silk's Champion Norwich

Have just a few more winners in keen competition to be sold at moderate prices; can now offer some of the grandest pairs for breeding in the Fancy. Have some grand unflighted yellow hens and cocks; also buffs, pairs from 20/- upwards; single cocks or hens from 10/6 upwards. No rubbishing pairs at low prices, which are worthless. Kindly state price you are prepared to pay to save unnecessary writing. This strain has no equal, and every fancier knows it to be unrivalled for quality and value; satisfaction guaranteed; approval willingly; all letters kept strictly private: Judge Silk, Whitstable.

SUCH A PROCESSION

of testimonials as I publish week after week must prove to you that there is really something exceptional about my Leipzig Rollers, and I want you to test this yourself by having a Leipzig Roller from me on a week's trial, and one from elsewhere on similar conditions; test them side by side for a week and keep the one which suits you best. I shall be quite satisfied with result. I now have a grand collection of pure Leipzig Rollers, in full song day and gaslight, with long hollow rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, jug-jug of Nightingale, and bell, harp, and gong notes, etc., etc., and are warranted entirely free from titlark or any other harsh notes; price 6/6 and 7/6 each. I also have a magnificent lot of special Bandmasters, in absolutely perfect song; price 10/- and 12/6 each. These Bandmasters are exceptionally soft and mellow in tone, and excel in the deep bass, hollow bell, and flute notes, and the song is really a cascade of overflowing melody. Singing cabinet cages, with folding doors and loose fronts, made specially for Rollers, 2/6 each. For those who prefer a loud noisy songster, I have a splendid lot of rich coloured Hartz cocks, all in full vigorous song, real ceiling lifters, price 5/- each; Hartz hens, 2/- each, or 3/- couple. I want you to particularly notice full name and address and also date given with following letters, so that sceptical persons may make any enquiries they think proper. "3, Damers Road, Dorchester, Nov. 25th.—Sir,—Again I have much pleasure in sending to you for following Rollers. You have dealt so fairly with me in the past that there is really no other for me to send to.—Yours, Hy. Batchelor." "Alfred Street, Murton, Co. Durham, Nov. 28.—Sir,—Bird you sent is singing splendidly, and is very cheap. I am well pleased with it, and will send for another shortly.—Yours, T. Elliott." "15, Garnon Street, Carnaryon, Nov. 28. Sir,—Leipzig Roller and Goldfinch arrived safe, for which please accept my thanks. I am well pleased with both.—Yours, J. Pritchard." "61, Ernest Street, Crewe, Nov. 28.—Sir,—Leipzig Roller arrived safe. I must say I am more than pleased. He started singing soon as unpacked.—Yours, T. Quinby." "Burry Port, Carmarthenshire, Nov. 28th.—Sir,—Received Roller It is a splendid songster and gives entire satisfaction. Many thanks for your prompt attention and safe delivery.—Yours, William Morfa Jones." "Ewart Road, Milton, Weston-super-Mare, Nov. 28.—Sir,—Bird arrived quite safe. It is a beauty. I am exceedingly obliged to you for your kind and honest dealing. I have had several Rollers before, but never one that could touch him for song.—Yours, J. Thorney." "Mafeking Cottage, Gwernaffield, near Mold, Nov. 28.—Sir,—Roller to hand. It is the best songster I've ever heard. I have tried nearly all the leading firms and paid higher prices, but never had one to compare with this. Please accept my best thanks for such a songster and straightforward dealing.—Yours, Wm. Powell." "2, Duke Street, Retford, Notts., Nov. 28.—Sir,—Received Roller and am very pleased with it. I thank you very much for your straightforward dealing. The bird is a regular gem, and a treat to hear.—Yours, W. Littlewood." Kindly note, all birds are safely and warmly packed in special travelling cages, with seed and water to last 48 hours, and sent on full week's trial at my risk during whole time, either on receipt of cash or "Cage Birds" deposit system, and money refunded in full if every satisfaction not given. I care not how hard a man is to please, I am confident that I can do it. I am the only importer of Webers, Leipzig Rollers, and no other dealer can get as much as one feather of this strain unless he purchases from me. Dealers supplied with any quantity. Send trade card for list. (See British Birds and also appliance columns.)

ST. ANDREASBERG ROLLERS.

Arrived, another lot of these famous musical-boxes, specially trained under Nightingale, Woodlark, and bell notes, with those long, wonderful trills; fit for any mansion, price 6/6, 7/6, 8/6; real schoolmasters, 10/6 and 12/-.

Note.—Don't pay any more, I guarantee there is no better in England. See those who deal with me below, which should be enough proof for anyone. Hens, 2/-; proper Roller singing cages, 2/-, with shutters, 2/9; also not common Belgian, guaranteed pure Hartz, price 5/6 and 6/- each, two 11/-; hens 1/9, two 3/-. These are imported direct from the Hartz Mountains, and properly trained. Note—We have thousands of testimonials, and are patronised by all the Crystal Palace Judges, including Judges Bexson, Payne, Battye, Roe, Barnes, Vardy, etc., etc. Send for new catalogue and testimonials for proof.

HARTZ

ROLLERS.

Direct from their Native Country.

Some real gems, at 30/-, 40/-, and 50/- each, also

HIGH-CLASS SEIFERT COCKS, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Hens, 3/6 and 5/-. Other Hartz cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Hens, same strain, 2/6 and 3/6 each. Pairs, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Singing Hartz cocks, 5/- each. Hens, 1/6, 2/- and 2/6 each. Extra selected, with better notes, 6/6, 7/6. Pairs, 6/6, 8/6, 9/6, matched for breeding good songsters. Cages in all cases 3d. extra.

You may have seen advertisements of Hartz Mountain Rollers, with all kinds of what may be termed "fancy" names although such are absolute nonsense and positively meaningless. There is the German Roller, and that only. I challenge contradiction of my statements, and question if the people who use them were ever in Germany in their lives. I send out full printed instructions with each bird how to keep these charming songsters in health and song. I send on approval and pay all carriage back if not entirely to your satisfaction.

IS NOT THIS UNSOLICITED STATEMENT CONVINCING ENOUGH FOR THE MOST SCEPTICAL, AND BETTER THAN 50 COMMONPLACE STATEMENTS?

2, Rowland's Road, Pentre Broughton, near Manchester, December 5th, 1910.—I am writing you with reference to the Roller Cock you sent me. I must say I was thoroughly satisfied with him in less than ten minutes after he was unpacked, and he improves every day. He has plenty of changes, not too high or too low, and it will take a good bird to beat him. I was in an aviary the other day where there were over 20 young birds, but there were none there that could come up to him for changes and fellow song. I have had dozens of these birds, and paid a lot larger prices than I paid you for this one, but have not had one to equal this bird. I must thank you for treating me as you have done. This is the third order I have given you, and you have given me the greatest satisfaction every time. Wishing you every success for your straightforward dealings. W. Garry to W. Rudd.

champion strain. We have imported these for 30 years with unparalleled success, sale increasing yearly, and, mark you, not through lavish or bragging advertisements—purely recommendation from delighted purchasers. It stands to reason we could not advertise them for 30 years continually, unless they are all that we claim, with their soft purring rolls, sweet silvery trills, Nightingale and Woodlark changes, double harp, gong and flute notes, including the jug jug pipe, beat hollow and water-bubble runs—indeed, a continuous mental feast for music lovers. We allow seven days' approval for you to judge. Each bird properly and warmly packed for 24 hours' rail or sea journey. We guarantee safe arrival on receipt of P.O. or cheque (or you can deposit cash with Editor). Try a Schulze's songster against any other strain (real or imaginary); we will abide result with confidence. Prices, 10/-, 12/-, and 15/- each; premier Bandmasters, 21/- each. Thousands of testimonials can be inspected here. No waiting; all birds sent same day as ordered. Cheques or P.O.'s should be crossed and made payable to Augustus Zache and Co., Bird Importers, 218, Gt. Portland-st., London W.

Quality Great Quantity Great BUT Greatest of all IS THE VALUE !!

To fully appreciate this, you must have on approval, and compare with anything you have ever got or can get now; then, and then only, will you understand the difference between what I can and do give for money, and others, never mind what names they give themselves.

Note the prices; but believe me, I do not profess to sell the best, at the lowest figures. I will simply repeat my great fact is:—

VALUE! VALUE!! VALUE!!!

Whatever the price paid. Remember they are Yorkshires, not balls of feather or crossbreds, but the best value that has ever been sent out. Cocks, 4/6, 6/-, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-. has some grand typical Yorkshires for sale at reasonable prices; all bred in my own room; I have sold birds that have won in keenest competition this year, in clear, ticked, and marked classes; matched pairs from 15/- upwards; state wants; satisfaction guaranteed; sent on approval, cash or deposit; address: 15, Thorntou-la., Little Horton, Bradford.

CRAWHALL'S YORKSHIRES,

I have bred 100 splendid typical birds, and wanting room must clear at great sacrifice. My birds have won at Peterboro', Coxhoe, Newcastle, Chopwell, Whitehaven, Blaydou, Cleator Moor, in keen competition. Many winners, both North and South, are from my rooms; approval willingly, deposit: 121, St. George's-ter., Newcastle-on-Tyne.

A CHANCE

in a lifetime. I have purchased a champion winning stock of Yorkshires, and can offer them at sensible prices. Cocks, 10/6, 15/-, 25/-; hens, 7/6, 15/6, and £1. I guarantee that birds of this strain have won over 50 first prizes this and last season. Don't wait and see. Send now, cash or deposit: Wm. Wilson, Glasgow Bird Expert, 247, Argyle-st., Glasgow.

YORKSHIRES. YORKSHIRES.

I have a large and selected lot of high-class Yorkshires for sale, at prices to suit all pockets; state wants; satisfaction guaranteed: cash or deposit: W. Mullins, Alexandra Villa, Balby-rd., Doncaster.

THE ONLY WAY

to win, you must buy or breed winners. I can supply winners, of the sort that breed them. Business prevents me exhibiting so much in the future. Write, stating wants, and I will do my best to supply you: W. Richmond, 16, Mayfield Grove, Harrogate.

BROADBENT'S SYSTEM

of selling Canaries is this: I send you any bird, or birds, advertised, on receipt of half its proper value. The balance to be sent when satisfied in one or more payments. Is this fair? Yorkshires.

"Best Blood in the Fancy."

Read following testimonials for proof of what I send to my customers:—Denham Fishery, November 20th, 1910.—The Yorkshire cock won 1st at Bristol, and 1st at Weybridge. I am very pleased with him. G. Alford to L. Dykes.

Warren Avenue, November 16th, 1910. I am pleased to tell you I took 1st prize with the Yorkshire cock you sent me. Thanking you for the honourable way you have treated me. J. Hayter to L. Dykes.

Bradford House, Neyland, November 28th, 1910. I received the Yorkshire safe, and pleased to tell you he won 2nd prize in a class of 18, in open, at Haverfordwest show. Maurice Evans to L. Dykes.

Brookland Road, Pontymister, November 27th, 1910.—The Yorkshire cock won 2nd prize in good competition, and am highly satisfied with him. He is a beauty. T. Carpenter to L. Dykes.

If you want to win, or stock birds to breed winners, I shall be only too pleased to send any on approval, either for cash or on deposit with Editor. The following ready for immediate dispatch, and all guaranteed cold room bred and kept, and feathered to perfection. In clears, ticked, green marks, cinn. marks, and pure greens. Cocks, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- each, upwards. Hens at 3/6, 4/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each. Pairs matched to breed winners at 8/5, 10/6, 12 6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- per pair upwards. These cannot be equalled elsewhere at double these prices. Exhibition cocks or hens, that can win in keenest competition, at reasonable prices. Travelling cages 3d. extra. Inspection invited. All on 7 days' approval, at my risk. Illustrated price list post free.

Remember my winnings in Yorkshire classes this season exceed those of any other exhibitor. See reports of leading shows. Easy payments arranged with genuine fanciers. Kindly state wants to the Old, Reliable Breeder, who breeds his own winners, and can therefore give you the best value for your money.

KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES

Owing to failing health, am obliged to sell out practically the whole of my present stock (about 300) of high-class Yorkshires, including part breeders, comprising all varieties excepting whole greens. To induce a quick sale and give facilities to those who desire to purchase reliable birds for show or stock cheaply by comparison, will deduct 25 per cent., or 5/- in the £, on all orders sent out this month. My past 30 years' experience in breeding and keeping Yorkshire varieties only coupled with the fact that my name is familiar to all Yorkshire breeders and fanciers in this and other countries is sufficient guarantee of purity of breed without further advertisement or comment. Properly matched and unrelated breeding pairs personally selected, also single cocks and hens; all cold room bred, reared and kept; all three clear days' approval; cash or deposit; intending purchasers will best consult their future interest by sending postcard for season's list, with deductions, to Jonas Knight (author of "The Yorkshire Canary: Its Breeding and Management"), Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

"THE Stock Book," our invaluable "Breeding Room Register," by G. E. Weston. A well-known fancier has said of it:—"It makes bird breeding easy." It simplifies the operations in the bird-room, and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred; it contains both pedigree, breeding, young bird and show registers of simple and unique character, post free, 7d. from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

"HOUSE'S Canary Manual," by C. A. House, includes, among other interesting features, a chapter on the Roller Canary, and is entirely up-to-date. It contains information on feeding, rearing, diseases, etc., and a chapter with a model illustration is devoted to every known variety of Canary. Illustrated by Mr. H. Norman. Every bird depicted is a veritable model, and shows the breeder what to aim for; post free, 1/2; cloth bound, 2/2: From CAGE BIRDS, 164, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Pruttle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot funciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be proceeded against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

Some Recent Arrivals from Abroad.

By W. E. TESCHEMAKER, B.A.

The Dwarf Tanager.

This (Euphonia minuta) is a very pigmy among Tanagers! The well-known Violet Tanager is a small bird, but the Dwarf Tanager is only half its size. Its colouring is very similar to that of its larger relative. Out of a dozen Mr. Harris tells me that he only lost three on the voyage home. This handsome little species belongs to the genus Euphonia, or, as I prefer to call it, the "Song-Tanagers." (Why should we use a Greek word when we can substitute, as a popular name, an English equivalent equally descriptive and sufficiently distinctive to be easily remembered?) The Dwarf Tanager sings well, but the Violet is a really wonderful songster. With swelling throat and quivering wings he pours forth a flood of bubbling notes with some beautiful flute-like tones. Tanagers of this genus used to be considered delicate, but during the past few years they have been kept with much better success in outdoor aviaries. I have twice seen the pretty white eggs, spotted and blotched with light-red and purple of the Violet Tanager, and I think I was probably the first aviarist to describe them, and to point out that, unlike the majority of the Tanagers, this species builds a domed nest. Mine simply revel in a heavy shower of rain, and I have even seen them hanging, head downwards, beneath a branch, allowing the rain to penetrate to the very roots of their feathers. Unfortunately these small Tanagers frequently reach us in very poor condition, which is partly due to their having been caught with bird-lime, and partly to the hardships of the voyage. The following extract from a private letter shows us vividly what they have to undergo, and also, incidentally, what disappointments have often to be faced by those who import rare birds from South America: "The lot which reached Southampton on Monday have had a rough time. They had to be taken from the shore to the mailboat, four miles in the offing; it was rough, and 25 were killed before getting them aboard, and the others were all soaked with salt water. Many beautiful birds died on the way; only 31 reached here alive. One double-compartment cage (each compartment 2ft. by 3ft. 6ins. by 1ft. 6ins.) reached me containing only 5 birds! It probably contained 50 birds when sent off, and these had been collected at great expense in Venezuela. We had to pay the butcher £2 per cage for looking after them, and £1 freight, besides porterage and carriage from Southampton to here." Mr. Suggitt and Mr. Sutcliffe have imported several rare species of Song Tanagers lately, including E. lichtensteini and E. trinitatis. A pair of Dwarf Tanagers were to be seen in the Small Bird House at the Zoo two years since.

The Clarino.

The beautiful Townsend's Flycatcher, called in the German bird trade the Clarino, or Clarinet-bird, has been very rarely offered for sale in this country—in fact, the very first I ever saw in a dealer's hands were the two Mr. Roehl showed me about a month since. This species is a deep blue-grey with a conspicuous circle of white feathers round the eye, and has a typical fly-catcher beak. Mr. Roehl's specimens were so bright in colour that I did not at first recognise the species, as I certainly ought to have done after examining the nice specimen which Mr. H. D. Astley deposited at the Zoo some time since, and described in the "Avicultural Magazine."

The Clarino has a great reputation as a songster. The importer tells me that the song is not a connected one, but consists of a great variety of single notes of wonderful beauty and compass.

The American Robin.

At Mr. J. D. Hamlyn's I saw recently what I took to be a nice specimen of Turdus migratorius, though identification was rendered somewhat difficult owing to the bird being in a rather dark corner. This handsome North American species is of much the same size as our English Song-Thrush; the head, wings, nape and tail are black; the back, ash-colour; the throat, black streaked with white, and the whole of the breast a dark orange-red.

It ranges over the whole of North America, and, being an extremely hardy species, nests even within the Arctic Circle in the summer months, retiring gradually to the Southern States before the approach of winter. Like many other species of the Thrush family, it builds a large nest, plastered with mud, often in an apple tree, and lays five greenish-blue eggs. Even at the present time it is an abundant species, but we can judge what its numbers must have been a century ago from the fact that Alexander Wilson tells us that in January, 1807, "two young men in one excursion shot thirty dozen." Wilson also tells us an amusing story of how the slaughter was stopped. It appears that these birds are very fond of a certain crimson berry, which they eat in such quantities that their intestines become tinged with the same colour. "Some humane person" took advantage of this circumstance to publish a statement in the papers they were unfit for food, and that several persons had suffered severely from eating them, whereupon there was an immediate and wholesale slump in the market for Robins. It is an extremely fine songster and takes kindly to cage-life under which conditions it has been known to live for no less than seventeen years.

Curious facts on Imigration.

A recent experiment in acclimatization has brought this species prominently before the notice of English ornithologists. In the early summer of 1909 a number of Robins were turned out on a large estate near Guildford, and bred so freely that it is estimated that, at the end of the nesting season, there were quite one hundred in the neighbourhood. They remained in the district until quite late in the autumn, and then suddenly disappeared. The transference of a migratory species from the western to the eastern hemisphere is an exceedingly interesting experiment, because we naturally ask ourselves in what direction it will migrate when it finds itself in an entirely new country, without landmarks and without bearings. Well, these Robins went eastwards.

Now, from the fact that autumn migrants in this country are seen to be moving in either a southerly or a westerly direction, one might at first sight conclude that they were simply lost. But a little reflection will show us that this was probably not the case. In the first place, Wilson tells us that the American Robins bred west of the Alleghanies and crossed this range at the time of the autumn migration in an easterly direction; we may conclude, therefore that for at least one race of this species this would be a normal direction to take. But there is another interesting consideration. On the 14th October, 1874, an American Robin was shot on Heligoland. Howard Saunders considers this to have been an escaped specimen, but this seems to me to be in the least degree unlikely, both because it occurred at the same time as a number of other unusual species which had undoubtedly migrated from the far East and also because at least a dozen specimens in perfect feather have been shot at various dates in Europe.

It seems reasonable to conclude that this bird had really migrated all the way from North America by way of the Alentian Islands and North Asia, and, if this is so, may not the Guildford Robins have been on their way "back to old Kentucky" by the same route? I wish I could carry the story of the Guildford Robins a little further, but though I have made two enquiries from ornithologists in that district, I have not heard of their return to the neighbourhood during the past summer.

How I Solved Some - - - Canary Breeding Problems.

W. SCHOLEY (Hull).

I decided to take up the hobby after going to a bird show in our town, and went home fully determined to start breeding Canaries. Problem No. 1 was: Where was I going to keep them?

Problem No. I.

I soon solved this problem by arranging (in my mind) to have them in the kitchen; that is, the living room. But, lo and behold! I am not to be master in my own house; the wife puts her foot down and says she's not going to have a lot of birds messing the place with seed, etc. Then I say to her: Can I have them in the top bedroom? "No, you can't; that will be worse than downstairs." Then the mere man had to lay the law down, and the next day I went to the sawmills and bought a well-seasoned deal end and got it sawn into lengths 3ft. by 11in. by ½in., and took them home. First salute: "What are you going to do with that wood?" "Why, I am going to make some cages with it." "Then you are determined to have some birds?" I said, "I am." Then she said, "Umph," and remained silent for the rest of the evening. The next night I commenced operations. I got my tool box out, and after finding that our Harry (ten years old) had been using the plane, etc., none too gently, in due course I got into cage-making, taking care to clean up all shavings, and put my tools away, etc. I made three double cages, 3ft. long, 11in. wide., and 15in. high.

Problem No. II.

Then came problem No. 2, i.e., buying some birds. I went into our bird market, and seeing four good lengthy hens I bought them for 12s. It was a bad investment, for three of them turned out to be wheezy. I advise novices to handle the birds when they are buying, and to listen to their breathing, when they will soon find out if they are all right. Blow up the feathers, and see there is no discolouration of the body, and if there is reject the birds.

I then went to a breeder and paid £1 1s. for two cocks (one buff and one yellow) and 7s. 6d. for two hens (one yellow and one buff). I took them home, and started in earnest in a very small room, built on a landing, with plenty of light, having a rather large window in it—rather too large in winter, but I obviated all draughts by pasting brown paper across the middle, sides, and anywhere I thought there was likely to be one.

What To Do and What Not To Do.

As the result of my grappling with the problem of Canary breeding, I venture to give the following advice. Do not introduce any kind of heat whatever, never mind how cold it is. I have several times had to "thaw the drinkers." The birds will take no harm in the cold, but give each bird a teaspoonful of hemp seed three times a week during very cold weather.

Should any of the birds develop a cold, coughing and sneezing generally towards night, try the following mixture (which it is always as well to have handy): 20 drops of sherry, 10 drops glycerine, 5 drops sweet nitre, and 1 drop eucalyptus oil. Be careful and give only one drop of the latter, and shake the mixture well together to prevent the oil swimming on the top; then fill the drinker up with water, and give same every second day. On the alternate days give Parrish's chemical food—about 20 to 25 drops—till the trouble ceases. Supply the bird with a snug warm corner where there is no draught, and as even a temperature as possible.

I bred twenty birds that season, but, unfortunately, only reared two, the rest dying in the nest, the hens failing to feed after the young were about four days old. Some I got on to the perches, doing for themselves; then they seemed to mope and die off one by one. I have since thought that inexperience had a lot to do with this. At this time a friend gave me a copy of CAGE BIRDS, and I have been thankful to him ever since.

Concerning Bad Feeders.

As for non-feeding hens, I don't think there is any certain remedy. I generally give very young lettuce, and that in very small quantities, and I remove the cock for an hour or two, which has often proved effectual. You may find a young hen is a bad feeder at the first nest; but afterwards just the reverse. But if they feed badly right through the season, I get rid of them; that is, if they are not valuable birds. Of course, if they are valuable the only remedy is to have some common hens mated up about same time, and sit them with the valuable birds' eggs. I find the Roller hens make the best feeders.

As to birds going soft, I have tried milk sop with castor sugar, but I find cod liver oil food and chemical food with five drops of gentian in the water twice a week produce the best results.

I would advise anyone taking up the Fancy to start in a small way. Don't buy two pairs of birds, say, for £1, but buy one pair for the same price. Go in for quality, not quantity. Read CAGE BIRDS, especially respecting the kind of bird you intend to start with; and get CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, where you will find a lot of useful information, and the advertisements of reliable breeders. The more you can afford, remember, the better it will be for you in the end.

Preparing for Breeding.

Now we will suppose you are suited and are eager to make a start. Don't be in a hurry. Consider the weather; have a thermometer in your bird-room, and see that the birds have something like an even temperature, say, from 45 to 50 degrees; but if you find that one day it is 50 degrees and in the morning about 40 degrees, hold back; it will pay you best. We have many cold nights towards the back-end of March; remember this, or you will be rewarded with clear eggs, starved young ones, etc. After a few days of incubating the hen leaves the nest more, and often for the greater part of the night, and in the morning, when she wants to feed the young ones, they won't gape. I have, I may say, saved many a nest by taking it before the fire to warm the young, and as soon as they lift their heads I placed them back.

Always see that your birds are "in condition" before pairing them up; if they are, your hens will be continually flapping their wings, and the cocks singing lustily. If they are not in fit condition, give them the young leaves of dandelion, egg food, with a sprinkling of maw seed; and give the hens a little niger seed. If either of the birds of a pair comes fit before you require it to, a little Epsom salts given in the drinking wate., taking all egg food and tit-bits away, will generally tame it down till you want it.

Look out for egg binding. Watch your hens when you are expecting them to lay, and if you see them moping in the cage bottom, take them out gently, and drop a little olive or sweet oil on the vent, and let them rest awhile; then if things get no better, hold the bird over a jug of steaming water (put a piece of muslin over it); this will generally have the desired effect. As a last resource, try a very small pinch of salt on the vent. Never try to force the egg, for if the egg be broken inwardly the result is death. I seldom have any trouble from this source, as I give plenty of cuttle bone and mutton suet between the wires during and before pairing.

Incubation of the Eggs.

Always take the eggs away as they are laid, substituting dummies till the hen has laid the third; then replace the eggs on the evening the last one was laid. All the young then have equal chances to hold up their heads for food.

In thirteen days look out for chicks. Don't be too curious, but listen at the cage, and you will generally hear the "cheep cheep" of the youngsters, and your intrusion may make the hen nervous, when ill consequences may follow. I generally take the eggs about the seventh day and examine them before a strong light; if they look dark and stringy I know they are doing well, but if I can see through them I break up the nest, as the hen's energy and time are only wasted. Providing there are one or two good, and you have another nest similar and sat on for about the same time, give all to one hen, and start the other again.

Theft of Birds at Poplar.

John Barker and Frederick H. Knight were charged recently with the stealing of four bird-cages and eight birds, valued at £8, belonging to John Parker, of the Tiger beerhouse, Kerbey Street, Poplar.

The prosecutor had five Chaffinches and three Linnets in four cages, which were hanging on the yard wall last Wednesday week. On the evening of that day the prisoners were in the house, and the following morning the cages and birds were missed. The matter was reported to the police, who found that one of the prisoners had sold a bird to William Rudge for a shilling. Each of the accused was carrying a bird-cage, and Barker advised Rudge to put the bird in another cage. Barker, in answer to the charge, said, "All right, I suppose I must come with you. How many birds and cages do you say? I didn't have all of them. Have you got Knight in? A fat lot I got out of the deal." When Knight was arrested he said, "I did not have the bird. If Parker puts me away I will do it on him. Wait till I see him; I will punch him on the nose. I can prove I was in bed early that night."—The prisoners were each sentenced to 10 days' hard labour.

The Life of Wild Birds.

It is computed that the average life of a bird in a state of Nature is less than one year, although doubtless fortunate individuals manage to exist for several seasons. Therefore, as far as longevity is concerned the captive bird is much better off than his wild brothers, has a much less strenuous life, and is besides protected from the inclemency of the weather.

Waders in Flight.

The manœuvres of some of our waders and shore birds when on the wing are most wonderful. So fast and compact do some of them fly, turning and twisting as one bird, that were one of them late in turning even by a fraction of a second there would either be a disastrous collision or the late one would be left far in the rear.

Club Reports.

BLAYDON-ON-TYNE & DIS. C.B.S

At the usual meeting there was a large turn-out of members, who received their prize money. Again decided, to have annual show on the first Friday and Saturday in November, 1911. Judges were also picked. The report of last show was that it was an unqualified success.—G. Hayver, Sec.

HANLEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

our last meeting was opened by a washing exhibition by four of the members, Messrs. Williamson, Robinson, Wild and Peake, after which a little business was done, and two new members were elected. It was decided to hold a show on Dec. 26, to be arranged at our next meeting, on Dec. 12, when I hope to see all members present, at the Albion Hotel, 8 o'c.—B. Peake, Sec.

STOKE-ON-TRENT C.B.S.

This new society is progressing very nicely. At the last monthly meeting five new members were elected, which brings the total up to 19. This is very satisfactory for the first month. Final arrangements were made for the members' show at Headquarters on Boxing-day. All members present express their intention of making it a thorough success.—J. Pitchford, Hon. Sec.

STRATFORD & E. LONDON F.S.

At last meeting remainder of prize cards and specials won at young stock show were presented to winners. Volunteers were called for to attend annual show, Dec. 6th, to help put up pens and act as stewards, etc. The secretary referred to the sudden death of one of the members, Mr. Geo. Kempton, a good supporter of the society. The members present passed a vote of condolence and sympathy with Mrs. Kempton, and the secretary was instructed to write Mrs. Kempton to that effect. New members elected as under:—Messrs. F. H. Robinson G. A. Parker (Stratford), cage bird section; Messrs. C. T. Bigg (Stratford), H. Love (Leyton), E. Dillistone (Tottenham), Geo. Hall (Stratford), A. Urwin (Ilford), and M. Balls (Woolwich).—W. Maxey, Hon. Sec.

CHOPWELL AND DISTRICT F.S.

Monthly meeting held Dec. 3rd, Co-operative Hall, Mr. W. Carr in chair. We had a good attendance, and I must say that the Fancy is looking up in this district. We joined five new members in Messrs. T. Hart (Prudhoe), J. Sharp, and D. Williams (Chopwell), T. Fletcher (Rowlands Gill), and March Bros. (Lanchester). Decided, to hold members' show, January 13th, when twenty classes are given for cage birds. The officers for the coming year elected: President, F. O. Kirkup, Esq.; chairman, Mr. W. Carr; treasurer, Mr. G. G. Gibbon; secretary, Mr. Jos. Brown; committee, Messrs. W. Tomlinson, H. Griffiths, M. Simpson, T. Betton, W. Duke, Jos. Taylor, J. Parkin, G. Bainbridge, W. H. Christer, F. Laines, S. Franks, J. T. Scott, R. Forster, T. Wilkinson, J. Stephenson, T. Hart, R. J. Tallantire, S. Dodds, J. Grey, J. Sharp. Mr. J. Flint was elected show manager for the cage bird section. Auditors, Messrs. H. Dixon and J. Clark. Entrance fee 6d. each bird. I would like to hear from anyone wishing to join; fee, 2s. 6d. Anyone joining now will be allowed to exhibit at this show.—Joseph Brown, Sec.

WIMBLEDON C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Dec. 5th, 6, The Broadway. Mr. W. H. Stoakley presided. There were three nominations for membership. The Secretary reported receipt of a petition to be sent to the railway companies, asking them to revise their charges for the conveyance of birds to shows. This was laid on the table and signed by all present. Then the Secretary gave a report of the recent show, but before doing so read a number of letters from exhibitors which were highly complimentary and congratulatory as to the way the show had been conducted and the prompt return of exhibits and payment of prize money. In an exhaustive report Mr. Smith said the show had broken all records, and that the estimate of accounts showed receipts amounting to £74 3s. 6d., and expenses £72 19s. 5d., leaving a balance of £1 10s. 1d., the secretary explaining that all the tickets had not yet come in, and that he expected the balance would be increased when these were returned. The Chairman said the report and accounts were most satisfactory, and they had to heartily thank Mr. Smith, also his son, for clerical and other help he had given. The judging competition for Yorkshire Canaries followed. There were 22 birds in two classes, and nearly all those present took part in the competition. Mr. Peveral, who acted as final judge, was accorded a vote of thanks for his kindness in undertaking the office. It was arranged to have a judging competition of British birds at the next meeting, and to ask Mr. Sandy to address the members on this section of the cage bird hobby.—H. Smith, Hon. Sec.

ROUND THE SHOWS.

MAINDEE.

Maindee F. and F.S. open show, held Dec. 3, Campbell-Bannerman Hall. The quality throughout was excellent, and this is especially true of the cage bird section; the birds exhibited, while not very numerous, were in tip-top condition. Mr. J. Hawksley, the secretary, deserves praise for his excellent management of affairs. Mr. A. Allen (Newport, Mon.) judged, his awards appearing to give every satisfaction.

MEMBERS' (6): 1, Sharrem; 2, no name; hc, Walkley.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.

Fourth annual amateurs' exhibition held Market Hall, Dec. 3rd. Although the show was confined to amateurs, with a £3 limit, the response was not a very good one; still, the birds staged were of grand quality, and the owners are to be congratulated on possessing the birds. Mr. F. Cameron, the sec., received many compliments on his able management, which were deserving in every way. Mr. J. H. Roe judged.

NOR. CL., ETC. (13): 1, 2, Grimes, two excellent birds, the real cobby type, and nice quality of feather, latter loses a trifle in wing carriage; 3, no name in catalogue, another good, thick-set bird, bit longer in flights and tail; 4, Bielby, fine quality, neat; vhc, Tams and Son. UNEVENLY MKD., ETC. GARSTON.

Garston B.B.A. ninth annual show, held Dec. 3rd, Baptist Schoolroom. The room is well adapted for a show. About 130 birds put in an appearance. The quality was really good all through, especially in the Yorkshires. Considering the society is composed of mostly novices, the show can be considered a great success. Mr. H. Barton won the "Tate Challenge Cup," Mr. H. Mullock the championship special and most entries special, Mr. Stafford Jackson the novice specials. Mr. A. Wilkinson makes an ideal secretary; everything was in apple-pie order. Names of special winners were up almost as soon as judging was over. Mr. A. Wellings placed the cards, and gave satisfaction all round.

LANCASTER.

Lancaster and Dist. C.B.S. 12th annual show, held Nov. 25 and 26, Cornmarket Street, Coffee Tavern. The room was splendidly lighted from the roof. The days were seasonable, and patrons were rewarded with a good look at the birds without difficulty. President Mr. R. Mason, Treasurer, Mr. T. Swainson, Assist. Sec., Mr. H Hoyle and Mr. Gardner, one of the Trustees; all these gentlemen officiated in a most masterly way. It would be hard to particularise, but we venture to advise the society to stick to their treasurer, who is a most devoted fancier, and one who, by his general and masterly style of handling every item, is the right man in the right place. The committee also deserve their full share of praise. Mr. A. Bentley, of Great Harwood, made the awards, and with few exceptions gave general satisfaction. Special for most points throughout the show was secured by Mr. J. Hawthornthwaite; special for best bird was won by Mr. H. Hoyle, with his Yellow unflighted Norwich; Mr. Swainson secured special for most points gained by 4 nominated birds; he was also winner of Sandiford's medal. Mr. H. Hoyle won Ramsden's medal. The entries numbered about 245; a record in the annals of the society.

LUTON.

Fifth open and local show, held Corn Exchange, Dec. 7th, with an entry of 500. The room was kept at an even temperature. The hon secretary, Mr. C. Cherry, is to be congratulated upon the success of the show. He was ably assisted by Mr. Redall (assistant secretary), and a capital committee, viz., Messrs. Bennett, Bloomfield, Ball, Litchfield, Turing, Brewer, Rhodes, Elling, Codd, Meadow, and the hon. treasurer, Mr. L. Tilmouth. Quality and type were to be found among the Norwich, both in the open and members' classes. Yorkshires, too, were many of them A1, while in the Mule, Hybrid, British, and Foreign classes, were to be seen many very choice specimens. Messrs. Robson and Silver judged.

HAVERFORDWEST.

Haverfordwest and Dis. F.S. (affiliated to the Cage Bird Union) 15th annual show, held Nov. 24, in the Market Hall, a capital place for a show of the sort. Quality throughout the cage bird section was all that could be desired, and Mr. J. N. Harrison, who judged, found it none so easy to pick out the winners. Many of the classes drew large entries. The management of the show is a splendid one. With Mr. J. Lloyd Edwards, the popular and energetic secretary, at the head of affairs, things went along very smoothly, and everything passed off without a hitch of any sort.

The Critique.

DAWLEY (Salop).

Dawley and Dis. C.B.S. 3rd annual show, held in the Assembly Room, Dec. 6th. Entries turned up well, totalling about 100 in the nine classes provided. Quality, too, was well to the front, considering it was a radius show, several of the winners having won high honours at some of the big shows this season. Mr. J. Clayton discharged the duties of Hon. Sec. with marked ability. Mr. A. C. Brotherhood judged.

CANTERBURY.

Show held December 7th and 8th. Entries did not come up quite so well as last year, but the quality throughout was excellent. Mr. Gibbs won spl. for best Nor., Mr. Lockett that for best Yorks. The British came up well both in numbers and quality, Mr. Wickham winning spl. for best British with a charming Hawfinch. Spl. for best Mule went to Mr. Webb. Mr. Sargeant makes an ideal hon. sec., and was ably assisted by a good working committee. W. R. Miles judged.

The Critique.

NOR. CL. YELL.: 2, 4, Gibbs, short and compact, good head and neck, rare col., type and quality; 4th, larger, but not the quality of feather; 3, vhc, Taylor, former rare substance, type and quality, had flights down in one wing or might have won. FALMOUTH.

Fifth annual exhibition (confined to Cornwall) held Polytechnic Hall, Dec. 7th and 8th. The hall, being a very spacious one, and well lighted, was most admirably adapted, being free from draughts. The birds were staged to perfection, and reflected great credit on the secretary, Mr. A. J. Mollin, who, being an old and enthusiastic fancier, and judging from the way everything was arranged, well understood his work. A more obliging and courteous secretary it has not been our pleasure to meet. Several genuine fanciers comprise the committee, and they evidently know how to manage a show. Everything was done in looking after the exhibits, and the interests of fanciers generally. Norwich in the open classes were an exceedingly good lot, and many well known winners were staged. Yorkshires included some excellent specimens, and many of them could win in a much larger show. The Mules and Goldfinches were an exceptionally good lot, and a credit to the exhibitors. In the shield class for birds bred by members in 1910, the trophy was won by Mr. J. Cooper. Cup for most points in Nor. classes 1 to 6 was won by Mr. F. Pascoe, that for most points in classes 8 to 11, Yorkshires, by Mr. J. Thomas, and that for most points by Mr. T. Burton. The members' classes were well filled, notable among them being a very fine lot of cinnamons. Mr. D. Browning (Exeter) placed the cards, and seemed to give satisfaction.

SELSTON AND DISTRICT F.S.

Meeting held School-room Dec. 3, when prize money was paid out; those who did not get it will have same if they will call upon the secretary at his house. Also decided, to hold next meeting D.v. '1, 6.30 p.m.—F. Maltby, Sec.

FIFE AND KINROSS N.P.C.

Meeting held Dec. 3, W. Spence presiding. Agreed that annual meeting be held on Dec. 24, also presentation of prizes. Also, that a table show be held at 4 o'c. Judge, Mr. J. Arnott (Sinclairtown). Two classes, one for cocks, other for hens. Entry money, 3d. per bird, each member to show two birds only. Silver medal for best in each class, and no member to win more than one medal. I hope all members will turn out, and bring a bird for each class.—A. Dickson, Sec.

BARNSLEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Nov. 26, headquarters, Clarence Hotel, Mr. J. Eyre, president, in chair. The auditors (Messrs. W. Atherton and Ralph Jackson) read the report of balance-sheet of open show, which discloses a loss of £1 9s. 5½d. The balance-sheet was passed as correct. Decided, to hold annual members show on Boxing Day, Dec. 26, in the large club room at Clarence Hotel; also that we make 20 classes, and that we give 5/- for most points in each section, namely, Yorkshire, Norwich, and British.—F. C. Sims, Hon Sec.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.

Meeting December 3rd. Decided to have a free supper on the first Saturday in January. All local fanciers are invited. We fixed date for annual supper for first Saturday in February; members' stock pair show: 2 classes for Nor., 2 for Crests, 1 A.O.V. Can., 1 Mule breeding, and 1 Hybrid breeding. Special for most points; and on the first Saturday in March, novice washing competition, washer to bring his own bird—good special for winner; also novice judging competition, each judge to bring at least two birds to entitle him to judge; two good specials for winning judges. Admission free; all invited.—R. Nuttall, Sec.

KELTY AND BLAIRADAM C.B.A.

Meeting held November 29th; Mr. J. Stenhouse (president) in chair. It was agreed to engage Co-operative Hall for open show next year. Also agreed to hold members' breeding pairs show on second Saturday in January in Gothenburg supper-room The following were elected as judges: Scotch Fancy, Mr. J. Anderson; Borders, Mr. J. Fotheringham, Yorkshires, Mr. A. Fotheringham; Crests, Mr. A. Dickson; Plainheads, Mr. J. Veitch; Hybrids and Muling pairs, Mr. J. Ford; common, Mr. A. Anderson. Each member to bring as many pairs as he likes. Next meeting December 27th.—A. Dickson, Sec.

YORKSHIRE CANARY CLUB.

The following is the position of the leaders in the competitions promoted by the Y.C.C., viz.: Bailey trophy (up to and including Windhill show); J. Bailey 92 points, Ogden Bros. 72, Thornton and Bower 70, J. Helliwell 65, and J. Thomas 59 points, Ramsden cup: Ogden Bros. 64 points, H. H. Towers 63, J. Bailey 63, J. Thomas 40, and J. Wilson 30 points; open novice competition: C. E. Hall 32 points, L. C. Casey 23, H. Smith 23, and E. Clegg 15 points; junior novice competition: S. S. Rigg 85 points, J. H. Whitwham 70, A. Radley 62, A. M. Craven 64, and C. Morrison 43 points; CAGE BIRDS prizes (professional section): J. Bailey 155 points, Ogden Bros. 136, H. H. Towers 111, J. W. Thomas 75 points; (amateur section): J. Edmondson and Son 51, L. C. Casey 49, C. E. Hall 32, and H. Charlesworth, 31 points. The points in Ramsden cup and open novice competitions are counted to Eccleshill show.—John Greaves, Secretary.

CODNOR PARK AND DIS C.B.S.

Meeting held Dec. 3rd, Headquarters, when a good number of members attended to hear the report from the secretary of the open show held Nov. 19th. This proved to be a success, there being a balance on the right side. A vote of thanks was passed to the reporter of CAGE BIRDS for the splendid report of our show which appeared in the week following show in CAGE BIRDS, the secretary to notify the same in report. It was decided to hold a members' show on Dec. 17th in the Club-room Portland Arms, Jacksdale. We have made a good classification—23 classes for Canaries and British birds, including two for members who haven't won a money prize. So members, bring your birds and let us have a grand show. We enrolled one new member and two since; they keep on coming. The society looks like sailing calmly; radius 20 miles. All birds to be in Club-room by 3 o'clock p.m., Dec. 17th, for show.—J. H. Mitchell, Hon. Sec.

LEEDS C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held Dec. 3, Mr. Whiteley in chair. There was a fair attendance of members. Two new members were elected—Messrs. W. Peace and C. Thomas. Re the Christmas Members' Show, it was decided to hold same at St. George's on December 27, birds to be staged at 9 a.m., and lifted at 6.30, show to be opened to public immediately after judging, which we expect will be about 1.30. The classification was arranged on somewhat similar lines to that of show held Nov. 12, with the exception that all clear classes are dropped. Mr. F. Sumers, M.R.C.V.S., was nominated president again, and Messrs. W. A. Wilson and E. Norton hon. sec. and hon. treas. respectively, the present hon. sec. and hon treas. not having time to spare to again accept the position. Decided, that the position of chairman be given to the member receiving most votes on the ballot papers for committee, which will be sent out to members in a day or two.—J. Chambers, Hon. Sec

Y.C.C. OF IRELAND.

Adjourned general meeting, held 24th Nov., Douglas Hotel, Eden Quay. Mr. Sholedice in chair. Proposed, seconded, and carried, that statement of accounts as sent to members be adopted. Following is result of election:—President, Gratton Bray, Esq.; vice-presidents (3), Messrs. Barclay, Rowe, and Trotter; chair, Mr. C. A. O'Reilly; hon. treasurer Mr. P. H. Kenny; auditors, Messrs. Birse and Henderson; committee (Dublin): Messrs. Farrell, Sholedice, Scully, Rooney, Neill, McDonnell, Dowling, Kennedy; (provincial): Messrs. Hawkins, Devins, Lavery, Keating, Dowling, Fleming, Thompson, South; hon. sec., Mr. J. R. Hyland, 15, Drumcondra Park, Dublin. Following resolution, proposed, seconded, and passed unanimously: "That a banking account be opened in the chairman's, hon. treasurer's, and hon. secretary's names, and that all cheques issued by the hon. treasurer must have at least either the chairman's or the hon. secretary's signature, all debts contracted to be paid by cheque." Proposed, seconded, and carried, "that the best thanks of the meeting be conveyed to the Editor of CAGE BIRDS for the facilities granted to the club in the past. This concluded the business.—J. R. Hyland, Hon. Sec.

My address now, writes Mr. J. Wright, is 3, Newland Road, Birmingham.

Don't forget Blackburn show, December 16 and 17. Good specials open to all.—(Advt.)

Mr. W. H. Thurley, of Sandy, Beds., will be glad if secretaries will forward schedules to him at this address.

Cardiff show report in the Crest class should credit 1st prize to me, and not to Mr. Bale.—A. ALLEN (Newport, Mon.)

My address is Sale and not Manchester, writes Mr. A. Royle; it appears A. Royle, of Manchester, in show reports.

Cardiff show report in the Norwich marked buff class should read: 1st and 2nd, Tristem (not Lind).—J. TRISTEM (Bristol).

Second in the novice Norwich hen class in Cardiff report should read: J. N. and J. Jeffery and not Jeffreys.—J. N. JEFFERY (Paignton).

Folkestone show report, re Yorks. Cl. Yell. ck. class, 2nd is Lockett and not Owen as stated. I wish CAGE BIRDS success.—C. LOCKETT (Dover).

Cardiff show report states that all Mr. Jonas Knight's birds were absent; they were my birds that were absent.—H. KNIGHT (Great Shelford).

Birmingham show report among the special winners gives my initials as E.W.; this should have read E. M. Evans.—E. M. EVANS (Swansea).

Will fanciers and secretaries please note that I have removed to 7, Sandheys Road, Sandwell Park, Liscard? writes Mr. Geoff Benson.

Inverness show report credits Messrs. Maclean Bros. with 2nd in the yellow Border hen class, whereas we won that honour.—MACLEOD BROS. (Fain).

Portsmouth show report credits Mr. J. Marshall (Plymouth) with being runner-up; it should be Portsmouth.—J. MARSHALL (Portsmouth).

I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS for the last four years, and have gained considerable knowledge through its contents.—A. J. BOXALL (Southsea).

Folkestone show report, in the ticked, etc., Yorkshire class, credits Mr. Taylor's bird with winning first; it was my birds that stood first and third.—G. JOHNSON (Middle Deal).

I have sold my 2nd unflighted buff cock bird, winner at the L.C.B.A., to a well-known Southern Norwich Plainhead Club member, writes Mr. L. J. Richardson (Rotherhithe).

Wombwell and Dis. C.B.S. will hold their annual show on December 24, in the Wesleyan Reform Schoolroom, George Street. Mr. E. A. Taylor will judge, writes Mr. J. Hill, assist. sec.

We hear from Mr. W. E. Espley, the well-known Norwich breeder, that he is disposing of his stock of birds (which he is advertising this week) owing to his going abroad shortly.

Entries for Nantymoel show are very short and don't average 1 per class; so, exhibitors, please support us, writes Mr. Griffiths, the sec. Will accept entries up to first post, December 12.

Part II. of CAGE BIRDS "Guide to the Shows" gives our show date as December 31, instead of December 21; will fanciers and exhibitors please note?—A. W. DOUGLAS, sec. and treas., Elgin C.B.A.

I exhibited two birds at Harrogate show on December 3, writes Mr. C. Mackwell (Keighley), and I am pleased to say the birds arrived home at 9 o'clock the Saturday night. Such shows as these should get a bumping entry.

We have engaged Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) to judge at our open show on December 27, writes Mr. E. Barber, sec. of the Whittington Moor and Dis. C.B.S. Cup for most points in show and numerous specials are offered. There will be 18 classes (fee 1s.).

We hear that Mrs. E. L. A. Crow's (Lewesloft) 1st prize yellow Crest at the L.C.B.A. show at the Horticultural Hall, is the bird that took 1st at Nottingham. The 2nd yellow Crestbred cock took 3rd at Nottingham, and the 1st prize yellow Crestbred hen is mother of both these winners.

The annual concert and presentation of special prizes has unavoidably had to be postponed until January 3, 1911, writes Mr. W. Hodson, hon. sec. of the Dulwich and Peckham C.B.S. The annual general meeting and election of officers will take place on January 17, at the Reindeer Hotel.

"The Country-side Monthly" (fourpence net) continues to make progress. The December number is full of interesting matters and contains also an excellent coloured plate, on which is depicted the Dodo and the Great Auk. A good proportion of the notes and articles is devoted to birds and bird life.

You will be sorry to hear of the illness of our esteemed secretary, Mr. H. W. Jones, who is down with rheumatism, writes Mr. G. R. Wilson, president Eccles C.B.S. Members in general will condole with Mr. Jones in his illness. The dinner for Wednesday, December 17, is postponed till further notice.

In my article on the Norwich Plainhead in your last issue, the sentence which reads "the back ought to be straight (not low)," should read not "sow" backed or hollow in the back, with tilted tail, which makes the bird have the appearance of a Robin instead of a Norwich.—R. H. LIVINGSTONE (Rutherglen).

In Sunderland show report, writes our reporter, the winner of 2nd and he (no name) in young buff Norwich class should be W. Reid. The young Crestbred class reads: 1, spl., 3 (no name); this should be James Walker. In this class some preferred the 3rd prize winner for 2nd place, not for 1st as in report.

On behalf of the Edinburgh N.C. and M.B. Society, writes Mr. James Finnie, the sec., I tender their best thanks to the anonymous donor ("Auld Reekie") who sent me through the post a handsome gold badge for the best young bird at our recent show. The badge was presented to Mr. Mackie at our last meeting, December 1.

I replied to an advertiser who offers to buy birds, writes Mr. A. Etherington (Chippenham), and made him an offer of some Norwich. I enclosed a stamped addressed envelope, and a prize-card from a show, and asked him for return of same. I have written again, but can get no answer or the card. I think this very unfair treatment.

OBITUARY.

Mr. W. W. PICKLES (Keighley).

On behalf of the members of the Keighley and Dis. C.B.S., allow me to express our sympathy with the widow of our late member, W. W. Pickles, of Woodhouse, Keighley, who passed away so suddenly on December 2, writes a member of the society. We all tender Mrs. Pickles our most sincere sympathy in her bereavement; may her burden be as light as possible under such trying circumstances.

Mr. C. GREENWOOD (Scarborough).

I regret to inform you, writes Mr. J. F. Smith (Scarborough) of the death of Mr. Charles Greenwood, of Scarborough, at the age of 68. He had been a breeder of Canarics for more than forty years, and in the early '80's was perhaps the most noted breeder of Cinnamons in the country. He was not an extensive exhibitor, but showed successfully at Nottingham, Northampton, and Norwich, besides locally, and supplied many noted exhibitors with some of their show birds. He was also a successful breeder of Lizards, Norwich, and, in a smaller way, Crests. The interment took place on December 3rd

Mr. GEO. BROWN (Shoreditch).

It is with the deepest regret we have to announce the death of one of our best-known and most respected London bird-dealers, Mr. Geo. Brown, of the firm of Messrs. Geo. and Albert Brown, Selater Street, Shoreditch, who passed away on December 2, after a very short illness (pneumonia). He was 36 years of age, and that he should be carried away in the very prime of life makes his demise all the more sad and regrettable. Mr. Brown had worked extremely hard (in conjunction with his brother) and had extended the very old-standing business left by his parents and established it on an even more sound and prosperous basis than ever. Always quiet, unassuming, and gentlemanly in disposition, Mr. Brown had earned the respect of neighbours and customers alike, and gained the confidence of all. The news of his untimely death came as a great shock to his wide circle of friends, both in and out the Fancy, and widespread sympathy has been extended to his sorrowing widow and little children in the great trouble which has overtaken them. Mr. Brown's death carries grief far afield, he having married the daughter of that well-known Norwich fancier, Mr. "Jiminy" Howard. To his relatives we tender our sincere condolences.

CAGE BIRDS Double Number, December 3 is very valuable, and the coloured plate of the Grey Parrots is a marvel.—J. W. BIRD (Durham).

Thank you very much for your grand double number. The plate is perfect, and a credit to your artist, Mr. Goodchild.—W. H. THURLEY (Sandy Beds).

CAGE BIRDS Double Number is really wonderful. The coloured plate of the Grey Parrots is the most artistic production it has been my pleasure to see.—J. W. MITCHELL (Morley).

What a grand double number of CAGE BIRDS you gave your readers again this week! The plate is especially interesting to me, as I and my boys were at the Zoo and watched your artist painting the Greys during August.—W. PILBEAM (Hayward's Heath).

I should just like to tell you what I think of this week's CAGE BIRDS. It is simply superb, and as for the coloured plate of the Grey Parrot, it is worth 50 frames. I have always found your paper most interesting, and shall always take it in. Good luck to CAGE BIRDS.—C. B. V. HODGSON (Bloxham).

Your coloured plate of a pair of Grey Parrots is grand. It shows distinctly the difference in sex, in features as well as shape of white face, and should be a good guide to all owners of a Grey Parrot who would be glad to know the actual sex of their bird. I frame most of your plates.—C. P. ARTHUR (Melksham).

We feel we cannot let this week's CAGE BIRDS pass by unnoticed without complimenting you on the enclosed plate, "Romeo and Juliet." It is a most magnificent plate, and great credit is due to the artist. We may say that we have sent it to the carver and gilder to be framed.—JAS. DEAN AND SON (Liverpool).

In our report of the recent Sheringham show, the name of the judge was inadvertently given as Mr. Hunt, whereas that well-known Norwich fancier Mr. T. Miles (of the St. Andrew's Aviaries) placed the cards in the cage bird section. We very much regret the error.

Spalding fanciers, notwithstanding the disaster of last January when they lost nearly £24, are running another show on the 12th of next month, with Mr. C. A. House as judge. Mr. Elviss, the secretary, hopes fanciers will remember that notwithstanding the big loss everyone was paid, and that a good entry will be given them.

I desire to thank the management of the late Leicester C.B.S show for the splendid care and attention given my exhibits. The birds arrived home at 8 a.m. on the Monday in the very pink of condition, and at noon same day my prize money and specials were there waiting for me. The Leicester C.B.S. officials are a right good lot of fellows. Truly, Mr. Tyler, the sec., has a splendid crew.—A. J. A. MARLEY (London).

I exhibited 10 Norwich in the champion classes at Cardiff show, writes Mr. J. Tristem (Bristol), and won 4 firsts, 2 seconds, 1 third, and 5 of my birds were claimed at catalogue price by a well-known exhibitor. Three are unflighted birds, including my unflighted buff, winner 1st and challenge cup, Bristol, 1st and sp. Frome, 1st Cardiff. I wish the claimant all success with his new team. I shall watch with interest CAGE BIRDS reports as to his winnings.

The committee of Harrogate show, writes Mr. G. H. Barnwell, the hon. sec., wish to tender their thanks to all the exhibitors. All prize money has been paid. I may say that we were complimented on the magnificent room, also upon the staging (we possess the best staging in Yorkshire for a cage bird show). It was the finest cage bird show ever held in Harrogate, and well patronised by the ladies, and several who had always had the idea it was cruel to keep birds in cages, were convinced that the birds were as happy as in the wild state. We wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

Gateshead Beats Record.

"Entries 1,450, a Gateshead record.—Holden and Curry, Secs." The above highly satisfactory telegram reaches us as we are closing for press, and evidences the healthy state of the cage bird Fancy in the Tyneside district. Visitors to Gateshead show have a rare treat in store.

What the Editor of "Truth" Thinks.

The R.S.P.C.A. is such a useful organisation that I hesitate to find fault with it, writes the Editor of that well-known weekly journal "Truth" in a recent issue; but one of its recent prosecutions under the Wild Birds' Protection Acts certainly seems to have been ill-advised. The defendant was summoned at Lambeth for having had in his possession on October 22 certain Goldfinches "recently taken." It was shown that the birds must have been in captivity prior to September 10, on which date they were purchased by the defendant at Thetford; but the society's solicitor boldly contended that the words "recently taken" in the Acts should be construed to mean within a period of six months. In dismissing the case, the magistrate characterised this as an outrageous suggestion, and I am disposed to agree with him.

A GUINEA FOR AN EYE.

Result of the Competition in 'Cage Birds' of November 5th.

In our issue of November 5 we published a large square in which appeared the tail only of a drawing of a Norwich Plainhead Canary, and we offered a prize of one guinea to the reader who correctly solved the puzzle by placing a dot or similar small mark indicating the position of eye as found in our artist's completed sketch. The competition proved not only novel and interesting, but exceedingly popular, considerably over 2,000 efforts being received.

A number of competitors succeeded in placing the dot, or mark, in the correct position. To decide upon the "lucky one," therefore, all the winning efforts were placed in a hat, well shaken up, and one of them drawn by the office boy. The fortunate winner of the One Guinea prize proved to be

Mr. James Thorpe,
12, Beaconsfield Street,
Pyecroft,
Ashton-under-Lyne,

to whom a cheque will be sent in due course.

The other competitors who successfully solved the problem were Messrs. W. Irvine (Kilsyth), T. W. Hood (Glasgow), H. G. Hynd (Dunfermline), E. Adams (Beeston), A. Ellsmon (Coventry), G. W. Whitehead (Groole), J. Ellison (Leigh, Lancs.), Mrs. Paling (Pairley), and Masters A. Pettitt (Newcastle, Staffs.) and W. Borden (Blyth).

Several competitors had to be disqualified by reason of their having sketched in the bird, which the rules published at the time prohibited.

Amusement would result if some of the efforts received were to be published, the "dot" being placed by many of the competitors in surprisingly impossible positions.

IS CRUSHED HEMP SEED POISON TO BIRDS?

In his lecture upon bird seeds (vide last week's CAGE BIRDS, page 459), my good friend Mr. E. S. Lugg makes a statement which comes as a surprise to me and which, I think, must have given rise to no little consternation amongst a great number of readers. He says: "I am no lover of crushed hemp, and I attribute to its use, if it could only be traced, the loss of many a would-be prize winner." Then, in the ensuing discussion, he follows up this denunciation by saying (in reply to questions): "Crushed hemp, in my opinion, is an abomination. Crushed and allowed to stand releases the poison contained in the husk or shell, which impregnates the kernel, and here you have the root of the evil. I am no lover of it (even of fresh-crushed) unless I can get the kernel only, abstracting all the husks."

Now, as all this constitutes a most serious reflection upon the character of a very old friend of mine—I have used crushed hemp for over twenty years, and have always looked upon it in the light of a "friend"—I should like to ask Mr. Lugg on what evidence he bases his statement that the shell of this seed contains poison? What does he mean by "poison"? I am aware that in the East a drug made from hemp is used to produce a form of intoxication; but this, I believe (I am open to correction) comes solely from the leaves of the plant, and in nowise from its seeds.

Mr. Boaler, in his very valuable book upon "Bird Seeds" (published by CAGE BIRDS), when writing upon hemp says: "I am told that the outer shell contains some quantity—small, of course—of an irritant poison. . . If this is so, we may look to the presence of the ground-up shell as the cause of the ill-effects so often attributed to the use of the seed when crushed for feeding young birds."

This, readers will observe, is quite indefinite and noncommittal. It arouses one's suspicions, but that is all. It is, of course, well to be cautious; still, as I had used cracked hemp-seed (not crushed, mind you, though possibly this is a "distinction without a difference," so far as this matter is concerned), so successfully for so many years, I did not take Mr. Boaler's words (admittedly second-hand information) very seriously.

But friend Lugg does not mince matters. He makes us "sit up" by boldly stating that crushed hemp is an abomination, and that poison lurks in its shell. Mr. Lugg is connected with a well-known seed firm, and may have clear evidence in substantiation of these statements. If so, I for one should be grateful to him if he would put the same before the Fancy; and I am sure every bird-keeper would be equally grateful. Hemp-seed is very widely used in every branch of our hobby, both whole and when crushed, and if we have indeed been "hugging a serpent to our bosom," as the saying goes, then Mr. Lugg will be performing a good service in opening our eyes to the true state of affairs. The presence or otherwise of poison in the shell should be readily determinable by a skilled analyst. It is common knowledge that hemp is a very oily seed, and that if crushed and left for a period of time this oil will become rancid and smell disagreeably—in which state, if fed to birds, I can well believe it would work harm. But this, I take it, is not the poison referred to by Mr. Lugg, as the oil, of course, is contained in the kernel, not the shell.

"Old friends are best." These well-known words appeal to me, and I am loth to think ill of hemp-seed, even though crushed (no joke intended) under Mr. Lugg's condemnation. I use a very considerable quantity of cracked hemp—both in and out of the breeding season—and certainly have never had any cause to suspect it of poisoning my birds or of doing other than (1) helping them to develop into well-grown specimens, and (2) helping them to keep in good health and condition. In fact, I feel justified in saying that I think I could regularly feed any of my Norwich Canaries (we will leave British birds out of the question) on half Canary and half cracked hemp seed for a twelve-month without anything happening beyond, maybe, the acquisition of a rotund "corporation"—such a "corporation" as I myself hope one day to acquire when I have taken my place among the City fathers and am living on turtle soup!

G. E. WESTON.

MORE DELIGHTED ADVERTISERS.

Kindly thank all who answered my advertisement in "CAGE BIRDS" of December 3rd issue; I had so many applicants, I could not reply to all.—F. A. WALKER (Ormskirk).

I am pleased to say that I sold the whole of my stock of Norwich Canaries from my two advertisements in "CAGE BIRDS," writes Mr. Alfred Grey (Morpeth). I think this is wonderful, considering that they realised considerably over £100, and the advertising has cost me less than 10/-! Another thing I noticed was that out of the hundreds of letters which I received, nearly every one mentioned having read my lecture to the members of the Newcastle C.B. Society, which you published in your paper. I might also mention that I received letters from all over the British Isles.

I got so many replies to my advertisement in "CAGE BIRDS" (to exchange watch for Canaries), I could not reply to all; so I take this opportunity of doing so, through your valuable paper, as I am suited. As this is my first attempt at advertising in "CAGE BIRDS," I must admit that "CAGE BIRDS" is the paper in which to state one's wants. I am afraid I shall have the postman coming for a Christmas box for causing him extra work.—W. WILSON (North Walsham).

Replies to my advertisement re Bullfinch, in "CAGE BIRDS" being so numerous, I find it impossible to answer all.—J. WRIGHT, (Birmingham).

The Birds of my Back Yard in a Big City.

W. DOWNING (Manchester).

My favourite among the commoner British birds is the Thrush. As a pet it is comely to look at, nice to listen to, docile and intelligent, and with care, kindness, and a little perseverance it will become tamer than a barn-door fowl. Some people say this class of bird is not suitable for cage life; in fact, one very old Canary fancier and judge told me he would as soon think of keeping a pig as a Thrush. Well, so would I, if afterwards it were going to be hung as bacon. My friend was simply expressing an opinion on something he knew very little about. Feed the Thrush, Blackbird, or Starling with suitable food, and keep them clean, and you will find them no more trouble to cater for than the Canary; and if you are anything like of the same temperament as I am, you will derive much more enjoyment from them than from the Canary.

My Thrushes will answer to their names, as also will a hen Blackbird, and they show their pleasure when you stand in front of their cage talking to them, especially if they see you have the mealworm tin in your hand.

To Steady Britishers.

I think the true way to steady all wild birds is through their "little mary." I feed all my birds, Canaries included, from the inside of the cages, and if they are new-caught British birds they have water inside the cage also, and, to teach them the rules of the house when feeding them, as my hand goes into the cage to bring out the food pot, I am talking to them all the time, never minding their fluttering, as they soon become accustomed to the hand going into the cages, and they soon learn that it spells friendship and grub for them—something good. And if you talk to them in the same manner as you would talk to your best girl when out with her by moonlight alone, you will be surprised at the power you will soon have over your birds, and how they will soon look with pleasure at your approach. All my British birds as far as possible are caged no higher than breast-high, and are usually in the back yard, both summer and winter.

I can just fancy some reader saying, "Poor birds, how they must suffer!" Well, if they do suffer they look remarkably well on it, and we usually have plenty of music, even in winter, and are always in the "pink of condition," covered with lovely bloom.

In the Backyard.

We have in our back yard four Thrushes, a hen Blackbird, a ben Bullie, a cock Greenfinch, cock Linnets, and a cock Yorkshire Canary, many times a winner; also we have two hen Canaries which have been in the yard since May, 1909, and at the time of writing they are in a most vigorous condition, and they have taken to singing so loudly that I am afraid it will be useless my trying to breed with them. They are also doing the short flight business continually. So much, then, for open-air commonsense treatment of birds in their natural element—fresh air, as pure as we can get it in a big city.

Of our five birds of the Thrush family four at separate periods have managed to escape from their cage through a door being left open, but none of the four appeared to value its liberty, for they made no attempt to go out of sight of their so-called prison except one, and that was "Lady Jane" (our best bird, who has never yet met defeat); when she escaped in the early morning she went clean away, and we had given her up as lost, but at dinner-time she turned up again on a yard wall; so I placed a mealworm on each perch and one in the open doorway, and placing the cage on the top of the wall I commenced to talk to her, and right pleased she seemed to hear my voice, as she strutted about on the top of that wall, and when she spied the tit-bits at once made a bee line for the cage, and was inside in double quick time. The door was shut, and the bird was soon back in her old position. This is the hen we have since bred with in a cage (as related some time since in CAGE BIRDS.)

An Attempt at Thrush Breeding.

The first year she took to laying eggs in her cage in the yard she dropped more than twenty on the cage floor in the season, and it was this fact that gave me the idea of breeding Thrushes in a cage. So when the next breeding season came round we made a square box large enough to hold a Thrush nest; we cut up some hay and put it inside the cage with bits of old straw and rubbish suitable for nest making, and soon her ladyship was dancing about the cage. We have a big bath hung on one of the doors every day, and she was soon dipping a beakful of the rubbish in the bath water and then, hopping back into the cage, she would pound it on a stone (we always have a stone in each cage), and then carry it into the nest box. She would leave it there, and then get into the bath herself, getting thoroughly soaked with water; then she would go and squat on the rubbish in the box. We allowed this to go on for a day or two, the cock being most attentive to her all the time. When she had steadied down a bit we put a Thrush nest in the box on the top of her rubbish; but she was not long in pulling this to pieces and carrying it to the bath and dropping it in to soak and have another go with it on her own to re-set it again. And a fine mess she made of both herself and the cage. But we did not mind this, and let her go on playing for another short time; we then removed all the rubbish, and gave her another good Thrush nest, making it firm in the box by packing the corners. I may say here that we had nailed branches of furze on the front of the nest box, and very bonny the birds looked as they bustled about the nest, peeping here and looking there.

Everything appearing in order, the hen was soon comfortably sitting in the nest with the cock looking approvingly on, and we had not long to wait for the first eggs. Soon we had four splendidly-coloured eggs in that nest. We had removed each egg as laid until she had deposited her third, giving her a substitute in the form of a bantam pot egg; this we removed on returning her own three eggs. The Thrush made no objection, and laid her fourth egg the following morning.

She sat as close as any barn-door fowl, and was a lot tamer. She would take mealworms from our fingers as she sat on the nest. She even took mealworms from the fingers of a friend of ours. So you may guess we were full of hope and anticipation as the time drew nigh for hearing the "cheep cheep" behind that furze. But we waited in vain. Some thief in the night had upset them, I suppose, by getting the hen off the nest to see what was under her, doing the same, I am afraid, to a Greenie hen that was sitting on a clutch of full eggs. When we got up in the morning, our best young cinnamon marked Buff Yorkshire cock was missing from its cage in the yard. There was nothing for it but to make the best of a bad job, and try again, with the yard and garden doors made secure.

The birds went through the same performance and soon we had another clutch of eggs, very full in colour. She sat her full time, and hatched out one young bird, and was soon feeding it on bread and milk with crushed hemp seed mixed among it. She appeared to prefer this to her usual food, but her special tit-bit at this time was gentles; she preferred these even to mealworms. The young bird was all right at bed time, but when my wife went to look at them in the morning she was astonished to see a young bird on the cage bottom with its inside eaten away; we believe this was done by mice, being over-run with them at this time. The cock Thrush could not have been the culprit, because he was in the other half of the Canary breeding cage, with a wire partition separating him from the hen. The birds again stayed out in the yard all the winter, with no other protection than a weather-board over the top of the cage. In the spring they were soon ready to try their luck again.

In 1909 and this year we had also a young hen Blackbird, hand-reared. We ran her with the two Thrushes for some time, and put a nest up for her in the other half of the Canary breeder. Of course, we had in a good supply of Thrush and Blackbird nests, friends thirty or forty miles away sending me these through the post. We ran the cock a portion of each day with either bird. He seemed fond of the hen Thrush, but merely tolerated the Blackbird; and so, as we expected, the hen Thrush went to nest first. We then shut the cock off with the Blackbird, and she soon gave us the impression that there would be eggs. And there were. When she laid her first egg we removed it in the same manner as we had previously removed the Thrush's eggs, putting a pot egg in the nest; but she would have none of this, and went for the pot egg with her beak. As each egg was laid afterwards we had to be slick in removing it from the cage, as she had developed a liking for new laid eggs. We put one of her eggs under the Thrush at ten o'clock at night, but found it outside the nest broken the following morning, the hen still sitting on her own. How could she distinguish this egg from her own?

I placed three pot eggs in the Blackie's nest, and she sat on them a few times, so we thought she was settling down, and accordingly removed them at tea time, putting her own three eggs in the nest; we watched her for a few minutes, and then went in to tea. Coming out again as soon as tea was over to see how the eggs had fared, we found they were gone; all that was left were a few fragments of shell among the sawdust. Through various causes we got no farther than eggs in 1909.

But we are full of hope for the coming season, and have secured extra Thrushes as reserves, and to enable us to give the Blackbird a mate for herself. We are going to get a nest of Blackbird's eggs that have been sat on, and through some cause become bad and foul. We are going to put these inside her nest, and let her have a go at them; it may cure her; if it does not, we will take other steps to have the eggs incubated. And who will say that we shall not be able to overcome our difficulties, and produce our young Thrushes? True, they will only be worth a few pence, but they will give us more real pleasure than all the Canaries we have ever bred.

And we think our chance equal with regard to the Thrush-Blackbird Hybrid. If we get that, it will be a novelty—a bird worth looking at.

I often wonder that more fanciers do not go in more for this class of bird. Why should we not have hybrids on the show bench from softbills? There could be many interesting crosses, and I fancy that anyone taking up this side of our hobby will find it engrossing in interest and a delightful study. He will learn much of the birds' habits that will please him and cause him to wonder at their wisdom.

Thrushes and Blackbirds in the spring in my backyard are ravenously fond of dandelion leaf. I have never seen them eat it in the open. It is also curious to see the birds, when given a supply of earth worms, carry them to the stone in the cage and give them a pummelling before making a meal of them.

The Staple Diet.

Our staple diet for this class of bird is as follows: Good class chicken or game meal; take five tablespoonsful of this, place it in a bowl; scald in boiling water one tablespoonful of good ants' eggs, one tablespoonful of dried flies on desertspoonful of crissel or meat meal; strain these, and mix well with the chicken meal, adding grated carrot or chopped lettuce, or almost any other vegetable. For a change, either boil or fry sheep's liver (or heart), then rub this on the grater, and it will rub down into a fine powder; this makes a splendid change from the crissel, and helps to bring the birds into high condition and song. For another change, give them a few currants in their food; or for another change, a good brand of puppy biscuits; break these up small, and give instead of the meal. Some of the packet foods are also very good by way of a change. The birds are also very fond of fruit—grapes, sweet pear, ripe apple, or almost any other kind of ripe fruit. It is very rarely one of our birds is off colour. Perhaps about once or twice a year I may notice one of them gaping a little, that is, opening and closing its beak as though it had a difficulty in breathing. Some people set this down as a sign of asthma. I have always set it down to stomach trouble. So whenever this signal of distress appears we at once give the bird a dose of Epsom salts in the drinking water for one day; and it has not yet failed us in a single instance.

To keep British birds in good condition the bath is a necessity. Let it hang on the door continually if possible. A good tin of grit, and with softbills, Thrushes, etc., a pinch of salt in all their food, should also be supplied. Give earth worms, gentles, spiders, slugs, beetles, and meal worms

Notes from Erin.

CORK held a grand show, which proved a success financially, and the committee is to be congratulated. It is hoped Cork fanciers will join in with the Fancy generally, and thus help to make our hobby and our shows a success, which will further the interests of the cage bird Fancy in Ireland.

ULSTER O.A. annual show was one of the finest held this season in Ireland, there being close on 450 entries, a great increase on last year. The British Goldfinch classes contained 20 exhibits. The valuable silver cup was won by Mr. J. Thompson, with his Norwich. In the Yorkshire classes, Mr. McQuade and Mr. Fleming led the way—two 1st prizes each. Mr. Devins was "out of luck," his well-known "600" standing vhc. There were only four champion classes for Yorkshires, and I feel confident entries would have come up much better if the usual classification had been provided.

I AM sure we are all pleased to find new exhibitors in the Yorkshire open classes, and it is hoped their successes will encourage them to send their exhibits further afield. I have pleasure in commending those referred to to the notice of secretaries, so that schedules will be forwarded in due course, viz., Mr. J. Kincaid (Londonderry), Mr. T. McNielly (Carrickfergus), Mr. E. Dunwoody (Dunmurry), and Mr. Donnolly (Belfast).

FANCIERS down South will be pleased to note that all the Belfast Norwich men have not "retired" or "grown tired" of their hobby—as will be seen from entries in this section. It is to be hoped that they have once again commenced "the fight." Some little time ago it was feared that the Norwich men did not intend to send their representatives for a day's outing; but we are pleased to find we were under a misapprehension.

AT Dundalk show, all prize money was paid out in good time, and it can thus be seen that the writer of a letter respecting this was a little "previous" in referring to the matter. If he has not received his cheque he should communicate with the secretary.

"CLOSED RING."

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and on addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 151, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids—G. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., &c., Park and Lake Aviculture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. M.B.O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Grecns, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

Canary with Damaged Tail.

F. Banes.—As you distinctly say the bird is a youngster of this season, it ought not to have lost tail feathers naturally. If you have not plucked the tail, I would suggest that you first consider whether it is possibly attacked at night by a mouse. Although rare, this is by no means unknown. Indeed, I have on one or two occasions been an eyewitness of such attacks. Secondly, you should thoroughly examine its cage for red mites, as these are also very likely to be at the root of the mischief. If these pests are discovered, thoroughly eradicate them as frequently described in this column of late. Feed on a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition, give a small teaspoonful of a mixture of hemp, inga, millet, teazle and split groats, in equal parts, twice a week, and every second day for the next fortnight give a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with maw seed. On the alternate days twice each week give a spray of watercress, bit of banana, or of raw carrot. Allow the bird to bathe, and add a few drops of essence of quassia to the water, and give 20 drops of Chemical Food in the drinking water daily for a week. If the bleeding continues catch the bird and paint the quill daily for a few days with a small feather dipped in Friar's Balsam. Hold the bird for minute or two until initial heat of paint has passed off.

Cage Queries.

J. K.—It will be quite harmless to enamel the insides of the cages, provided you allow it to become quite dry and hard before the birds are put in. The number of coats required depends upon the skill with which it is used. Personally, I always find two quite thin coats enough, after wood has been properly prepared. To prepare the plain wood, sandpaper it quite smooth, then reduce a little of the enamel you are going to use to the consistency of very thin paint by adding turpentine (or any other material which the makers advise for "thinning" when enamel is too thick), and well paint the wood all over with this, rubbing it on well, working in the joints and corners, and any cracks. Allow this to dry hard and then smooth it down again with fine sandpaper. Fill up any cracks, etc., with putty, and then give two thin coats of enamel proper. Remember, thin coats are best, and although the first may look a trifle bad and show the colour of the wood through it, the second will be O.K. Allow first coat to dry well before applying the second.

Continually Moulting (F.H.B.).—The bird's position in the window is accountable for its condition. Move it into a position further in the room, where the temperature will be less vnriable. Do not put too near the fire, nor where there will be cold draughts or fumes from burning lights, but aim at pure air, and an equable, though not necessarily very warm, temperature. Then treat the bird as advised to "W. J. L.," in last issue, which will soon set matters right.

Crystal Palace Aviary (Novice, Dalston).—You have omitted to insert the measurements of your aviary. If it is of the usual size, however, it will hold five or six Canaries comfortably. But for breeding, you should only put in one pair, unless it is divided into three separate compartments, in which case you might either run a single pair in each compartment, or a hen in each, and have one cock to run with them alternately, or a hen in each end and a cock to run with them alternatively, and reserve the middle compartment as a nursery and to keep the cock in when not engaged with either hen. Feed as advised "F. Banes" in this issue, giving the canary and rape mixed together. As regards British birds, please address a query to our Mr. Weston, and do not forget to mention actual size of aviary.

Age for Breeding (F. P.).—Yes, the young Canaries, hatched last May will be ready for pairing next end of March or early April. Those hatched in August may also be ready to mate, but even if they are, especially if of one of the large breeds, I would not advise you to pair them until near, or quite, the end of the month, and in no circumstances to take more than two nests from them. Mate them with birds between over their second moult.

Ticking Feathers (A. G. H.).—The bird is probably pestered with red mites. Give it a bath daily in which a few drops of essence of quassia have been mixed, and thoroughly overhaul cage as described in detail in reply to "F. N.," three weeks ago, to which reply I would refer you. You might also give a pinch of Epsom salts and ten drops of lemon juice in the water for two days, and afterwards twenty drops of Chemical Food daily for a week.

A Street Lamp (Novice).—If close to window the light will doubtless be sufficient to encourage the birds to go down to the food and water troughs at intervals during the night. No harm will necessarily result from this, unless it be that the birds may become over-fat. The remedy, however, is quite easy; draw down the window blind at, say, about 9 p.m. The advantage to be gained by the hens feeding next season is, in my opinion, scarcely worth considering. There will be plenty of daylight then.

Diarrhœa (Novice).—See all your seeds, foods, and water supply are sound, sweet and pure. Give no green food of any kind for the present. Feed on a staple of two parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day give a pinch of hemp and a morsel of ripe banana, and on the alternate days a little dry crushed plain biscuit. Keep cage and perches scrupulously clean, and stick a bit of cuttlefish in the wires for her to peck at. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom Salts as will cover a sixpence for one day only. After this give twenty drops of whisky, and six each of tincture of gentian and laudanum, in the drinking water two days in every three, until the looseness is corrected.

Canary Querists should send to our publisher for "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d.; "House's Canary Manual," 1/2; and "Yorkshire Canaries," 1/-, post free.

Mates for next Season (W. W. Hampson).—You will certainly do wrong to use cinnamon cocks with your hens. It would simply amount to going a long indirect way instead of a short one to reach your goal. There is plenty of ready-made material suitable for your purpose. Get a good large chubby buff cock with extra good head, large, but short in beak and free from beetle-brows. Avoid anything showing distinct traces of crest-bred blood. Get as much as possible in front of the perch and as little as possible behind it. If the bird comes from a strain noted for good head points so much the better. If necessary, get two such birds, with markings to suit your hens.

In Soft Condition (Blackthorn).—Keep these birds in a cosy corner of the room quite out of draught, but not overheat them. In addition to the staple diet give each half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and a morsel of ripe banana, or raw carrot, or watercress, when fit to use, every second day, and on alternate days a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion and four of sherry mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed. Twice a week give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, teazle and millet. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and three of tincture of steel every second day for a week.

Turns Seed Brown (W. I.).—I suspect the bird simply removes the husk from the seed and leaves the kernels, or most of them, in the box. See that the seed is quite sound and sweet. In addition to the staple of canary give half a teaspoonful of summer rape and a morsel of ripe banana every second day, and on the alternate days a morsel of bread soaked in milk, drained, and sprinkled with maw seed. Keep cage floor strewn with clean gritty sand. In the drinking water give the rhubarb and salts mixture as advised to "Disappointed" for a week, and in the next week give four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid, every second day. See reply to "Carte Blanche" in last issue for feeding after bird is quite recovered.

Rollers and Yorkshires Moulting (Redcap).—You do not appear to know whether the birds were kept in a warm room before you bought them, nor whether they have previously moulted this season. Under these circumstances you had better let the moult take its course, and only take care that they are not exposed to very great fluctuations, or dampness. It will be best to keep them in a fairly comfortable place—not too warm, nor yet on the cold side. In addition to the staple diet give each bird half a teaspoonful of a mixture of hemp, inga, millet, teazle, and split groats twice a week, on two other days a morsel of banana, raw carrot, or sweet apple, and on each of the remaining days half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed. Vary these extras so that a different one is given each day, and continue this treatment until the moult is quite finished. You might give 20 drops of Chemical Food in the water daily for a week.

Heating and "Flighting." (G. F.).—(1) If the room is cosy and comparatively free from extremes of heat and cold, and from damp, there is no necessity to heat it unless starting with birds which have been brought up in a heated room, in which case, of course, you would need to adopt the same method for this winter and next spring at least. After that you might gradually accustom the birds to do without it, as also the young you breed yourself. (2) The term "flighting" is usually associated with the nearly obsolete practice of plucking out flights. If you wish to breed to any pure standard or type, you would signally fail by allowing birds to fly loose and choose their own mates. You might wire off a given space and let the hens fly in it through the winter for exercise, but when pairing time arrives you must cage them up and match each pair in the way you consider most likely to produce what you want. You would do well to read up this subject in "Our Canaries," now being issued in monthly parts eight of which are now ready.

A Mixture (T. A. A. West).—Your letter refers to quite a mixed lot, but I do not gather from it that any of the canaries put in the aviary have died. You should have written queries for each class of canaries, British and Foreign birds, on separate sheets. As it is, I am passing it on to Messrs. Weston and Page in rotation, whose columns please refer to next week. The illustration referred to did not reach me. Did you overlook enclosing it? Sorry I cannot name the plant from the specimen sent. You should cover in a part of the aviary on top, and two or three sides at least, in order to afford snug roosting places. Also hang up near the roof a few small bundles of loose twigs and pieces of dried bracken in which the birds may elect to roost. There would be only one objection to putting in a few bushy plants of hawthorn, box, privet, etc., viz.—that the droppings of the birds are apt to render them unsightly. But as your aviary is a good size this would not be quite so objectionable. Clumps of ornamental grasses may also be introduced.

Mites and Moulting (T. Brand).—To thoroughly eradicate the mites, which is an important first step in treatment, look up these replies for the past few weeks, and treat cage as frequently described in detail. See that bird is not exposed to draughts; keep in an equable and comfortable temperature, but do not overdo it; and feed generally as also frequently given here of late. As extra items to the general diet give a half teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion and four of sherry well mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed, every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days give a morsel of ripe banana and a few grains of hemp seed. Also add 20 drops of chemical food to its water every second day for a fortnight.

Feeding Canaries (Interested One).—You fail to put any definite question beyond desiring some information on feeding. To go into the question generally is impossible here, so you cannot do better than get "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., post free, from our manager. If you also got Parts I. to VIII. of "Our Canaries," now ready, you would have the very fullest information on all points. If you refer to feeding songsters kept singly, see reply to "Carte Blanche" in last issue. If to birds kept for breeding, feed on a staple of plain canary seed and give a pinch of summer rape separately every second day, and otherwise as advised to "Carte Blanche." If you meet with any difficulty I shall be happy to advise you if you write us. Thanks for good wishes, and good luck attend you in the hobby.

Too Vague (Disappointed).—Your query contains nothing to suggest an idea of anything being seriously wrong with the birds. They might be in too forward breeding condition to act as you say, but that would not account for many dying. Please write us more fully, and say how many birds have died, when, whether in quick succession or otherwise, whether adults or young, and describe as clearly as you can the symptoms they show before death, how long they are ill, and whether diarrhœa or constipation is a symptom. Also say how you have been feeding. Meantime give a staple of plain canary seed, with half a teaspoonful of summer rape separately every second day, and a morsel of bread soaked in cold milk and sprinkled with soft sugar on the alternate days. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

Budgerigars and Lovebirds.

Amateur.—Am afraid I cannot do what you ask. Budgies and Cockatiels are free breeders, but the Blue-wings are not. They are occasional breeders, but they are worth keeping for variety alone, and you will possibly get an occasional brood from them. Permit me to emphasise that though I frequently say a given number can be kept in a given space, this is really to meet the exegencies of the querist. You cannot give the birds too much room— the larger the aviary the better for your birds, the greater your own pleasure and interest, the more numerous are likely to be your breeding results. Most certainly make your aviary as large as possible; you will get better results from the Budgies and Cockatiels, and your chance of breeding the Blue-wings will be greatly enhanced.

A Feather-eating Grey.

"Broken."—From the feathers you send, it is evident the bird is nibbling its own feathers, and their condition is the consequence of it having bitten and split up the feather shaft. I should gradually wean this bird from the boiled maize and get it on to a diet of seed mixture, ripe fruit, plain biscuit, and a few nuts, with a little green food (leaf of lettuce, etc.), as opportunity offers. While the boiled maize is continued, put 10 to 12 drops of Parrish's Chemical Food on same daily, letting it soak in before supplying it to the bird. Every fourth day, so long as the voidings are not watery-loose, put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia into its drinking water (ordinary sized drinker). Spray the bird twice weekly with a saturated solution of quassia, but keep the bird carefully out of draught till dry. Grit and cuttlefish must be regularly supplied. A little grit may with advantage be mingled with the daily seed supply. I take it the bird is getting water regularly; if not, you must introduce it gradually, not keeping the water in cage, but letting it take a few sips several times daily, and when you see there is no tendency to overdrink, the water may be left in the cage. Report progress in few weeks hence.

Foreign Bird Querists will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Burgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free; a mine of information of use and interest.

Bishops, Combassou, etc.

Aviculturist.—(1) Bishops and Combassons go out of colour every season and resume it again each spring. (2) I think your bird is an Oryx (Grenadier) Weaver. In such case the price paid is very reasonable, but one cannot be certain of the species, as it may be half out of colour. However, if it retains its present colouration in late spring, it may lose it in the interim—it is as above. (3) Yes, there is nothing against your suggested arrangement, save that the money spent on these small enclosures would suffice for a really decent-sized aviary. (4) If you want Whydahs, not more than two pairs—Paradise and Queen. The latter is also known as the Racquet-tailed. (5) Not really a necessity, though I really believe it is better to keep all birds in pairs, but Weavers and Whydahs miss this very little, and the former weave their nests just as industriously as if they were mated. (6) Supply Canary, white and spray millet, also try them with a few oats and a little paddy rice. Give regular supplies of green food, grit, and cuttlebone, also a little of any kind of ripe fruit they will eat. Weavers and Whydahs should have a couple of mealworms, or, rather, insects, per bird daily. (7) It is just the vagaries of the market—one time we are fairly swamped with a species, and then none for quite a spell. You can only "watch and wait."

Waxwing with Small Birds.

G. A. Baker.—(1) In a roomy aviary, I have kept the Waxwing with small species, but from its demeanour, and also reports of other individuals, I should hesitate to advise you to do so, in a comparatively small flight, if you repeat query with size of aviary, etc., I will give you a more definite answer. (2) It could be kept outside, providing the aviary had a shelter shed attached to it, and was large enough for the bird to get ample exercise. It is hardy, and should be kept in a cool room indoors. (3) Soft food, containing a liberal quantity of minced currants and raisins; a liberal supply of mealworms or other live insects, such ripe fruit as you can induce it to take. I should also keep a small tin of mixed seed, canary, millet, hemp and sunflower seeds, in the aviary for it to take a little if it cared to. My birds have all taken some seed. (4) In the foreign section, unless there was a class for Continental birds, when it should be shown there.

Foreign Siskin.

M.B.W.—I should stop the niger for a time, and then only give a pinch occasionally. Diet: Canary, white and spray millet, a little ripe apple or other fruit to peck at, green food (lettuce, fresh and tender, at this season), grit and cuttlebone. You can continue the dessicated egg food, but only in small quantities. I should, however, gradually wean it from this, and confine it to the above diet. If it will take a mealworm, by all means let it have a couple daily. Give for one day and repeat every fourth day, Dinneford's magnesia and water in equal parts, in lieu of the drinking water, so long as the voidings are not watery loose. When not giving the magnesia water, put 3 drops each of glycerine and oxymel of squills and two drops of ipecacuanha wine into one tablespoonful of water, and when properly dissolved (incorporated with the water) supply to the bird in lieu of drinking water. The bird should be permitted to have a drink of pure water at midday. When giving drugs, and for the medicated water, only glass, crock or china utensils should be used. As soon as relief is given, put the bird on a course of Parrish's Chemical Food, and stop the ipecacuahana mixture. As a regular thing, the bird's bowels should move freely without being really loose—an occasional dose of the magnesia will keep them well regulated.

Budgerigars and Apple (Luhra).—Apple is really very wholesome for most species of birds, and you can safely let your Budgerigars indulge. Yes, they bite when handled, unless anger tame, and though the bite is not serious, it is very sharp and usually breaks the skin.

Parrakeets (Nemo).—(1) In a roomy aviary you could keep the following: Budgerigars, Cockatiels, Madagascar and Blue-winged Lovebirds, Rosella, and Moustache Parrakeets. Very few species are gregarious within the limits of an aviary, and excepting Budgerigars, do not attempt more than one pair of each species in the same aviary. (2) Head, silver-grey; the upper parts are principally fawn colour, with darker areas of vandyke brown on wings and rump; gorget and band across base of abdomen black; beak, coral-red. Very desirable for the outdoor aviary and regularly breeds in natural aviaries. (3) None of this species appears to have been on the market (or very few) of recent years, and consequently such command good prices, say, from 3 guineas upwards. (4) About eighteen months ago this species was almost unknown. To-day it is common!

Tiger Finches and Canaries (Cobb).—Yes, providing they are not crowded, the Tiger Finches (Avadavats) will agree with the Canaries, and white and spray millet will suffice for them with the other food to hand. The period is very variable in which this species retains the full nuptial plumage in this country. He does not remain long in the sombre (comparatively) undress plumage, but soon begins to gradually don his gay nuptial plumage. Yes, the cocks have a sweet little song, not very varied, but oft repeated, yet not monotonous. Hens have only a call note.

Budgerigars and Cockateels (F. Leng): Yes, you can keep the Budgies, Cockateels and Red-crested Cardinal together, they will agree. Get pairs of each if you can, and supply at least double the number of nesting receptacles that you have pairs of birds. Diet: Millet and canary seed, a few oats and millet sprays, with cuttlefish, green food (lettuce and flowering grass, etc.), a little of such food as they will take—also water and grit—seeding grass will always be a tit bit for these birds, whatever quantities you offer it in. The small Ornamental Finches can have a staple diet of canary and millet seed, with a millet spray every other day, green food, a little ripe fruit (such as they will take) with a pinch of maw seed now and again. In the Spring and Summer a spray of blighty foliage is the best titbit. The Cardinal ought to get at least a couple of mealworms or other insects daily.

What Bird? (Plough). — Your little birds are evidently Avadavats, though I cannot call to mind of hearing them called "Rice Birds." However, I fear I have been rather lax in noting popular names. They are mostly known in this country as common or Red Avadavats and Tiger Finches. Diet: Canary and white millet seed, also a millet spray more or less continuously in the cage; a slice of apple or any other kind of fruit it will take; a little green food, with grit, cuttlebone, and water, will almost meet its necessities. They are not free breeders in captivity, but if you keep them in a roomy cage, with twiggy branches for perches, and hang up a couple of cocoanut shell nests, supplying a little hay and moss, there should be a reasonable prospect of success, but the cage must be a roomy one.

What Name? (L. Bradshaw).—If your bird is a glossy black bird, with greeny and purplish-blue reflections, yellow beak, eye wattles, collar, and feet, it is a large Hill Mynah, and I have little doubt but what this is correct. To prevent any error, however, I may say its beak is not Parrot-shaped. Diet: Ripe fruit, soft food mixture, and live insects; a little meat occasionally will do no harm, neither will such cooked vegetable as it will take. A portion of boiled potatoe which has been passed through a masher may be added to the soft food mixture with advantage. Yes, a well trained bird is an accomplished talker and whistler. It is, however, a little larger than a Thrush; in fact, a rather more bulky bird.

An Ailing Lovebird (E. J. "Vivi."). Your diet is about right, but I should give a millet spray twice a week, and regularly such ripe fruit as it will take; also grit and cuttlefish. Of course, I am assuming that by Canary food you mean Canary seed. You must not give this bird soft, or any kind of egg food. Give half a teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia to an ordinary sized drinker of water every fourth day, so long as the voidings are not watery loose, and on the other day put 4 drops of glycerine to the same quantity of water and continue till relief is given, then put the bird on a course of Parrish's Chemical Food. If the symptoms should become aggravated, you had better repeat query at once.

A Feather Puller (Baker Before I attempt to answer your query, you must supply me with full details as to how you have been treating the bird. In the interim, in lieu of the ordinary drinking water, give Dinneford's Magnesia and water in equal parts every fourth day, and spray the bird twice weekly with a saturated quassia solution. When not giving the magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food.

Budgerigars in Poor Fettle (H W.).—(1) Your birds are evidently not strong constitutionally, and are certainly out of condition. Treating them is rather difficult. Take away the drinking water overnight and in the morning supply them with Dinneford's Magnesia and water in equal parts, leaving this in the aviary till mid-day, when it should be replaced with the ordinary water, which should be well coloured with Parrish's Chemical Food for the next month. (2) This is constitutional weakness, and the remedy is, change your cock birds and get only large, strong, well formed, richly coloured, and tightly feathered birds to replace them. (3) This bird is hardly worth troubling over, but it will benefit by the treatment as per answer (1), but I should not attempt breeding from such a bird.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by G. E. Weston.

A Linnet Matter (Marchpane).—I think you did the best thing possible by the change of treatment your describe, except that I should not give plain canary seed, but mix among it some teazle and a little summer rape. Vary the thistle with a little dandelion, maw and white lettuce seed (not all at one time, of course). I should not continue the taraxacum if his bowels move freely, but substitute 8 to 10 drops of tincture of gentian in two tablespoonfuls of water for 7 to 10 days. You will not, I think, find anything else necessary.

Crossbeak or Crossbill? (J. M. M.).—The Crossbill (this is the bird's correct name) is a common European birds, and found in considerable numbers in Great Britain. It nested in England in large numbers (somewhat unusual this) this last breeding season). It is a seed-eating bird—a member of the Finch tribe, as a matter of fact. Its name, of course, is derived from the peculiar shape assumed by its mandibles. There is a chapter dealing with the bird in Mr. Fina's "Birds of the Countryside"—look on page 29, and you will find it. It is missing from this index, which accounts, no doubt, for you thinking the bird was not dealt with in this work.

A Greenfinch (J. Wallace).—Your method of feeding is quite good and correct, except that you should add sunflower seed to your list. A "Nutshell" booklet on the Greenfinch will be published very soon, and I advise you to obtain a copy. Anoint the bare place twice daily for five or six days with just a smear of boracic ointment (from any chemist).

For a Hen Bullfinch (F. J. T.).—Feed this bird plainly, or she may get overfat, which is detrimental to breeding results. Try the following mixture: Canary three part, teazle two parts, summer rape one part. Every other day give a dessertspoonful of sunflower seed. The "Nutshell" booklet on the Bullfinch should be very helpful to you; get a copy, by all means. For the Linnet, try the ointment advised J. Wallace this week.

A Goldfinch Matter (Enquirer).—You will find the buttons improve very much with a horse-moult; I never take any notice of the buttons in a fresh-caught Finch. The band of black over the head needs to be fairly broad (not out of proportion, however) and glossy. A bird with an exceptionally wide band of black is apt also to carry a lot of black feathers in its face (at base of beak), and the latter is a somewhat serious fault.

In the Negative (J. A. P.).—The answer to both your questions is in the negative. It is not correct to say that Linnets over a year old when caught will not breed with hen Canaries; and it is not correct to say that a Linnet prefers dark hen Canaries to light-coloured ones—a Muling Linnet is not by any means particular. You cannot beat a yellow hen (or buff, for that matter), of stout Norwich type, either clear or marked, as a mate for either the Linnet or the Goldfinch.

In an Aviary (J. C. H. O.).—I do not advise you to put Oxeye Tits in the aviary with other small birds; sometimes they "run amok" and brain one or two of their companions. The Blue Tits might be safe. For the rest, you could make up a very nice collection from the Finch family—all seed-eaters, of course — from 24 to 30 birds the size of a Chaffinch. Any of these would be suitable: Goldfinch, Linnet, Siskin, Redpoll, Twite, Bullfinch, Chaffinch (1 pair only), Bramblefinch (a pair only), Greenfinch, Yellow (1 pair only), Reed, Snow, Ortolan, and Cirl Buntings.

A Quintette (F. Cannabina).—(1) For colds, give the following mixture a trial. I have heard it well recommended. Whisky 20 drops, glycerine and oxymel of squills 6 drops each, eucalyptus oil 2 drops. This is for one dose, in three tablespoonful of drinking water. Give for three days fresh daily; then on alternate days for a week. (2) I haven't a recipe for birdlime by me; several have been given from time to time in Cage Birds. I will see if I can look one up (3) You must let me know what kind of Softbills. Nightingales, for instance, want feeding very differently to Blackbirds and the like. In the "Nutshell" booklets dealing with the Blackbird and Thrush (and the one on the Skylark) many very good food recipes are given. (4) The Reed Bunting will eat very little besides canary seed; no "stock mixture" is needed. Sprinkle a few good ants' eggs over it frequently, and give 3 or 4 mealworms daily. (5) The principal seed for both Hawfinches and Crossbills is sunflower; this must be given freely. In addition, offer any of the seeds usually given to members of the Finch family.

GENERAL.

Answered by The Editor.

"A Jingle" (J. Ahern).—We will try and find a corner for a verse or two in our 'Xmas issue. Being then in a charitable mood, our readers may forgive you (and us).

A Painting (F. G. M.).—Painting of Linnet safely to hand; thanks; we will see if it can be reproduced satisfactorily.

A Letter (F. C. F.).—The only rule you fail to observe (an important one, too) is that relating to writing on one side of paper only. We forgive you this time.

A Photograph (G. H. B.).—Many thanks for your kindness in sending us this photo; and for your friendly remarks.

Suggestions (J. Kay).—We are much obliged to you for the suggestions received, which we will give our full consideration.

Bird-catching Articles (Miles).—Articles on bird-catching appeared in our issues of Sept. 19, Oct. 24, Dec. 5, and Dec. 19, all of 1908. Copies of these can be sent you at 3d. each post free.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 2, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

F. Peet. Acute congestion of the lungs caused death, due to chill during hand-washing, and nervous influences induced by same. It is a frequent cause of mishap; those of a more highly nervous temperament being more susceptible. The condition of prevailing weather, of course, is of importance, and you could not have chosen a worse time for the operation when the air is full of moisture; dry days should be selected for this purpose.

J. H. Phillips. Your opinion as to death is about correct, both lungs were in an inflamed state, and, as I have frequently stated, there is scarcely a creature so influenced by alternation of temperature, and particularly moisture of the air, in its respiratory mechanism than the cage bird. They require special care and warmth during these trying periods.

DUNS.

Second annual show of the Duns and Dis. C.B.S. held Masonic Hall, Nov. 16th. The entries totalled 105. Spl. for best bird went to Mr. J. Newbiggin. The awards of Mr. J. W. Bruce (Coldstream) who judged, gave every satisfaction.

OSWESTRY.

Oswestry and Dist. Fanciers' and Working Men's fifth annual show, held Powis Hall, November 26th. This hall is a large, airy one, which we are pleased to say was admirably adapted for the show, being quite free from draught. Unfortunately the weather was wretched, both for the exhibits arriving, and the public. The entries in the cage bird section were very good, totalling 104 birds. Yorksbires turned up in good style. Mr. Jordan took special (silver medal) for best bird in show. It appears the natural colour birds are well to the front. The first prize winner, also special (silver medal) for best bird in the class went to Mr. Matthew Jones. The Norwich colour fed class had only five birds in it, but they were of very good type. The Norwich Nonfeds turned up in good style. Goldfinches and Bullfinches were well to the front, the two classes being well filled, and some toppers among them. There are hopes of forming a good cage bird society in Oswestry. Mr. P. Edwards (Shrewsbury) judged. The secs., Messrs. George and Pugh worked hard and well deserved the praise bestowed on them on all hands.

HYDE AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Show held Nov. 19, with 168 entries. And what a splendid array of Norwich! They were admired by everyone. Alderman Barron, J.P., C.C., performed the opening ceremony before a large attendance, Mr. A. Fildes being in the chair. During the day there was a large number of visitors, more even than we have ever had before, the whole affair being a thorough success from beginning to end. Mr. J. Raynes judged, and gave every satisfaction.

LOWESTOFT AND DIST. C.B.S.

Annual show, held Mr. Kirk's rooms, Mill Road, Nov. 24th. Entries did not come up to previous year's, several members not being able to exhibit. In the Norwich champion classes the yellows were not so good as usual, but the buffs were very nice, both in size and quality. Mr. Mulford obtained cup for most points, which were gained in the novices classes 167 points. Mr. Rackham, who has held it two years, came second with 154 points, gained in the champion classes. Mr. Rackham also won Sandiford's medal. Great thanks are due to Mr. Kirk for his kindness in clearing his rooms, which he lent to the society free of all charge, and also for his help, as we noticed he was at the show the whole day, helping in every way possible.

Chough Nesting in Captivity.

The Chough has been known to nest and incubate in confinement, but has deserted the young a day or two after they were hatched—not an unusual occurrence among the larger birds.

Redstart as Mimic.

Like most other birds, the Redstart is a great mimic, and will imitate the songs of most other birds. We have heard of a captive one which frequently mimiced the piping song of a pet Bullfinch, so that it was at times difficult to say which of the two birds was performing.

Correspondence.

Borders at Liverpool Show.

SIR,—If there is anything a man with any principle or courage detests, it is to see another individual make a dirty, mean, contemptible attack in the dark. As soon as "North Country Type" comes from behind his nom de plume and discloses his identity (the same as I did), then I shall give him an answer to his questions, which is more than mine have received.

WM. HY. WRIGHT.

Miscarriage of Birds on the Railway.

SIR,—The cause of my birds being absent from Sheffield show was mis-carriage by the railway company. I put the birds in the guard's van for Sheffield on Thursday night, and they were returned to my house on the Friday at twelve noon. This was very hard lines for me, as I had won three 1sts, one 2nd, and two 3rds with two of the birds. I have put in a claim for expenses.

Late Breeding of Canaries Out of Doors.

SIR,—I would bring before your notice my second experience of late breeding in the open. On November 4th, 1910, I had hatched a nest of three Canaries. They are very healthy, and up to the present are doing well. I have had altogether a very successful season. With reference to open-air breeding, which has been the topic of so much discussion in your paper quite recently, I would have you know that I have been a firm believer in open-air breeding for some years, and have (I speak from my own experience) reaped most splendid results from same. If any reader of your indispensable CAGE BIRDS should care to pay me a visit, it would give me the greatest pleasure to submit my birds for inspection.

More Rough Usage by the Railway Companies.

SIR,—A fortnight ago I sent some birds to Great Horton Show, and received my birds back Saturday midnight in a very disgraceful state; only three perches out of six remaining in position when I opened my box, and no seed in cages at all. The box must have been upturned to do this somewhere on the line (I am no great distance from Harrogate). Last Saturday I showed at Brighouse, and did not receive my birds back till Sunday morning. Again they had been upturned, but, luckily, the birds had received no damage. I know the birds are cared for at these Union shows, and despatched early. They get more harm done them by the railway company's rough handling than by half a dozen shows. Holbeck is an awful place for birds to have to change at. If there was an official of either the Cage Bird Union or the Yorks. Union at Holbeck one of these times when the bird traffic is fairly heavy he would see for himself. I, as a novice member of the Yorks. Union, think there is very little encouragement for an outside novice to join when he is continually getting his birds returned from shows in the above-mentioned fashion.

Tin-lined Seed Boxes at Scottish Y.C.C. Shows.

SIR,—I would like very much indeed to answer Mr. Barron's letter which appeared in your last week's issue. I find that he has been fairly roused by the remarks in my first letter concerning tin-lined seed-boxes at S.Y.C.C. shows. I wrote this letter by no means to injure the S.Y.C.C. Mr. Barron suggests I intended to do so, and makes me appear as one who knew these seed-boxes were there for a special purpose. I said, and still say, that it would be an easy matter for a judge to know the cageowners if they continue using such seed boxes. I think the S.Y.C.C. ought to have a standard show cage, as do the Border Fancy and several other clubs. Such clubs would disqualify exhibits with such markings. He says in a very sarcastic manner that he would like me to answer some questions which would be "very interesting and instructive." No. 6. If a competitor has tin-lined seed-boxes, does he use them to assist the judge? Answer: If I thought the exhibitor would use such markings to enable a judge to distinguish the birds he would be unworthy of notice. No. 7: In whose interest is "Onlooker" raising this subject? Answer: The one who would be me a danger and a nuisance—the "onlooker." No. 10: Are the judges above suspicion? Answer: I have in my first letter words which will answer this question. No. 11. If the judge became aware of the identity of the competitor would he use his knowledge to the competitor's advantage or otherwise? Answer: If, for instance, a person or exhibitor wished to derive any benefit from a judge, aware of such as markings, he (the judge) would hardly need a pair of spectacles, or yet even a microscope, to find them. Mr. Barron, you put me down as a danger and a nuisance, but my letter merely referred to such markings becoming quite visible to the onlooker. You ask in one of your particular questions in whose interest I raise the subject, and I would like to mention again that I do not write on behalf of any member.

"ON LOOKER."

The Midland Counties Yorks. C.C. Cup Fund.

SIR,—Please allow us to acknowledge the following donations to the Cup fund of the above club: Mr. P. Victor Williams, 2½ guineas; Mr. J. L. Beck, 10s.; and Mr. W. Andrews, 5s. We shall be pleased to receive further donations. We beg to remind members that subscriptions for 1910 must be paid at once.

A Curious Happening at Uddingston Show.

SIR,—In reviewing this show in what I consider a very able report, your correspondent points out that the hen standing 1st in the buff class is a yellow. I quite agree with his opinion. The bird was entered as a yellow, but the judge, Mr. Gibb, considering it a buff had her re-classed, and gave her the "red ticket." The bird is undoubtedly a yellow; has already won repeatedly as a yellow under eminent judges; and in future will be entered as a yellow.

F. COCKBURN SYSON.

The Millom C.B.S.

SIR,—In answer to a letter wanting to know what has become of the Millom C.B.S., it had its "blood stolen," and died over fourteen years ago. Ah, "Millomite," is it the C.B.A. you mean? Why don't you come to the meetings that are called, and pay your subscription fee of 2s. 6d., and help to work the thing? Only six are paid-up members yet this year. "Millomite," please attend a meeting on pay Monday, December 12th, held in the Millom Castle Hotel at 6 p.m., and we will try to enlighten you on our business, etc.; and, "Millomite," don't hide behind a wall or sandhill again, but come out in the open and let the fanciers know who you are. Don't forget the meeting is at 6 p.m., and bring all your friends.

W. PARK.

Lizard Canaries at Sunderland C.B.A. Show.

SIR,—In the able report of the above show which you gave in the last issue of CAGE BIRDS, your reporter, in his remarks respecting the class for Lizards, gold clear cap, says: "2nd, non-fed, over year bird should have been wrong classed, these classes being for young birds." As there appears a reflection upon Mr. T. Dixon, Bedlington, who judged, and myself, who exhibited the above, I enclose a schedule and catalogue, copies of which were supplied to your reporter, and will esteem it a favour if you will say whether there is anything in such schedule and catalogue to justify him in saying "these classes being for young birds."

White Canaries and Their Production.

SIR,—I beg to thank you for the prominent place allotted to "A prodigy and its parents" in your issue of November 12th, thereby referring to my exhibit of a white Canary and his parents at the L. and P.O.S. show. I may mention the male parent in question was also the father of the white Canary exhibited at the Palace, 1909-10. This latest one was hatched last May, and is hand-fed. On June 24th last I had the honour of putting him on view at an "At home" at University College given by Professor Carl Pearson, where also Dr. Galloway, of Aberdeen, showed a series of his stuffed Albinos. Much interest in the two attractions was taken by the numerous guests, including Mr. Bernard Shaw. I understand that Dr. Galloway has bred a white Canary from my birds, thus proving the permanency of this strain. With very best wishes for the continued success of CAGE BIRDS,

W. KIESEL.

The Regrettable Loss of Birds By Fire.

Mr. Williams Gives a Warning.

SIR,—I must thank you very much for your kind sympathy and for the sympathy of my brother fanciers on the loss of my birds, as mentioned on page 456 of last week's CAGE BIRDS. It is indeed a dreadful blow, the work of five years gone in one night, and the sight of my valuable collection all lying dead at the bottom of their cages was a thing I shall never forget. The only consolation I had was that they could not have suffered, the smoke having put them without any pain into their long sleep. The four saved had fortunately been brought into the house to be "tubbed," and were the cream of my young Norwich. I lost one splendid little Yorkie hen. She had only been out twice, and had got one first and one second; fortunately her parents were in another aviary and are all right. With the help of that esteemed fancier and judge, Mr. Arthur Brotherhood (who himself suffered a similar, but what I consider a worse loss than mine three years ago), I have started afresh, this time with the birds in a warm room inside the house. Although I shall not have the quantity another year, I still hope to have the quality, and with a good breeding season in 1911 hope to be to the fore again, although I feel I shall not fully realise my loss until the breeding season comes round. I must take this opportunity of warning brother fanciers who have an outside aviary to have the box which contains their lamp made of brick, not wood; then I think there could be no danger. Again thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your kind expressions of sympathy, and for the sympathy of my brother fanciers, which I much appreciate,

P. VICTOR WILLIAMS.

What is a Cage-Moulted Bird?

SIR,—I find it was not a case of cage-moulted, but a case of how can we find a way to keep them from winning the cup? The secretary told me that the judge said the wings and tail were not cage-moulted. Can they tell me what part of the bird was not cage-moulted? for I am sorry to say that some of the flights got broken, and I pulled them out. Can they also tell me where I can find young birds at ten or twelve days old with full-grown wings and tail? I have seen a great many young birds in my time, but have never seen one with them full-grown at that age yet.

JESSE MAGGS.

(We do not see any object in continuing this correspondence, as presumably the judge's decision was final; and we certainly cannot publish libellous allegations of collusion.—Editor.)

The Use of Artificial Heat in the Birdroom.

SIR,—In your issue dated November 26th, "Amateur" requires a few hints as regards the best method for heating a bird room. Without offering any suggestions, I should like to inform him that a number of my hens, after their second nesting season, seem to develop similar symptoms to those of his own, although the younger hens and cocks of various ages appear to disregard climatic changes. I keep my room (a conservatory) at about 55 degrees throughout the twenty-four hours by combined heat from a coal fire in the adjoining room and hot water pipes in the conservatory. Therefore, I should imagine that cold plays an unimportant part, and some other reason must account for the apparent discomfort of his hens. I attribute it (in my case) to some error in treatment during the breeding season.

STEPHEN C. RHODES.

A Moderate Use Advocated.

SIR,—Please allow me space to join issue with Mr. Claude St. John as to his remarks in your last number on "heating" a bird room. His reply to a querist on this point is to me a clear indication that he looks upon warmth in bird rooms as the practice of faddists, and considered quite unnecessary by people of commonsense. He speaks of birds in warm rooms as under "artificial and enervating conditions," and in this, of course, he is quite entitled to his opinion; though when he undertakes to advise the public he must not complain if the public becomes his critic. To those who have invested their money in good class stock, and who have given their time and energy to the forming of a strain of Canaries fit to figure on the show bench, warmth—mark the distinction in words—is almost essential. It is rendered essential by the extreme changeableness of our climate at this time of the year, some days indicating the mildness of spring and others the severe cold which kills thousands of our wild birds. Is it surprising that during these cold snaps highly-bred Canaries, confined in comparatively small cages, and, therefore, totally unable to take sufficient exercise to produce natural warmth, should get chills, resulting in bowel trouble well-nigh impossible to cure, and too often a quick death? I first experimented with a little carefully-controlled heat during a particularly sharp snap of cold weather, and the result, as compared with periods when I had no warmth, confirmed me as to the wisdom of the step. Whilst numerous breeders roundabout reported the loss of birds which had done well on the show bench, and for which they had been offered several pounds, my stock progressed in that vitality which promised a successful breeding season. They were not kept under the enervating conditions which Mr. St. John himself advises of, between fifty and sixty degrees, but the thermometer registered from forty-five to forty-eight degrees, which is quite sufficient for the winter months. Mr. St. John is at no pains to conceal his dislike of the use of heat in bird rooms, but he betrays his want of practical experience by straightway falling into the error of advising the maintenance of that extreme heat which even the advocates of warmth would not sanction! The aim of the breeder who has warmth in his room should certainly not be to maintain summer-like heat during the winter, but to maintain the apparatus as a safeguard against those sudden drops in temperature during which water vessels are frozen and the birds sit huddled in balls on the perches. On each of such severe nights the fancier whose stock is worth anything, and who has no source of warmth at his disposal, goes to bed with anything but an easy mind, and often his apprehensions are correct, and after a vain attempt to cure a good bird gone wrong he flings it into the dustbin. The care of his more shrewd brother is to see that the thermometer does not fall below forty-five degrees; in that temperature there is safety. The further the temperature falls below that the greater the danger. When unaided the temperature of the room exceeds forty-eight or fifty degrees the warmth should be turned off. The extreme variations in the weather necessitate a keen watch on the thermometer, and the adjustment of the warmth supply accordingly. Such, I contend, is the moderate use of warmth, appealing to all who have given study to the care of our feathered stock, and who have a desire to keep the birds on the way to that fulness of breeding condition which spells success. If the correspondent "Amateur," whose letter on this subject appeared in your issue of November 25th, will write me through you I will furnish him with particulars for applying reasonable warmth in his room, which appears to be very similar to my own.

MODERATION.

What's in a Name?

SIR,—In reply to my clubmate, Mr. James Crawford, Saracen Street, Possilpark, in "Twitterings" last week concerning my advertisement of Norwich, I feel my honour is very much at stake, and "Where you feel your honour grip, let that aye be your border." I may say that I advertise my birds for sale purely and simply on their own merits, and do not depend on any specious use of any other person of the same surname.

ANDREW CRAWFORD.

A Little Encouragement for Show Secretaries.

SIR,—We hear, and also read, a lot about the non-payment and the slow payment of prize money, but it is very rare that we see anyone or hear of anyone thanking the show secretary for the prompt payment of same. I think in the present day we are a little too much for our own selves; surely we ought to return thanks (a halfpenny stamp will do it) for the prompt dispatch of birds and of prize money, or of any specials which we may have won. The post of secretary is not always a very pleasant job, but it could be made a little pleasanter if, by a few words, we show appreciation of the good he is trying to do his society, for we all know that the success or otherwise of the show depends upon him mainly. Seeing that he gives his time, and also labour, voluntarily, I don't think we ought to forget him in return. I trust I shall not have written in vain.

F. C. FAULKNER.

A Linnet Singing Challenge.

SIR,—I am surprised at Mr. Fred Allen depositing 10s. All Leeds fanciers think it is a cheap mode of advertising after winning at the King's Head, to expect to be allowed to sing after the match at the Prince Albert (arriving at 2.10 p.m.). This would be like a horse entering a race after it has been run. We must consider that houses in Leeds are only open two hours on Sunday dinner time, and that the King's Head and Prince Albert are about two miles apart. About my having most to say, I was willing to sing him there and then for the prize money and £1, but he would not sing me. So this is the way he revenges himself. There are no contests reported in CAGE BIRDS at Selby or Hull, and if Mr. Fred Allen wishes to continue contest singing and meet my acknowledged Yorkshire champion quality singing Linnet, he must meet me at any of the advertised contests that are announced in CAGE BIRDS.

Judging the Foreign Birds at the L.C.B.A. Show.

SIR,—I notice that a criticism, fairly full in its extent, is given in the report on my judging. Had it been possible to award double or treble firsts, etc., in the classes, many of the birds which I had reluctantly to label with v.h.c. would have been prize winners. Of course, everyone cannot be pleased, although everyone seems to expect it. I am perfectly aware that the Purple Sunbird is a great rarity, and one that not many people besides its owner would keep alive for long; but when you find a bird like that in a very large class—birds in full and splendid plumage, as well as absolutely steady—it is extremely difficult to place a bird (however rare) which is in immature feathering and very fidgety, over some of the others. Where one has many birds representing several species it is a great deal a matter of individual taste in awarding prizes. Some people prefer, in architecture, the Elizabethan style, others set their hearts upon another. Both, or all, may be equally beautiful in their own particular way, but the lover of the Elizabethan cannot say to the admirer of the Jacobean, "You are wrong, my taste and opinion are right!" The only way in which any of the birds which did not receive a prize card were "hardly treated" is that it is unfortunate that one cannot allot prizes to them all! I should like to add that I do not consider, to take an example, that the Black-capped Lory was a "unique exhibit." "Beautiful," yes. And if the Red-naped Lories were "a perfect pair," why were they "very fortunate" in winning a prize? Rarity, in my opinion, is not everything. One pair of rare birds in the Parrot class were "very beautiful," but they were not perfect (as your reporter has it); they lacked tightness and gloss. Neither do I consider the Queen Alexandra Parrakeet was hardly treated. If your reporter could see three and a-half pairs of these birds in my aviaries, and the perfection of their condition, he would perhaps understand that in a very large and varied class I could not give this bird a prize.

HUBERT D. ASTLEY.

In an Outdoor Aviary.

SIR,—The temperature in my outside bird-house (no artificial heat) is often from 30 to 40, and has been as low as 25 degrees. The birds appear to bear it, but we do not get the amount of song as when kept in a cold room in the house, where it is often from 40 to 50. They will sing at this heat. I have had two Budgerigars die suddenly, and in both cases could see no cause. I have had a pair of Budgerigars (a cock and hen) in an open aviary outside, 3ft. 6ins. by 2ft. 6ins. by 2ft. 3ins., with a cosy shielded corner for privacy, for about 1½ years, but have never got an egg, so no young. The birds look healthy and lively.

Novice Classes for British Birds at the Palace Show.

SIR,- Thanks to your numerous correspondents respecting novice classes for Britishers, the ball is now set rolling. So as to clear the air, may I be allowed to ask Mr. Ramsden if it is his intention of making more than one kind of bird compete in each class allotted to Britishers at the next Crystal Palace show? My reason for asking is not fur to seek if he reads the show report of the Metropolitan C.B.A., wherein he will find the first three prizes went to Goldfinches. Hence my inquiry.

National British Bird and M.C. Medals at the L.C.B.A. Show.

SIR,—There are two errors in the names of the winners of the N.B.B. and M.C. medals at the L.C.B.A. show in the list sent by us last week. Mr. G. Morton and not Mr. G. Mortlock won the medal in the Hybrid section for the member who had never previously won a club medal, and Mrs. G. E. Weston (and not Mr. Francis) won the gold medal for most points in the Hardbill section. If you will correct this in your next issue, we shall be greatly obliged.

PLUMBRIDGE AND CARR.
Hon. Secs., N.B.B. and M.C.

[The points in the Hardbill section are: Mrs. Weston, 31; Mr. Francis, 27; Mr. Longden, 26; Mr. Marley, 24.]

A Members' Cup at Uddingston Show.

SIR.—At our meeting on December 1, it was agreed to grant the cup to Mr. McFarlane, Glasgow, whose points were 52; Mr. Thos. Prentice runner-up with 31, Mr. W. P. Campbell 30. I have written Mr. McFarlane telling him the result, but asking him to leave the cup lying with the secretary for a year, as some of our members have resigned over it, and I thought this would be the best course seeing I made a mistake in taking his (Mr. McFarlane's) membership fee (as our membership closed on October 3), through our secretary, Mr. Jas. Dunlop, not returning our books. Up to time of writing I have no word from Mr. McFarlane, but if he wants the cup we will hand it over to him. I thought it would be a good way out of a bad job to award it to no one. I would like to thank one and all who helped to make our show a success, and especially do I want to thank your reporter, Mr. Joliffe, and Mr. Johnstone, of Hamilton, who assisted me greatly at a very trying period of our show. I have one or two exhibitors in our prize list with no addresses; will they oblige by sending on their addresses at once, as prize money is all paid out except in these few cases? All our members are highly pleased with CAGE BIRDS' report.

JNO. KILPATRICK, Sec.

P.S.—This is my first year of secretarial work, so after this I think I will be fit for anything, as you don't need to be thin of skin.

British and Foreign Birds at the L.C.B.A. Show.

SIR,—My friend, Mr. H. J. Fulljames, in his notes on the L.C.B.A. shows, says: "There were many enquirers for the 'Spanish Magpie' entered by Mr. Goodchild, but absent, as we were all anxious to see wherein a Spanish Magpie differed from our own well-known 'Mag.' I have myself seen Magpies in the extensive gardens of the Royal Palace in Madrid, but I am fain to confess that they never struck me as being anything special." From this it is quite evident Mr. Fulljames is ignorant of the existence of the very beautiful species entered by Mr. Goodchild under the name of the "Spanish Magpie," more commonly known as the Blue Magpie (Cyanopica Cookii). These birds are frequently met with in great numbers in all such districts of Southern and Central Spain as are covered with woods of oak trees. They are also met with in North-Western Africa, living everywhere in large flocks; they sometimes settle upon the houses, and have no hesitation in constantly seeking their food amongst the refuse of the busiest streets. In most of their habits they closely resemble the Common Magpie. These birds have been separated from other members of the family on account of the great difference of the tints of their plumage, which is so extremely beautiful that the European species is pre-eminent among its feathered relations. An allied species (C. cyanea) inhabits the Crimea, a large portion of Siberia, and the whole of China. I have seen numerous examples in London, and also at the Zoo. Mr. Fulljames thinks that the judging of foreign birds is the most unthankful task that could be imagined. Speaking personally, as the oldest foreign bird exhibitor, in London to-day, I don't agree with him. It is about the most simple job I know, and certainly mere child's play in comparison to judging British birds. The very idea of judging the birds before the show is utterly absurd. Mr. Astley understands foreign birds as well as most men, but he was evidently in such a tremendous hurry to get away from the show that he did not do himself justice, and consequently gave a certain amount of dissatisfaction, many of his awards giving rise to much criticism. I don't usually take much notice of show critics—as a rule one can generally read "between the lines"—but this time, in justice to myself, I must take exception to Mr. Fulljames' review of the class for European birds (not included in the N.B.B. and M.C. list), in which he states "2nd Frostick, fine two-barred Crossbill; is it not rather the American White-winged Crossbill?" This implies to the ordinary reader that the judge and myself are ignorant of our British species. The fact is that this bird was caught in Cumberland in September, 1908 (since illustrated in your paper), and was formerly the property of the well-known exhibitors Messrs. J. and R. Lewis, and I claim it to be the only British-caught specimen in captivity. The American White-winged Crossbills differ considerably from such as occur accidentally in England, but have occasionally visited us in some numbers. Those in America are remarkable for the smallness of their size, and may be considered the dwarfs of the family. There are also other differences, but as I am not writing an article, for which I expect payment, and my time is valuable, I will let these remarks suffice.

JOHN FROSTICK.

"Kruger" Was There This Time.

SIR,—I think Mr. Marley has been caught in his own trap after all, and is the "wise guy" himself; and I hope by now the "mist or fog" has cleared before his own eyes. Of course, I could quite understand the state he would be in when he found Mr. Kruger had been "downed" by one of his own breed, and at the London C.B.A. show, and "Kruger" having lost, no doubt he thought he would score a victory at the L.C.B.A. over me by creating a row. By what I was told by several people from whom Mr. Marley had inquired if they had seen me, by his talk nothing was to be left of me, not even the cage. Mr. Marley's abusive language when we met soon caused a crowd to gather, and to do him credit (?) he wanted to fight, but as I do not get my living by fighting I declined his offer. I said I would take him on in CAGE BIRDS. I do not mind what Mr. Marley said about myself, but I do mind his statement in an open show in front of a large crowd of fanciers that I was doing the "dirty work" of the hon. sec. of the City and Suburban Society, Mr. V. Wynn, a fancier who is honoured and trusted as much as anyone in all the Fancy (and I am very proud that he is a personal friend of mine). I challenge Mr. Marley to prove that statement; if he can do so I will give £10 to any charity the Editor chooses, providing he (Mr. Marley) does the same if he fails. Mr. Morley remarks about "more important shows than the City and Suburban," he knows this is honoured by most of the leading exhibitors in London, and that his "second raters" are out of place there.

J. POOLEY.

SIR,—I think it is wrong that any fancier should be allowed to use your columns to wrangle about any bird. It is wasting your space, in my opinion, for I am sure you have matters to deal with of far more interest to readers. What does the Fancy care whether "Kruger" was at Battersea or at the City and Suburban or at any other show? I never heard such childish twaddle before. There have been just as good Redpolls before, and there will be again. It's all right for Mr. Marley, who's come out as a dealer and a "great specialist" (on the strength of one Redpoll and about two Linnets!), but he should pay for his advertisements—not get them free. I think the same thing about the "Linnet Singing Challenge" business; all "swank" again.

A COUNTRY FANCIER.

The New Society for Lutterworth and District.

SIR,—In answer to the letter signed F. Clarke, I thought perhaps I might hit the target concerning the splendid fanciers (as they style themselves) that the late society was troubled with, which has proved correct. Well, Cruchie, let me tell you I am glad you have got the post which you have been wanting for so long, as you have been doing your utmost to poison the members' minds this last twelve months (and I am sorry to say you succeeded), since I sent my resignation in as secretary, through my not letting a man come fourteen miles to judge your friends' birds—facts which are printed in the minute book. A copy of your first letter would be accepted if you would enquire at your post office for my address. You state you never missed a meeting but twice, but it would have been better on your part to have talked the matter over with fanciers than run elsewhere and condemn everybody and everything connected with the society. You state it was a two-men society—myself and the president. Well, I hope the president will reply to yours of the 26th; but he is a fancier and is highly respected. In regard to myself, I am always satisfied with a judge's decision, and if I get beaten I show again, and shall not bully a judge because I don't win. If it was a two-men society, I might inform you they were the two to pay their subscriptions of twenty, and I it was who went the night before our show and collected 60 odd entries. You further accuse me of "cursing" at meetings (rather extreme writing), but if I was tarred with the same brush as some I could mention, I should consider myself as not suitable for other fanciers' company. I do object to a man who can't speak his mind; if I have any objections I state them and have done with it.

The Open Letter to the Cage Bird Union.

SIR,—It is evident Mr. Downing is not a very close observer, seeing that he says the Cage Bird Union has been very quiet lately. On the contrary, it has had a very rough time of it, and is only just beginning to breathe again. Surely, living in Manchester, he has heard of the mysterious person who has turned the Union inside out and upside down? The consternation that the appearance of the comet caused last year was as nothing compared to this. I am a bit superstitious myself, and, along with others, believed something would happen when the comet appeared. Something did. The Union declined in favour, and a few of its supporters got struck on the black list; and it appears to me that some people will not be satisfied until they see its last ashes burnt. The fact of the Union being quiet speaks well for the Cage Bird Fancy. I haven't heard of any faking or dishonourable practices at any Union show, consequently there is nothing for them to do. At the end of the session perhaps Mr. Downing will buy Mr. Bladon a pair of white gloves. But the real reason of my answering Mr. Downing is not to eulogise the Union, nor to defend Rule 22, but to enlighten him about the novice rule. He advises the Union to go into their birdroom and select a suitable perch with the business end of a pin projecting, and use it as a lance. If Mr. Downing doesn't resent advice from so obscure a person as myself, I should suggest that he uses a stable fork to pick the mote from his own eye; then he will be able to read the Union's rule governing novices, which says that one is a novice until he wins three first prizes in open novice classes, or one first prize in open champion classes. A novice may win as many thirds as he likes in the open, but directly he wins a first he becomes a champion. Mr. Downing also asks "Why not have one rule for the whole of the country?" He will find that the Union rule governing novices has been adopted by all the societies in the country, which shows their good sense. With regard to the Union being formed as a National Institution, surely Mr. Downing doesn't blame the Union for the split? Many societies have seceded, and no douht many societies wish they hadn't. Even in the last issue we see a society lamenting the loss of Unionites' exhibits. I don't doubt but that the show would have been much more attractive had the cream of the Fancy been there.

T. JOHNSON.

SIR,—I am pleased to see Mr. Downing put the question to the C.B.U. If Mr. D. will only keep his eyes open he will find that the Cage Bird Union will shirk every responsibility which is beneficial to the community. This syndicate under the name of Cage Bird Union was never intended to be beneficial to the community, for it seems to have been organised to dictate to exhibitors as to when and where they shall exhibit, and to ruin small shows who are not connected with the Union. One has only to read CAGE BIRDS carefully, and we find these shows repeatedly asking for support and giving extension of time for same. It is most gratifying to see the L.C.B.A. pronounced a magnificent success in the Horticultural Hall. We see there are a good few broadminded exhibitors outside the Union, and according to the report they consisted of the foremost breeders and exhibitors. A grand success without the C.B.U. patronage! Mr. D. thinks the novice is not cared for nor provided for; you must not read reports, for you will find novices are catered for on selfish lines. If you examine CAGE BIRDS of a few weeks back, you will find a gentleman having a regular field day, making 400 per cent. out of one bird taken from the novice section! Wake up, novices; have a society of your own, and let them see the backbone of the Fancy has given way. Work for your own shows, have popular judges, give good prize money, and last, but not least, have stringent rules for fear any professional faker should get in. Adhere to the above and the day is yours.

A. 30 YEARS' BREEDER.

Alleged Stained Linnets at York Show.

SIR,—Mr. Richardson says that my previous letter was simply a "cartridge fired by someone else." I would like to impress upon that gentleman that I do not follow anyone's lead or seek to emulate them in any way. What I said at first I still maintain, which is, that in my opinion the birds referred to were stained. As regards having "a shot at York," such a thing was never mentioned in my hearing. I notice with gratification at the conclusion of Mr. R.'s letter that he promises on behalf of the officials at York to assist in clearing up the matter. I am sure it is the wish of the majority of the members to do this, and I hope their efforts may be crowned with success. Regarding his surprise that the Y.C.B.B. and M.C. should have taken notice of the affair, to my mind it would have been a matter for wonder if they had not done so. In my opinion, the two birds should be produced for inspection amongst a batch of Linnets, the former to be passed as being the identical birds by those complaining. This would be the exact position as at the York show, where the contrast in colour was so noticeable. Here we have a complaint, followed without loss of time by denial, which must either be proved or otherwise. Nothing has been cloaked, only one letter being written under a nom de plume, and I hope the writer of this may see his way to "come into line." By the way, Mr. Richardson, does not give his opinion of the birds. I notice Mr. Boyle says that if exhibitors would feed and wash their birds carefully they would have better results. Does Mr. Boyle mean to infer that the other exhibitors did not know how to manage their Linnets? I notice also that he sent two Linnets on to you, sir, but when it is remembered that one of the two concerned changed hands at York, I take it that one of them would not be one of the birds complained of.

B. SIMPSON.

SIR—I thank "Ebor" for his offer, but must say I don't want anything privately. If it is something in writing that I might read at our next meeting and then forward it on to the secretary of the Y.C.B. and M.C., to help them, I shall be pleased to have it. In reply to Mr. Jowitt, the only thing I took exception to was the spirit of committing before anyone has been found guilty. If their meeting is held any night of Friday or Saturday, and after Christmas, if I should be of any service to him or his committee I shall be pleased to attend (at my own expense). Mr. Beattie, I am sorry I did not meet you at our show. If I had I feel sure all this business would have been cleared up to your satisfaction. I am delighted to hear you say you are not discouraged, and that we might have the pleasure of meeting, if not before, at our next show. I promise you sincerely that anything that can be done by me to clear up this unfortunate affair shall be done. I was at the show the whole of Friday, 10.30 Saturday, and again at 4.30. I had my work to attend to as well as the show. To Mr. Nicholson, let me say I know no Faking Brotherhood. The only brotherhood I belong to is the "True Fanciers' Brotherhood," and I hope to remain with them for years to come. Nor have I any axe to grind nor any person in particular to defend. But I do think as an Englishman that when another comes along and tries to condemn a society and its exhibitors (whoever they might be), it calls for someone to speak out. I think Mr. Nicholson knows me well enough to know I don't say things without some proof; if I do I shall be only too glad to be told, and I will then take steps to put the matter right. Mr. Nicholson objects to my using the words "put down at York and then boasted about." The matter is entirely in his own hands. If he will say the following is not "absolutely true" in every word: "that a stained Linnet was brought to the headquarters of the Y.C.B.S. All Saints Church Rooms, North Street," as a gentleman I will withdraw every word I have said, and apologise publicly through CAGE BIRDS for any annoyance I might have caused Mr. Nicholson.

ALFRED RICHARDSON, Chairman, Y.C.B.S.

Linnets for Contest Singing.

SIR,—I would like to ask some of the Linnet singing fanciers if they would give me some advice on how to get Linnets fit for contest singing? I have three Linnets and would like to join in the week-end sport, but do not know how to get my birds fit. It is only time singing here.

NOVICE.

Yorkshire Canaries at the Irish Shows.

SIR,—In this week's "Notes from Erin" your correspondent refers to a certain society having cut down the classification for Yorkshires, and asks the question "What is wrong?" I presume he refers to the Ulster Ornithological Association, and if this be so, I think the question can be fully answered by stating that for this year, at any rate, the committee decided to manage their own show in their own way, and see how it compared with those held under the specialist clubs' patronage. When the balance-sheet is issued, it will prove the wisdom or otherwise of this step. I enclose my name and address, and in the meantime beg to sign

Under the White Rose.

BRIGHOUSE show, held last week, proved very disappointing to the promotors, and there will be a very serious deficit to wipe off. The entries only amounted to 243 for 28 classes poor response indeed. The society were most unfortunate to clash with other shows who had obtained the patronages of the specialist clubs; no doubt it takes the birds away from the home shows. Brighouse at one time were noted for their good shows and their big classification, not only for Canaries, but for British and Foreign also. These, as one old fancier said on Saturday last, were "the good old days." "Never mind," he added, "we shall have to get our hands down, but we shall get over it." And come up smiling, I hope.

WHAT about the bird thrown out in the "heavily variegated" class? It certainly opens up something for discussion, and I will put the facts before our readers, and, incidentally, ask a few questions. This class read in the schedule, "heavily variegated, yellow or buff Yorkshire." This, as it reads by itself, would be certainly taken to mean that any heavy-marked Yorkshire bird would be eligible to compete in the class. Now, the bird thrown out was heavy-marked, but was a cinnamon, and there was a class for cinnamon ticked or variegated Yorkshires. Many say that the bird should have been shown there. The questions now come, can a cinnamon ticked bird be shown in the usual ticked Yorkshire class, when a class is provided at that show for cinnamon licked or variegated birds? Also, should an unflighted bird be shown in any other class than the unflighted class, when such classes are provided? The latter is done every week, and if it is right for one it should be also right for the other.

IF you come across any fancier who brought his birds back from Brighouse show per the 9.41 last week-end, don't mention the word "dogs," or there may be ructions. Another injustice to the bird fancier. A dog show was held on the same day at Brighouse, and certain fanciers were taken to be "doggy men." Do they look it? However, they nearly got their birds booked through as dogs. This was the porter's own surmising, but it just failed at the final, and this is where the injustice comes in. Up to ten miles a dog of any weight can be taken for 3d. and up to thirty miles for 6d., whereas the poor birdy man has to pay at least three times that amount for a four or a six compartment case; and the birds are not liable to bite anybody. It is about time this matter was set about in masterly fashion.

THE secretary of the C.M.Y.C.C. informs me that the competitions of the Society are going very strong; no less than 18 members are notching (or trying to notch) points in the premier competition. And there will be a close run for several of the prizes before the end of the season. It's bound to be a fight to a finish by all who intend to be amongst the winners. No duffing, or the prize is lost for ever.

"STRAIGHT 'UN."

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

*The Clever Swallows.

A poor little Swallow had caught his leg in a piece of string, and was hanging head downwards from the branch of a tree. The other Swallows, seeing his sad case, came to his help, but as they had nothing to cut the string with, what did they do? They flew past the poor Swallow, each giving a sharp peck at the string. At last the string was pecked through, and the little prisoner flew away.—James Dick (aged 11), 9, Brodie Street, Bainsford, Falkirk.

*A Christmas Story.

Last Christmas Day, when the little children were returning home from church through the churchyard, a poor little Starling was noticed caught by one of its claws in a bough of an elm tree. But the difficulty was how to release it, as the bough was high up. A little boy was seen climbing up the tree, watched by the crowd below, and rescued the bird, after which we gave him a hearty cheer.—Sent by Alice Sharkey (aged 13), 41, Cowper Road, Old Swan, Liverpool.

The Parrot Again.

A friend had arrived unexpectedly from the country, when the family were out of town. Only the master of the house was at home, and he was also going away the very morning his friend arrived. The visitor was, however, asked to remain for the night, an offer which he accepted. The following morning, to the disgust of the servant who was engaged in her work, he appeared early upon the scene, inquiring for her master. "Master went away last night," she answered. "Impossible! Why, I heard him call for his hot water and his boots this morning," cried the astonished guest. "Oh, sir, that was the Parrot," answered the servant. —Sent by Mary Ford (age 13), 15, Elms Avenue, Eastbourne.

Wild-Bird Life.

Birds on the Hillside.

Although wild birds have the whole countryside to ramble over and to seek food in, certain spots are almost deserted and others are crowded with feathered creatures (representatives of many species) during the winter months, on the sheep runs and bare hills of the southern counties—places where the surface of the ground is almost devoid of bushes and trees. Save for a few furze bushes and brambles, the aspect is too bleak and cold to entice bird life to linger. A cloud of Rooks that have been driven from the fields below settle and forage a bit while waiting for the disturbing object to pass from their accustomed feeding ground; a small flock of Linnets, with much chattering and noise, pass overhead, alighting lower down the hillside where the ground slopes and a miniature valley is formed by a similar slope from the east. Here the more sheltered aspect has allowed the wild weeds of the countryside to flourish, and docks, thistles, ragwort, and others too numerous to mention, have grown thickly during the past summer. They are now beaten down by the wind and rain, but the little birds hunting among the dead herbage, must find a fair amount of seeds, for at any time a few of them may be seen busy feeding. A pair of Stonechats flutter while balancing themselves on the top of a furze bush, for the wind is strong, and the higher branches are continually moving. Half way down the hillside a hedge divides the property, and here we meet the more common but popular species.

With a "chink chink" a cock Blackbird hurls himself down the hill, making as much noise as a frightened farmyard hen. He has been more fortunate than one of his brethren, for a circle of black feathers on a turfy mound tell the tale of a tragedy of recent occurrence, the bold Sparrow Hawk having swept down the hedgerow, pouncing upon the unlucky Blackbird, who was probably unaware of the proximity of so dangerous a fellow. The writer has examined scores of these signs of death, but has very seldom found anything but the small feathers scattered around; sometimes one or both feet, and perhaps part of a wing, with the primary feathers attached, the remainder of the body, including the head, having entirely vanished. The Hawk must be a terrible enemy to Blackbirds and Thrushes, frequenting the more remote districts; but although both species are frequently taken, the Blackbird is the unlucky first favourite; his remains are more commonly located than those of the other.

Quail in England.

We have heard of the common Quail nesting in several places in the South of England this last season, and in one case a covey of fourteen young ones was flushed.

Nest of the Raven.

The nest of the Raven is a huge affair made of sticks of all lengths and thicknesses, bits of heather, and generally masses of sheep's wool, collected on the hills. The inner lining varies considerably, but wool and moss and tufts of grass are mostly used.

Golden Oriole in Sussex.

We hear that the Golden Oriole nested this last summer on a quiet farm in Sussex, situated near some extensive woods. The old birds were not observed until they were seen feeding the young ones which had apparently just left the nest. The observers hunted diligently for the latter, but were unable to find it.

Singing Contests.

CITY OF GLASGOW

Linnet Singing Club usual contest held on Dec. 3 at premises of Mr. A. Muir (Saltmarket). 1st, McMillan; 2, Ross; 3, McNeill. Judge, H. McNeill; timekeeper, Mr. Kemp. Saturday next, at 4 p.m., contest for usual weekly prizes.—W. Ross.

CASTLEFORD.

First contest of season, held Dec. 3, "George and Dragon." 21 birds sang. Result:—1, Nelson; 2, Dobson; 3, Sweeting. Contest each week, first birds up at 3 p.m. prompt. I hope all fanciers in Castleford will make an effort to join.—Walter Dobson, Hon. Sec.

SHEFFIELD.

Weekly Linnet singing contest, held Fitzwilliam Hotel, Milford Street, Attercliffe Common, Dec. 4th, when 16 birds entered, two minutes' time singing. 1, Thompson, 71 secs.; 2, Brown, 57 secs.; 3, Brown, 42 secs.; Brown 36 secs., Callagham 30 secs., Jack 30 secs., Jack 24 secs., Albert 28 secs. Contest every week-end.—J. Grundy.

LEIGH.

Globe Inn Linnet Club (for time and quality) opening contest held Nov. 26, 30 competitors; some very good time was done considering the time of year: Prize winners: T. Statham, J. Statham 2, J. McAllister 3. After the contest there was a meeting. We enrolled 36 members. The prize winners, too, returned their prize money, and a very enjoyable evening was spent. We shall be pleased to hear from any fancier who wishes to join as we have good prospects as regards prizes. —J. McAllister, Sec., 1, Brunswick Street, Leigh, Lancashire.

THE SHOWS.

FORRES.

Forres and Northern O.A. 24th annual show, held December 3rd, Mechanic's Hall. The hall is large, and suitable for a show of the kind, being well lighted and free from draughts. The cage birds were well staged, and well looked after. Entries did not come up quite as good as last year, but the quality far exceeded that of past years. Mr. G. S. Russell, the energetic secretary, had all arrangements well in hand, and must be complimented on the success of his labours. He was ably assisted by a band of willing workers, and everything went off in the proverbial apple-pie order. Mr. K. MacLean won the gold medal for most entries in Norwich, and the two medals for most points, also the medal for best Plainhead. Mr. Hutchison won special for second best Plainhead, also medal for best col. fed bird. Medal and special for best British bird were won by Mr. Sim. The awards were made by Mr. W. B. Mackie.

METROPOLITAN C.B.A.

Held in All Saints' Parochial Hall, Battersea Park, on December 3rd. The show was a splendid success, so far as entries and quality went. The competition was very keen, and the management excellent. Unfortunately, the secretary, Mr. Harwood, was prevented from taking part in the completion of his labours owing to the death of his brother, and the sympathy of the members was extended to Mr. Harwood in his bereavement. The birds were staged on a centre tier, and placed at a convenient height to be viewed easily. The attendance of fanciers was good. Mr. F. J. Martin, Mrs. Macgregor, and others whose names we regret we did not obtain, rendered efficient aid. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged. Specials were won by Mr. F. J. Martin (for best Nor., champion section), Mr. C. Mabey (best Yorks.), Mr. S. Ward (best novice Nor.), Mr. F. Tebbs (best Yorks.), Mr. J. W. Burgess (best Bord.), Mrs. Thynne (best Crest or C.B.), and Mr. G. E. Slade (best Brit).

STOKE NEWINGTON F.A.

Held in Rossington Street Schoolroom, Clapton, on November 30th. The entry was a poor one, but the quality, especially in Crests and C.-Breds, was good, Mr. R. Farmer staging a grand team and annexing the cup and special. Mr. H. A. Cooper-Bagley, hon. secretary, was most courteous and efficient in the discharge of his duties, and it is a pity that with such valuable specials in competition cage bird men do not give him stronger support. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged.

BURY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual show held Textile Hall, Nov. 26. There was a nice show, Mr. A. Donnelly finding it none so easy to place the awards, in which, however he gave every satisfaction. Mr. Jameson, the secretary, had matters admirably in hand, assisted by members of the society. The show financially was a success. The quality was good, exceeding that of all previous years, especially in the Yorkshire and British bird sections

LEEDS C.B.S.

Members' show held 12th November, St. George's Schools. Entries numbered 220, but the classification was so extensive that it took a lot of the classes all their time to muster the necessary seven birds. List of points scored at previous shows towards our valuable specials was on view at show, and proved very interesting; this list will be on view (with Nov. 12 show points added) at next meeting. Judging was over in good time. Mr. Matt. Broadley (Windhill) judged, and his awards gave general approval.

MUSSELBURGH.

Third annual show of the Musselburgh O.S. was held in Brown's Assembly Hall, 83, High Street, Nov. 26. The entry was a magnificent one, especially in view of the fact that the exhibition was confined to members; the exhibits were not only good in number but also in quality. There is an excellent lot of officials at the head of affairs. Mr. W. P. Dunn is the president, Mr. J. P. Lumsden the vice-president, Mr. T. P. Nisbet the treasurer, and Messrs. Smeaton, Taylor, Baer, Watt, Storie, Fleming, Young, Pearson, and Hoyle, the committee. In Mr. Wm. Nisbet the society have a capital secretary, one who knows how to carry out show arrangements to a nicety. Messrs. Allan Chalmers, and P. McKenzie judged, and their awards appeared to give every satisfaction.

BEAMISH.

Beamish C.B.S. second annual show held Nov. 26. It proved a great success in every way. Entries came up well and quality was of the best. The exhibits were nicely staged in The Bird Inn Hotel, a capital place for a bird show, being well lighted and free from draughts. Crests, Norwich and Borders were good, and made a nice display. Special for best in show went to Mr. Coates's Crested hen, almost clear body, and dark crest. Special for best Norwich, Mr. Butler; best Yorkshire, Mr. Richardson; best natural colour bird, Mr. Elliot; best British (a lovely Goldfinch), Mr. Foster. Of the management it would be impossible to speak too highly, every care and attention were bestowed upon the exhibits. We have seldom met with such a lot of hard workers, and they thoroughly deserved their success. The hon. sec., Mr. Crosby, is the right man in the right place, had everything working as smoothly as clockwork, and was most tactful, courteous, and obliging. The awards were made by Mr. J. Hands (Ryton).

HASTINGS C B.S.

A capital lot of birds graced the benches of this society's show at the Silverhill Assembly Rooms on Dec. 6th and 7th. The Norwich were an especially fine lot, and amongst them was found the cup winner for the best bird in the show. This coveted trophy fell to Mr. W. Ellis with his yell. Nor., the runner up being Mr. J. H. Bellamy's unflighted buff. This gentleman has bred four of the birds which have won this cup, and three times he has been the runner up, yet never once has he had the pleasure of seeing his name inscribed thereon. The cup, which is valued at £15 15s., now becomes Mr. Ellis's own property, he having won it three times. Messrs. Ellis, Pennell, and Bellamy all staged birds of remarkably good type and quality, and secured the bulk of the prizes between them. Some nice quality birds were shown in the novice section by Messrs. Elliott, Cragg, Ransom, Thomas, Wilson, Cave, and Cheall. The special winner was a rare bodied green, shown by Mr. Thomas. Crests were not great. Yorkshires were fairly well represented, and grand shapely birds were staged by most of the competitors, but the majority failed badly in carriage, training, or the lack of it, which has much to do with success or failure in this variety, and wild Yorkshires never get far up the list, however good they may be in other respects. Miss Dawson, Messrs. Coombs, Ellis, Slack, Morris and Son, Bond, George, Veness, Dunn, and Curtis, were well to the front. British made a capital show, amongst the best being Mr. Jarrett's handsome Magpie, which won the special. Messrs. Morris and Son's Goldfinch and Greenfinch, Miss Dawson's Mealy Redpoll, whilst the Rev. Mr. Patterson staged a lovely lot of foreigners, the leaders being a Pin-tailed Nonpariel, Cordon Bleu, and Long-tailed Grassfinch. All the arrangements were ably carried out by the stewards, Messrs. Stevens, Morris, Coombs, and Dawson. Mr. Godden, the popular hon. secretary, was not present, he having suffered a severe bereavement in the death of his mother only a few days before the show, and much sympathy will be felt for him by the many fanciers who have the pleasure of his acquaintance. The exhibits, which totalled about 270, were judged by Mr. C. A. House.

WATFORD.

Watford and Dis. C.B.S. sixth annual members' show, held Conservative Hall, December 2nd and 3rd, when a grand total of 240 birds faced the judges, Messrs. J. Robson and A. Silver. The hall is well lighted, and the number of birds just filled it to a nicety, and made an interesting display. Mr. R. J. Watts makes an able and courteous show manager, and was well backed up by Messrs. A. T. Sears, Quantrell, Tucker, and Rackley. A large number of special prizes was competed for, including some valuable cups. The Greeson Challenge Cup for three nominated birds was won by Mr. W. Buckingham with a light Goldfinch-Canary Mule, a Norwich Canary and a capital Diamond Sparrow, securing three 1sts with them. The Partridge Challenge Cup for most points gained by a novice was secured by Mr. A. B. Tucker. The Sears Challenge Cup was won again by its present holder, Mr. R. J. Watts, with a grand team—Superb and Rufous-throated Tanager and Scaly-breast Lorrikeets, respectively. This makes the second win to his credit, while the breeders cup was accounted for by Mr. D. Pigg, with an unflighted Norwich of grand quality. Regret was felt by all members that Miss L. Hewatt, who is an enthusiastic Crest breeder, and keen supporter of the society, should be prevented from exhibiting owing to the death of a near relative, and sympathy was expressed on all sides. The attendance was good, particularly having regard to the weather, and visitors were well amused by Mrs. Turner's slender bill Cockatoo, and Mr. Watts' blue-fronted Amazon, both of whom seemed to have an inexhaustible supply of "patter." Partridge and Co. made a good display of seeds, cages, and requisites.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

Annual show of the Barrow-in-Furness C.B.A. was held Dec. 3rd, Schools, Dalton Road. Mr. Davies, the secretary, had everything in hand in good time, and the entry was an improvement on last year's. The Border section was the feature of the show, both in number and quality, several well-known cracks being on view, while the Scotch Fancies were the best seen for a long time, several Palace winners being staged. Mr. S. Hadwin (Liverpool) judged, and gave general satisfaction.

COWDENBEATH.

Twelfth annual show held Masonic Hall Dec. 3rd. In former years the cage birds and cats were staged in the same place, but the executive found this was detrimental to the number of entries in the cage bird section, and so decided to give the birdie men a hall to themselves this year, which proved good, as the entries showed an increase of 50 over last year's. All the Scotch Fancy and the Linnet and Hybrid classes were cancelled; the general feeling was that the separation of the cage birds from the cat section was not made known. We are of opinion also that if the society advertised their show a little more locally they would no doubt receive greater support in the district, as some people we spoke to did not know there was such an event. The hall is all that could be desired, and could easily have held double the number of entries; it is free from draughts and well lighted. The society are to be complimented on having the patronage of the civic heads of the town, and also a number of prominent gentlemen in the district, also on having the patronage of the Border Fancy Club. And they might well be proud of having such men at the head of affairs as Messrs. Simpson and Falconer, ably assisted by a grand committee, who spared no efforts to have everything going smoothly, both for visitors and exhibitors. The sec., Mr. Falconer, had everything well in hand. Mr. H. Moreland judged the Plainheads, Crests, British and Foreign birds: and Mr. R. Lambie the Yorkshires, Borders and Mules; their decisions were well received. The Border Fancy Club medal was won by Mr. J. Hutchison (Dysart).

BLACKWOOD.

Show held November 19th, Southfield Hall. The show was a success, although the entries were slightly down on last year's; but the quality of the birds made up for any slight drop in entries. Some of the winners should be able to take a high position at the Scottish National, and Crystal Palace. Cup for best Scotch Fancy was won by Mr. Park, with a grand buff cock; Mr. Walker secured cup and Border Club medal. Mr. James Hamilton makes a very smart secretary, and he is kind and obliging. He was supported by a grand working committee. President Ritchie, vice-president John Hamilton, and treasurer G. Muir, carried out their duties admirably. The judge for the Scotch Fancy was Mr. Nisbet, who took great pains with them. Mr. McKenzie judged the Border Fancy, and looked quite happy among the little gems. Mr. Goodfellow judged the Norwich, Mule, and British bird section, and handled them in his well-known good style. The judges all gave satisfaction, and got through in good time.

HARROGATE.

Harrogate C.B.S. 9th annual show held in the Carlton Rooms, Station Parade, December 3. The room is an ideal one for a cage bird show, being lofty and well lighted. We must congratulate Mr. G. H. Barnwell, the hon. sec., and his committee on the way in which the show was managed, and the attention paid to the exhibitors. The birds were beautifully staged and arranged, and altogether it was the best show we have ever seen in Harrogate. We hope it will go on and prosper, for without a doubt the officers are a true lot of fanciers, and are worthy of support from the fanciers of the districts and the public at large. The following gentlemen were active workers: Mr. Duncan and Mr. Fergusson, chairman and vice-chairman; Messrs. Hewson, Head, Brown, Walker, Bielby, Ireland, Bousfield, Gill, Roberts, Robinson, and the hon. sec., G. H. Barnwell. Mr. Barnwell makes an excellent secretary in every way. The exhibition was opened by the Mayor, Capt. A. Boyd Carpenter, (who was accompanied by the Mayoress) who in a neat speech complimented the committee on having such a fine show, and he hoped the Fancy would grow in the district. The exhibits were a fine lot. In the Yorkshire section Mr. Walker, a member of the society, staged some grand birds in the members' classes, winning the members' cup, also sp. for best bird, and 2, sp. for best bird opposite colour; also his selling class bird (15s.) was run up to £2 7s. 6d., Mr. Thomas, of Halifax, being the buyer. The Mules and Hybrids were a grand lot, many winners being left without a card. The British birds, both hard and soft billed, were the finest lot we have seen at Harrogate. It was a pity that the light failed, as it did not give the judge a chance to select the best birds. The attendance was very good during the afternoon, and we think the show will prove one of the best ever held. Mr. W. Mundell (Bradford) judged.

Several birds were nominated, when the following came out of hat: Buff Yorks., cl., tkd., or variegg.; Brown or Grey Linnet, field or house moulted; Can., pairs for breeding; Brit., any species, with exception of Linnet; Nor., A.V., ck. or hen, Watton's special. Nomination of judge was by ballot, when Messrs. Colling and Turnbull were elected. Messrs. Wilson and Rice volunteered to collect specials for annual show. Special meeting was arranged for Dec. 17, to appoint stewards and allot specials, etc.—J. A. Turnbull, Hon. Sec.

A GREAT CHRISTMAS NUMBER NEXT WEEK.
ORDER IT AT ONCE.

QUEEN'S PARK (Glasgow).

Glasgow Queen's Park and Dls. C.B.S. second annual show, held Marie Stuart Hall, Crosshill, 19th November. The entry reached 380, this being far in advance of last year's. This young Society is fast making a name for itself, and now ranks among the leading clubs of Glasgow. The management was one of the best, and this was due to the labours of Mr. R. Heggie, a most energetic secretary, and his helpers, and we have no doubt the result of their labours must have been gratifying to all. The fight for the Byrom cup lay between a Norwich and Yorkshire, and ended in a nice mealighted yellow hen Norwich capturing the coveted trophy; this was owned by Mr. J. McMeehan, the runner up being Mr. R. Heggie. Mr J. M. Edwards won medal for third best bird in hall; Mr. R. Heggie also received gold medal for most points, Messrs. R. Thomson and J. M. Edwards being 2nd and 3rd respectively. The hall was crowded all the afternoon, and the show was a great success, both from a spectator's point of view and financially. T. E. Byrom, Esq., handed over the specials to the various winners, the specials numbering 118. Mr. R. Jarvie judged the Norwich sections, and Mr. J. Lappin the other varieties, their awards being well received.

DUNBAR.

Sixth annual show held Assembly Rooms, Nov. 30. The weather was a little cold, and some birds were a wee bit soft on account of the journey. The entry all through was a little better than in former years, although there is still room for improvement. The office bearers we must compliment on their selection. The president, Mr. George Cunningham, and vice-president, Mr. Donaldson, are keen fanciers, and took great interest in the show, backed up by a hard-working committee of cage bird fanciers in Mr. A. Heagh (treasurer), Messrs. Burns, Law, and Cormack. The secretary, Mr. Gilhooly, is the right man in the right place; he had everything at his finger tips, and all passed off without a hitch under his guidance. Scotch Fancies, although few in number, were of superior merit. Mr. Allen won both cups. The Border section was well filled, and some of the cream was heading every class. Mr. McKenzie won sp for best Border, but was closely pressed by Mr. Gilchrist. Crests were all over of excellent merit. Mr. J. Patterson (Chirnside) judged; his awards were well received.

LIVERPOOL B.B.A.

Liverpool B.B.A. annual show held November 25th, Caledonian Schools, Oldham-street. The entry, whilst not being so good as last year, was not at all bad, some 360 exhibits giving the judges a fair morning's work, and the quality, especially in the Yorkshires, was excellent. The secretaries, Messrs. Hawkes and Eccleston, were a hard-working pair, and had everything well in hand, and the cards were all up soon after one o'clock. The genial chairman, Mr. J. H. Isaac was a host in himself, and the committee everything that could be desired. Prize money and specials were paid out at six o'clock. The judges, Messrs. Cowgill and Davies, gave general satisfaction.

SELKIRKSHIRE.

The 19th annual show was held Victoria Hall, 26th Nov. The hall is an ideal one, lofty, and well lit from top and sides. The cage birds were arrayed down the south end of the hall at just the proper height for visitors to view the exhibits. The entry all through was not a large one, which was not to be expected, seeing so many shows were held on same date, and in such close proximity. The shows cannot all stand if allowed to clash, and exhibitors cannot expect classes put on if they do not support them. But what was lacking in numbers was made up for in quality, each winner being fit to hold its own in any company. In Norwich, Mr. Cameron (Kelso) staged all the winners in the pink of condition, and deservedly won his honours. In Borders the cream was on view. B.F.C.C. medal went to Messrs. J. and J. Patterson, whose yellow hen came in for a great amount of admiration. The drawing of any variety cage birds for boys and girls under 10 years, brought out talent of superior merit, the winning Goldie being true in shape and colouring; 2nd, yellow Plainhead, making a good chase, but a little deficient in wing; 3rd, also Plainhead, a shade uneven in col; 4, Bullfinch, nice cap and markings. The society is fortunate in having such a long list of distinguished patronage, their president, W. O. Robertson, Esq., taking a great interest in the society. If Mr. Brodie as secretary, they have the right man in the right place, he being very obliging and painstaking in every way, the stewards, Messrs. Rodgers and Pringle, lending a helping hand. Mr. J. Neil (Kelso) judged, and his awards all over were well received.

EAST BOWLING & DIST. B.F.A.

Seventh members' show for 1910, held Nov. 26th, St. John's School, when there was an entry of 100 birds. Mr. J. Wilkinson (Lidget Green) judged and his awards gave entire satisfaction. Some splendid birds were staged, the quality being good throughout. Messrs. Gledhill, Wilson, Clark, Casey, Helliwell, Calloway, Booth, Padgett, and Shaw, were winners of most points in the respective sections.

WHITBURN

Whitburn and Dist. C.B.S. fifth annual show held Town Hall, 3rd Dec., and turned out very successful. The Society is to be congratulated on having such an enthusiastic committee of hard-working fanciers headed by the president, ex Bailie Lambie, and kept well in hand by the sec., Mr. Thos. Duncan, who had a firm grip of the reins to the satisfaction of everyone. The hall, which is of very fair size, is lit from the sides. The exhibits were ranged round the sides in three tiers, with a light down the centre, leaving plenty of room for visitors. Entries totalled 350, being down on last year's, the deficit being accounted for in the Border section, which only averaged 6 per class. The Norwich were well up to standard, while the British were, as usual, the strongest section, and contained some grand specimens. The Ure trophy, presented by the Lord Advocate, and offered for most points, was competed for for the first time, and was captured by ex Bailie Lambie, who had 37 entries forward. The same exhibitor also won cup for most points in the Border Fancy section. The Border Fancy club medal was awarded to the winning ticked buff hen put down by Mr. J. Shields. The judges were: For Border Fancies, Mr. W. Mossie (Annbank); for Norwich and British, Mr. A. Malcolmson (Glasgow); and their awards were very well received.

EBBW VALE.

Ebbw Vale, 3rd annual show was held in the Market Hall on Nov. 30. The hall is one of the finest in the Kingdom, being very spacious, capable of holding even double the number of exhibits; it has also a good top light. The arrangements were admirably carried out by the energetic, courteous and obliging secretaries, Messrs. Cook and Tilby, ably supported by a willing band of stewards. The classes were not quite so well filled as in previous years, owing, no doubt, to the unsettled state of trade in South Wales. The entries were fairly numerous, however, and some of the very finest exhibits were to be seen. Judging was exceedingly difficult, Mr. A. J. Gladwin having a very hard morning to spot the winners in almost every class. The cards were up in good time, and awards seemed to give every satisfaction.

YORKS., CL., ETC., YELL. CK. WINDSOR.

Windsor and Dist. C.B.A. 2nd annual open show, held Guildhall, Nov. 30th. The committee and the hon. secretary (Mr. E. A. Stickland), in particular, are to be congratulated upon the excellence and number of exhibits, and the admirable way in which the show was arranged. Special mention must be made of the Yorkshire classes, which were considerably above the average in both quality and quantity. The committee were fortunate in securing a large number of special prizes. Mr. J. Robson judged.

CUPAR.

Cupar and Dist. 23rd annual show held Dec. 3rd Corn Exchange. The hall is one of the best, with a grand top light and plenty of room. The entries this year totalled 170, very short considering the classification allowed. The Scotch Famous had this year to be cancelled, and the officials are, we hear, seriously to consider if this section is really worth catering for. It was also disheartening to see the Norwich Plainheads and Crests all cancelled, except the Plainhead Selling class. In a district where these varieties are very numerous, it is somewhat difficult to explain the reason for such a state of affairs. We heard that there were only 17 entries in Scotch Fancies (10 classes), and in Norwich not over a dozen entries. Probably, exhibitors were supporting shows nearer their own homes, but for exhibitions like Cupar, where everything is done in good style and every care taken of exhibits, a better entry is surely deserved. The management was in the hands of Mr. W. Ruddiman (the secretary), with Mr. A. Allan as assistant, and everything was in capital order; in fact, it would be a difficult matter to find a better couple of organisers. Messrs. Gibson, Low, Speed, and Reggie and Keltie were in attendance on the judges, and spared no effort in making everyone comfortable. The judges were Messrs. J. Smillie (Kilmarnock), for Norwich and Borders, and Mr. J. F. Dewar (Edinburgh) for Yorks, British, and Foreign.

BINGLEY AND DISTRICT O.S.

Members' show, held Dec. 3, Assembly Rooms. There were 69 birds in six classes. Mr. Blakey (Bradford) placed the cards, and gave general satisfaction. The competition for member's silver cup is very keen, and great interest is being taken in it, seeing the first four competitors are so close. With still one more show to count, the positions are:—1, R. Wade, 63 points; 2, Simpson, 59 points; 3, M. Walton, 57; 4, S. Denby, 54 points.

WOODSIDE.

Woodside O.S. annual show, held Burgh Hall, Dec. 3. The exhibition was a successful one in every respect. In number, entries were back a little on last year, but the quality was all that could be desired, competition in several of the classes being particularly keen. The unlighted classes were the strongest in the show, sixty birds being exhibited in the four classes. The wild bird section was also well represented, and made a fine display. An interesting feature was the bird-drawing competition open to children attending Woodside and Kittybrewster schools; almost a hundred drawings were on view, and the competition showed a high degree of skill. The arrangements were admirably carried out by the president, Mr. Stewart, and the secretary, A. Thomson, who had everything ready for judging by nine o'clock. The secretary deserves great praise for the able manner in which he discharged his duties. He has been able to add to the financial balance every year. Judging finished at one o'clock, and then the show was opened to the general public. Mr. F. Wyse (London) was a visitor, also Mr. F. A. Watt (from Banff), and Dr. Galloway. Winner of the silver rose-bowl, Mr. J. Sandeson; Hyde's silver teapot, Mr. A. Thomson; Sandiford's medal, Messrs. Stewart and Milne; Ramsden's medal, Lewis Will; silver plate for best small British, Messrs. Ewen and Anderson. Mr. W. D. Milne (Montrose) judged Norwich and Borders; the British and Foreign were judged by Mr. G. Finnie (Aberdeen), and their awards gave general satisfaction.

WEST OF SCOTLAND O.S.

Twenty-first annual show held November 26th, National Hall, Glasgow, a hall well adapted for the purpose, being well lighted and roomy. The number of exhibits exceeded 400, and the members have reason to feel proud of their exhibits. Norwich in numbers were up, and the quality good. Crests and Crestbreds for numbers and quality would be hard to beat, averaging 14 per class. Mr. McNaughton won the Plainhead cup, 20 points; Mr. J. Young Crest bowl, 15; Mr. J. Lappin, Border bowl, 21; Mr. F. Haddow, Mule and Hybrid vase, 10; Mr. S. Morrison both British and Foreign cups; Mr. Summerhill, Amateur cup. The judges' awards gave every satisfaction. Judges: Messrs. J. McLay, A. K. Chalmers, and M. Craig. Mr. Wm. Hutchinson had the secretarial and managerial arrangements well up, and carried out his duties to the evident satisfaction of all.

ULSTER.

Ulster O.S. 18th annual show held Clarence Place Hall, Belfast, December 2 and 3. The officials are a splendid enthusiastic body of fanciers. In Mr. Trimble, the hon. secretary, they possess a true bird-lover, and one of the hardest of workers. He was ably supported by a splendid staff in Messrs. Carson, Gray, Neill, Lavery, Fleming, Tedford, Montgomery, Stewart, Teasy, Coates, and last but not least Mr. J. Ronaldson. The hall is now well known, and the success which the club has achieved is not to be wondered at. We are pleased to note that the show has been one of the largest held in Ireland this season up to the present, close on 450 entries being secured, and we congratulate the management on their achievement. Yorkshires were a grand lot, though we have seen larger classes at this fixture. Competition in the Norwich section was very keen, Mr. J. Thompson winning the society's silver cup. Belgians and Scotch Fancies were the finest collection as regards quantity and quality, we have had the pleasure to see in Ireland for a long time. Britishers came up well, especially the Goldfinches, 20 in class, not at all bad. Mr. Barclay was again awarded honours for his champion "Pride of Erin," a very appropriate name indeed. Mules were very strong. Taking the quality of the birds all round, we consider Ireland is indeed forging ahead in the Cage Bird Fancy. Many of the exhibits were fit to win in the keenest of competition, even at the Crystal Palace. This club appointed no less than three judges, Mr. J. Watson, of Glasgow (Belgians and Scotch Fancy), Mr. A. Wellings, of Prescot (Norwich and Yorkshire), and Mr. Peter Pettigrew, of Glasgow (mules, British and Foreign birds), and their awards were well received. The attendance of visitors and exhibitors was all that could be desired, and no doubt the "gate" will help to swell their funds.

COLCHESTER.

Colchester F.A. 4th annual show, held in the Hall, Soldiers' Home, Queen Street, Dec. 1st. Mr. E. H. Andrews, the hon. sec., had the birds nicely staged in good time, and his committee were very attentive to the wants of the exhibits, and although the weather was against it, there was a very fair attendance in the evening. There was not a very good entry, but some nice quality exhibits put in an appearance. The birds were nicely staged at one end of the hall in a good light. Mr. R. J. Witton placed the cards.

A Grand Show held in the Midlands by the Leicester C.B.S.

Leicester C.B.S. annual show, held Dec. 2nd and 3rd. The County Rooms (Old Free Library) was the venue; it has good light (electric by night), and is lofty and very spacious, also free from draughts. The schedule issued was of a very liberal description, and 20/- per class was offered as prize money. The entry was a good one. A total of 700 was recorded, an advance on last year's total by a matter of 50. The chairman, Mr. W. Stevens, is the right man in the right place, he having the society's well-being at heart; the vice-chairmen are a couple of very capable officials, viz:- Messrs. E. B. Hunt and H. Christian. The committee know the correct workings of an open show, and praise is due to Messrs. Moore, Heighton, Ride, Adams, Wood, Claypole, F. Harrison, and J. E. Harrison. Mr. J. A. Tyler, the secretary, who also acts as treasurer, is a most valuable official. He is affable and obliging, and works hard. We have it on very good authority that this is the last occasion on which he intends holding the secretarial reins; if it is so, Leicester will suffer a loss. The Norwich section provided a capital treat to those who favour the "short and thick uns." The clear yell. cock, the property of Mr. J. E. Davies, is an eye-opener, having won at practically all the principal shows in the North. Amongst the amateur classes one could have located many birds quite capable of giving some of the "cream" in the upper circles a good run. Cinnamons were a nice collection. Yorkshires, although not over numerous, included some "stormers." Borders were as pretty as paint, and were greatly admired. The Hybrids were really fine, "mixtures" of great rarity being well to the fore. Britishers without doubt were the feature of the show. Our National songsters, superb in costume, shown in most cases to perfection, left an impression on one's mind that will not be forgotten for many a long day, and were worth many miles' journey to see. The foreigners gave an additional pleasing tone to the show. The stewards were Messrs. Hawthorn, Bell, Harrison, Heighton, F. C. Moore, and Dyson; all worked with a will, and are to be complimented. Staging was of a very neat description, and every bird could be seen at a glance. The management throughout was most excellent. Mr. C. Draper had a nice selection of cages, seeds, etc., on view. Hyde's special went to Mr. W. Stevens, and also Ramsden's. Trower and Co.'s medal went to Mr. H. Christian; Sandiford's, Mr. J. A. Tyler. The judges were Mr. J. F. Dewar (Edinburgh), Brit., Hyb., and For.; Mr. A. Hirst (Accrington), Nor. P.H., Yorks., and Borders; and Mr. J. H. Roe (Birmingham), Cinn., Limit, and novices. The light during judging was of rather a dull character.

Mr. Hirst's Classes.

NOR. NAT. COL. JERSEY.

The cage bird section of the Jersey O.S. show, which was held in the Springfield Pavilion on Nov. 30th and Dec. 1st, was not up to the average of shows which we have seen in Jersey in past years, and one missed the splendid teams of birds shown by those one-time enthusiasts, Miss Swanger, and Messrs. Chevalier, Gellender, and Bartlett. What Crests, what Norwich, what Yorkshires those giants of the past used to show! Numbers and quality both were to be seen in them. At the show held last week both numbers and quality were far below the days of which we speak. Mr. Le Rossignol staged some capital Yorkshires, but beyond his team there was not much of high merit. This gentleman won the challenge cup for the best team with three very nice hens, the leader being indeed a good one, and she secured the special for the best bird in the section. The birds were very nicely staged, and well looked after by the committee, which was composed of the following most excellent fanciers:—Messrs. C. J. Nicolle (president), S. Sinnatt, J. Labey, J. Cory, J. de Gruchy (vice-presidents) P. Bois, P. M. Baudains, G. Benest, J. Le Marquand, T. D. De La Mare, F. Gale, P. J. Le Feuvre, E. C. Laurens, C. E. W. Lani, A. Shackell, J. T. Arthur, and E. P. Messervy. Messrs. J. Le Rossignol and J. P. Laurens made a most excellent brace of secretaries, and they received valued assistance from Mr. C. D. Amy, the treasurer. Mr. C. A. House judged.

YORKS., CL. Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

HAWICK.

Hawick O.S. annual show held December 3rd. The executive are to be congratulated on the good all-round entry they received, although, after the splendid classification which was issued, we were sorry to see a number of the classes cancelled. The remaining classes were well patronised, and contained the cream of the Fancy. Competition, too, was very keen. Scotch Fancies were allotted two classes, and the birds were good. Borders all over were a choice collection, and as this was the International competition, some grand specimens were forward. England and Wales had forward a few, and accounted for some of the prizes; we, however, expected to see a more representative lot from these countries. Scotland to-day held more than her own, accounting for the greater part of the spoil. May we venture to suggest that in future at an International competition a judge from each country would be a good idea, and would give the competition more of an International air. The classes were judged by two well-known and popular Scotch breeders, Messrs. D. Hamilton, and J. Hamilton, and taken all over, their awards were well received. Mr. H. Bennet secured the B.F.C.C. medal. A good number of novices split up the classes with some real eye-openers. Greens were a grand collection, and competition life. The Cinnamons were the finest we have ever seen drawn together. Norwich were good, but the Crests were cancelled. Mr. McLay judged Nor. Clnn. and Green classes, and his awards also were well received. Mules were carefully judged by Mr. R. Baldie place of Mr. A. Cochrane, who was unable to attend (owing to ill-health). Britishers were a grand collection, and taken all over were one of the features of the show; the judge was Mr. A. W. Wasson, who proved happy in his selections. The show was held in the Central Halls, a very nice place, being free from draught and well lighted from the roof. The committee was large, and composed of genuine fanciers, at the head being the genial Mr. H. Amos, the worthy secretary, who had everything in apple-pie order. He was ably assisted by a well-known pioneer of shows, Mr. M. Jamieson, of the well-known firm of Arnot and Jamieson. The show was well patronised, all the leading Border breeders from far and near being present, and it was a treat to hear the different opinions of a genuine Border Fancy being discussed. British bird and Norwich exhibitors were also well represented, so many faces seldom meeting together at a Border show. A feature of the show was that all birds that could reach home that night were dispatched, some of them leaving a little after 3 o'clock.

BRIGHOUSE.

Brighouse and Dis. C.B.S. annual show, held December 2nd and 3rd, Oddfellows Hall, Bradford Road, under the rules of the Yorkshire Union, and the patronage of the C.M.Y.C.C. Entries came up badly; 28 classes had been provided, and these only attracted an entry of 243. Several classes had to be cancelled, and several more received only half prize money, and this despite the fact that the special list was far and away the best that had been given this season. The society really deserved much better support at the hands of the Union members. The secretary, Mr. F. Mitchell, worked hard for the success of the show, and had all matters well in hand, being ably assisted by Mr. H. Stake (president), Mr. Saunders (assistant secretary), Mr. W. Briggs (treasurer), Messrs. Bailey and Gill (vice-presidents), and Messrs. Naylor and Tattersal, who acted as stewards, every thing passing off quite smoothly. Mr. J. Bartley (Bingley) officiated as judge, his awards being generally received with satisfaction. Mr. J. Bailey secured special for best bird in the open classes with his yellow bird, Mr. H. Simonett taking that for novice classes with his winning buff Yorkshire. Messrs. Ogden Bros. put down a strong team, and carried off special for most points, also those for most points in classes 1 to 8 and 9 to 12, Mr. J. Bailey (Brighouse) securing that for classes 13-14. Mr. C. Morrison took prize for novice Yorkshire section, and Mr. F. J. Sykes that for the Norwich novice section; Mr. J. Tattersal was the winner of the special for best bird by a member.

SHEFFIELD.

Sheffield and Dist. C.B.S. (affiliated to the C.B. Union) annual exhibition held December 2nd and 3rd, Corn Exchange. The place is spacious, light, lofty, and well situated. The entries totalled 460, an improvement on last year's number. The president is Mr A Brudshaw, the treasurer Mr. W. Oxley most genuine fanciers, and the right men in the right place. The committee are a band of willing workers, who deserve every praise for the exertions they put forth. The secretaries are Messrs. Hobson and Lindsay, who act conjointly; both do all in their power to help matters on in the way they should go, and are worthy of the compliments paid to them. Norwich made a nice display, best in this section many thought being the ticked buff cock owned by Mr. J. Woolhouse, closely followed by a clear buff cock, the property of Mr. J. Haigh. Yorkshires were a really nice lot. In the novice section specimens were shown fit for keen competition. Crests, C.B.'s, and Mules contained several very notable exhibts. British birds fairly captivated; they were one of the best collections ever seen in the "Cutlery Metropolis." The Foreigners, with their gorgeous plumage, attracted great attention; they were really a magnificent lot. Special winners: Sandiford's, Mr. J. Smedley; Ramsden's, Mr. F. Fox; medal presented by Mr. J. C. Barnes for best novice Yorkshire, Mr. C. Tomlinson; best Foreigner and best-feathered Foreigner, Mr. J. Walsh; best British, J. Walsh. The Stewards were Messrs. Woolhouse and Bingham, who proved themselves very capable officials. The staging of the exhibits was good. Judges: Messrs. W. Vardy (Hucknall) and W. Muudell (Bradford); their awards appeared to be well received.

Walsh, Chaffinch, nice shape and size, good col. and markings; 2, Swurbrick, good shaped Hawfinch, not quite so good in col. as might be, still in fine form; 3, Beaty, Corn Bunting, capital size, shape, and quality, good moonings, some thought an easy 1st; 4, J. Walsh, Snow Bunting, in fine plumage, some thought this, too, should have gone up somewhat; vhc, hc, Fletcher; No. 4, Bamforth, absent; No. 8, 9, Howe, absent. SOFTBILL (11): 1, Milne, Wagtail, in nice trim, and staged delightfully; 2, 3, Forster, magnificent Wheatear, many thought should have won; 3rd, very pretty Blackcap, rightly placed; 4, Parkes, Redstart, nice feather and col., not large, but sweet; vhc, Fletcher; hc, J. Walsh, the former very fine 'Gale, some thought should havo been in the money. LARGE (6): 1, J. Walsh, takes spl. for best Brit., one of the finest Waxwings we ever "clapped eyes" upon, condition perfect; 2, Darlow, Magpie, fine size, in rattling good form; 3, Forster, Waxwing, not in quite such fine plumage as 1st, extra good one; 4, Wharncliffe Aviaries, Magpie, not quite the substance of 2nd, still pretty; vhc, P. Walsh; hc, Fletcher. FOR., LARGE (10): 1, Baxby, Pennant Parrakeet, in topping form; 2, Reeks, Adelaide Parrakeet, looking spic and span; 3, Fletcher, Peruvian Green Jay, looking very fit; 4, H. Beaty, Barbet, in capital order; vhc, Hadley; c, Somerfield. SMALL (21), rare lot: 1, 3, Walsh, Tanager, takes spl. for best For. and spl. for best feathered For., quite a little picture of wonderful colouring; 3rd, Maroon Tanager, in good plumage; 2, hc, Beaty, Black-shouldered Tanager, in delightful feather; 4th, Yellow Cassique, in nice dress; vhc, c, Hadley. NOV. YORKS., MEMB. (9): 1, 4, Bacon; 2, Lewis; 3, Sorsby; vbc, hc, c, Crapper.

RUTHERGLEN & DIS. O.A.

Fourth annual show, held 10th November, Rechabites Hall. The day was a favourable one for the time of year, and Mr. J. Young, who made the awards, got through in nice time, his award coming to meet with general approval. Entries were scarcely up to those of former years, but quality was alright, many of the exhibits being able to hold their own anywhere. The management of the show was excellent, and everything passed off without a hitch. Mr. Lappin makes an ideal president, with Mr. R. H. Livingstone as vice president, Mr. Johnson as secretary, and a good committee, who were one and all anxious to see their show a success. The show was well patronised during the afternoon. Several persons handed in their names at the close of the show as members.

The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockatoels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. In this practical handbook an eminent authority and highly successful breeder gives very full details upon How to Keep, Feed, Breed, Tame, & Teach to Talk.

The Stock Book.

Our Invaluable "Breeding Room Register." By G. E. WESTON, price 6d., post free 7d.

A well-known fancier has said of it:—"It makes bird breeding easy." It simplifies the operations in the bird-room, and makes it possible for everyone to breed his birds as they should be bred—keep account of their strong and weak points. It contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

Live Bird Labels.

For use when despatching live birds on journeys by rail, etc., printed in red ink and gummed on back. The simplest, neatest, and best on the market. 24, 3d.; 50, 6d.; 100, 1/-, post free; printed up with fancier's name and address at foot, at the following low rate:—100, 2/-; 250, 2/6; 500, 3/6.

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

THERE'S ONE THING

you don't get with any of my appliances; that is the "hump." All are made by practical men, who thoroughly understand their business, and no expense is spared to make every article thoroughly up-to-date and durable. I have repeatedly said that my goods are far better than any others on the market, but I should like you to test the truth of this statement by having goods from me on approval similar articles from elsewhere, and if mine are not much better value, smash them up and I will refund money in full. A practical test such as this is worth more than pages of idle boastings. Clapnets, made from genuine ⅜in. mesh thread netting, very fine but strong, 3 yards long, 5½ft. deep, 4 feet fly, 4/- pair; ditto, 4 yards, 5/-, 5 yards 6/-, 6 yds. 7/-, 7 yds. 8/-, 8 yds. 9/-, 9 yds. 10/-, 10 yds. 11/- per pair. All have two nets to the pair, and each net is guaranteed full measurement as above, and all fitted complete with improved fittings consisting of stavepoles, pegs, lines, etc., ready for immediate use. Please note the improved fittings sent with my clap nets makes them work far better than the old-fashioned sockets, iron trash. Loose netting made from 60 s/3 cord thread, ⅜in. mesh, same as used in above clap nets, 7 feet deep, 3d. yard; 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; 12 feet deep, 5d. ynrd, all post free. Improved Bat folding Sparrow nets, fitted on 17 feet bamboo poles, 5/6; ditto, on 17 feet poles, 6/-; ditto, on 19 feet poles, 6/6 pair. These Sparrow nets are a vast improvement on the old-fashioned idea, being a better shape, much more effective and more portable. Lark nets, flirt pegs, poles and lines, and hundreds of other articles in stock. Send stamp for full list of catcher's appliances, which also gives hints on net making. Please note, all the leading catchers of the day are using appliances supplied by me throughout England, Canada, Africa, America, India, and other places abroad. They have recognised that the day is past for the old-fashioned appliances, and so use those that are bang up to date as supplied by me. See last issue for few testimonials; or, better still, send a furniture van, and I will fill it with unsolicited testimonials received from delighted users of my nets, etc.

IT MAY INTEREST

you to read this. I have just received my second consignment for this season of the genuine large Siberian cock Goldfinches, and with them have also received absolutely the first lot of Siberian Bullfinches imported into England this season. Price: Goldfinches, 5/- and 6/-: special exhibition specimens, 7/6 and 10/- each; few exhibition Siberian cock Bullfinches, 10/- each. It is not necessary for me to tell you a lot of nonsense about "pick of Europe," "large as Thrushes," etc. It is more to your taste when I say that I guarantee to supply a Goldfinch or Bullfinch really fit to win for 10/-, and unless you are perfectly satisfied I refund every penny of your money. I may say that on Thursday last, Dec. 8th, 1,500 Russian Goldfinches arrived in England, and I was offered the whole lot of them very cheap, but I never buy ordinary Russian birds, as the real Siberians are always far better birds. Other dealers may have had the pick of those Russians, but no dealer living has had the pick of either my Goldfinches or Bullfinches, so exhibitors will know who is really the man to supply the gems.

W. GORE, Direct Importer, GOOCH STREET, BIRMINGHAM.

KING OF SIBERIANS.

Another fresh arrival. I claim to send out more winners than any other dealer breathing. Notice: These birds are not the so-called cheap Russian muck, as other dealers are selling for Siberians with their boast and glaring advertisements. I will deposit with the Editor £100 if anyone can prove that these birds are not the real Siberian, or sending hens out for cocks. These birds are as big as Larks, with massive deep cut square blazes and well buttoned and full moon, fit to win anywhere, in the pink of condition, from 5/- each; special picked birds 7/6, 10/- each; Siberian hen Goldfinches, 2/- each, or 21/- dozen; Siberian Linnets, 1/6 each; Siberian Greenfinches, 1/6 each; Siberian Siskins, in massive condition, 2/6 each. Notice to numerous customers and intending purchasers: I am the original and sole direct importer of the real Siberian birds; all birds sent by midnight mail in the best of condition. Note the name and address:

ENOCK POWERS, 91, SCLATER-ST., SHOREDITCH, LONDON.

FAIRY TALES

may be all right in their place, but that place is not in this paper. I do not make use of a lot of nonsensical bombast to induce you to purchase from me. I would much rather you saw the birds and satisfy yourself that they are exactly what you require, and for this reason I send everything I sell on approval at my own risk, either on receipt of cash or deposit system of this paper, and if not satisfactory, birds have only to be returned, and back comes your money. No quibbling about me whatever. You return birds and I return money, that's straight enough isn't it? I have a spendid lot of Worcestershire cock Goldfinches, all in pink of health and condition, and full colour, at 2/- each, 3 5/-, 6 9/-, 12 17/-; selected, larger cocks, guaranteed in song, 2/6 and 3/- each, 3 6 6, 6 12/-; real exhibition specimens, 4/- and 5/- each; Hen Goldfinches, 1/- each, 3 2/6; real Siberian cock Goldfinches, in perfect condition, and full free song, 5/- and 6/- each; few specially large birds for Muling and showing, 7/6 and 10/- each; grand lot cock Bullfinches, 1/6 and 2/- each, 3 4 6, 6 7/6; selected cocks, for exhibition, 3/-, 4/- and 5/- each; hen Bullfinches, 1/- each, 3 2/6, 6 4/6; selected large, rich-coloured hens, 1/6 each; splendid lot genuine hand reared German hen Bullfinches, finger-tame, ideal birds for hybridising, 4/- and 5/- each; enormous stock of cocks brown Linnets, in superb condition, all guaranteed red-breasted, 8d. each, 3 1/6, 6 2/6, 12 4/-; specially picked, larger cocks, for contest singing and Mule breeding, 1/- each, 3 2/6, 6 4/-; exhibition specimens, exquisitely pencilled, and of correct type, 2/6 each. Please note I handle about 100 dozen of cock Linnets weekly, and supply most of the Lancashire and Yorkshire dealers and Linnet singers, so no man has a better chance of getting exhibition Linnets than myself. Cock Siskins, 2/- each, 3 5/-, 6 9/-; hen Siskins, 1/- each, 3 2/6, 6 4/-; cock Chaffinches, 8d. each, 3 1/6, 6 2/6, 12 4/-; exhibition specimens, 1/6 and 2/6 each; cock Greenfinches, 6d. each, 3 1/-, 6 1/6; exhibition specimens 1/- each; very large cock or hen mealy Redpolls for Muling and Hybridising, 1/-, 1/6 and 2/- each; Lesser Redpolls, 6d. each, 3 1/3, 6 2/-; cock Goldfinch Mules, in full song, day and gaslight, 6/- and 7/6 each; cock Snowbuntings, 1/- each, 3 2/6; grand lot of bold, plump cock Skylarks, in superb condition, 8d. each, three 1/6, 6 2/6; 12, 4/-; few very steady, guaranteed in song, 1/6 each. Linnet, Goldfinch and Bullfinch cages, 6d. each, 6 2/6, 12 4/6; Lark cages, 6d. and 8d. each, 4/- and 6/- dozen; special Linnet and Goldfinch stock and singing cages, 1/- each. Dealers supplied with cages of every description; send stamp for wholesale list. Notice to intending bird purchasers, my prices may not always be the lowest, but I sell cocks for cocks and hens for hens, and my prices are absolutely the lowest that genuine cocks can be sold at. All birds are guaranteed properly netted in county of Worcester, and are thoroughly on hard seed before sent out, a signed guarantee sent with every bird, saying birds are not recently taken, and I also give an indemnity to every customer against all costs arising from a prosecution for keeping birds in protected areas. I handle more English birds than any other and as I do not exhibit, all are for sale. (See Appliance column, also Roller Canary column for other advertisements.

Crests & Crestbreds

Best value ever known in this variety. They are in my possession, and can be seen. Can many of those advertised by a certain class say this? I assert plainly, some have not one they offer, but sell first, then run about and buy up for the order. No, they have to be sold first and bought afterwards. Note my prices this week:—Crested Cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-, upwards. Hens, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 40/-, 60/-. Crest-bred Cocks, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, up. Hens, 3/6, 8/6, 10/6, 20/- up. Pairs Matched for Crest Breeding, one Crested, one Crested-bred, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-, up. Do you want a winning Crest or Crest-bred? If so, communicate with me. I can give a description of birds held.

W. RUDD, The Bird Specialist, NORWICH.

THE BEST, LARGEST, AND MOST VARIED COLLECTION OF CANARIES IN THE WORLD!

To select from. A very sweeping statement to make, I admit; but in my firm opinion true to the letter; if, however, you will kindly state your requirements to me and I do not think I can suit you, I will say so plainly, and I will not try to induce you by a lot of "cant" to have something else, for I consider if offence come out of truth, it is better than concealing such. With your appreciated custom I also want YOUR SATISFACTION. On more than one occasion Experts – men connected with advertising all their lives—have expressed the views that I have published more Testimonials than any other person or firm in existence. It may have been noted often by readers of this paper that not only are the full dates of all such given, but that THE SAME TESTIMONIAL NEVER APPEARS TWICE, nor are they of ancient origin. Yet HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS HAVE BEEN RECEIVED more than have ever been printed, for it would occupy far too much space, time and money to give to the public one quarter the number received. Herewith will be found a few more of those recently received as examples:—

Aylburton, Lydney, December 10th 1910,—The bird arrived safely, and gives satisfaction. W. Blake to W. Rudd.

Reepham, December 12th, 1910, Received bird safe, just what I wanted. Thank you for prompt attention. J. Wasey to W. Rudd.

47, Duffryn, Petrebach, December 2nd, 1910,—I received Linnets and cage quite safe, and they give every satisfaction. B. Reid to W. Rudd.

12, High Street, East Cowes, Isle of Wight, December 8th, 1910,—Birds to hand. Thanks for such good and prompt attention. A. Brill to W. Rudd.

15, Hollingbury Park avenue, Preston, Brighton, December 1st, 1910,—Miss Berry is very well satisfied with the Thrushes' cage you sent last week.

Woodcote, Hersell, Woking, December 10th, 1910,—Received the pair of Lizards yesterday morning. I am very pleased with them. M. Ellin to W. Rudd.

11, Holmesdale Road, Kew Gardens, Kew, December 8th, 1910,—My birds arrived quite safely, and I am very pleased with them. R. A. Brown to W. Rudd.

112, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C., December 2nd, 1910,—Birds arrived quite safely, and are very satisfactory, and both lovely songsters. T. Dyer to W. Rudd.

25, Temple Place, Annisland, Glasgow, December 9th, 1910,—The Roller arrived all safe, and gives every satisfaction. It started singing very soon, G. Aitken to W. Rudd.

Wynyard Road, Wolviston, Stockton-on-Tees December 2nd, 1910,—Received Canary quite safe. I am quite satisfied, and think it a nice bird. J. W. Hayton to W. Rudd.

98, Lancaster Gate, London, W., December 9th, 1910,—The Goldfinch has arrived safely, and I am very pleased with it. Thanking you for attention. F. Bowker to W. Rudd.

5, Rye Cottage, Clarence Road, East Cowes, Isle of Wight, December 9th, 1910,—The Roller I purchased of you has given every satisfaction. G. Langworthy to W. Rudd.

Woodville Cottage, Longford, Coventry, December 2nd, 1910,—Birds arrived quite safely, in splendid condition. Many thanks for your prompt attention. J. S. Walker to W. Rudd.

Bachelor's Walk, Baginalstown, co. Carlow, Ireland, December 7th, 1910,—Received Yorkshire cock to-day safely, and I am very pleased with him. Sergt. J. Carey to W. Rudd.

The Hut, Summer Gardens, East Molesey, December 8th, 1910,—Received bird safely to-day. I am very pleased with it, and am much obliged for trouble taken. A. M. Boodle to W. Rudd.

Ravensmonnt, Minehead, December 9th, 1910,—The six Siskins safely to hand, with which I am entirely satisfied, all are quite healthy, and certainly none the worse for transit. H. L. to W. Rudd.

December 10th, 1910,—I received the birds safe, and the member is very pleased with them, the cock is singing beautifully. The hen is a beauty. I will start another club after Christmas. A. Swift to W. Rudd.

45, Water Street, Carmarthen, December 11th, 1910, —I received bird safe, and am very pleased with it. It sings well. I shall be pleased to recommend your name to any friends requiring birds. W. L. Jones to W. Rudd.

Benham Park Stables, near Newbury, Berks, December 10th, 1910,—The Yorkshire arrived quite safe, and I am greatly pleased with it. Shall be sending you some more orders shortly. L. Broomfield to W. Rudd.

2, Waterden Crescent, London Road, Guildford, December 6th, 1910,—Bird safely to hand, perfectly satisfactory. Thanks for prompt dispatch. When wanting another shall send to Rudd, Norwich. E. C. Patrick to W. Rudd.

45, Upper Wellington Street, Long Eaton, December 9th, 1910,—I received the two Siberian hen Goldfinches quite safely to-day. I may say that I am very pleased with them, they might almost be mistaken for cocks. W. R. Hexter to W. Rudd.

(Many hundreds of these Foreign hens are annually sold by unprincipled dealers, as cocks. W.R.)

2, Mallard Villas, Mallard Road, Woodford Green, December 9th, 1910,—Bird arrived this morning quite safe. I am very pleased with it. W. Sharp to W. Rudd.

4, Euston Terrace, Moston Lane, Beverley, December 8th, 1910,—I have received the Parrot all right, and I thank you most kindly for sending such a good bird. It has been laughing, talking, and whistling to-night. I am highly satisfied. H. Harker to W. Rudd.

Kirby Mills, Kirby Moorside, Yorks.,—Dec. 10th, 1910,—Bird and cage arrived safely, and I am very pleased with them, and the way you have treated me. It is a very fine bird for the money. I shall come to you again when I want birds. B. Reed to W. Rudd.

27, Oxford Street, Manchester, December 10th, 1910, —It is with pleasure I have to inform you that the buff hen arrived this morning, safe, and in excellent condition, and gives entire satisfaction. I also may say, I shall be pleased to send for another one like it in January. W. C. Drew to W. Rudd.

28, Queen Street, Victoria Park, Aylesbury, December 6th, 1910,—Received bird and cage quite safely on Thursday, at 1 o'clock. Bird was singing nicely at 2.30. Am very pleased with him. The cage suits me exactly. I thank you for the way in which you have treated me. I shall know where to come in future. C. E. Clark to W. Rudd.

23, Mansfield Road, Pleasely Hill, Mansfield, December 1st, 1910,—I received Roller Canary safely, and in good condition. It started singing in less than an hour after being unpacked. It needs no flattery. I am highly satisfied with same. You, being a straightforward dealing man, will receive my further orders. Have bought Rollers elsewhere before, but not like this. C. Alvey to W. Rudd.

150, Montague Street, Compstall, near Stockport, December 1st, 1910,—I am very pleased to say the bird arrived quite safe, and I am quite satisfied with same, it is in grand condition. It has done plenty of singing for me the first day. Thanking you for the straightforward manner in which you have dealt with me. I shall always be able to rely on you for sound bargains. J. H. Tym to W. Rudd.

20, Lillie Street, Glasgow, Scotland, December 12th, 1910,—I received pair of Yorkshires safe and sound, and none the worse for their long journey, which says much in your favour for prompt dispatch. I am simply delighted with them. They prove your statements is value for money. They would have cost me double the price here, and I would not have been so well served. I will certainly advise all who want birds and honest dealing, and say Rudd's, Norwich, is the place for bargains. J. McIsaac to W. Rudd.

141, Drummond Road, Bermondsey, London, December 9th, 1910,—The bird arrived quite safely at 9.30 this morning, in splendid condition, and is a credit to you. It commenced singing at 11 a.m. Thanking you for your prompt attention and quick delivery. This is the first bird I have bought for years, thanks to your "Eggertine" and "Tonic Drops," which I have used for the last nine or ten years. I have a Linnet 7 years old, and a Roller Canary. They are a picture for anyone to see, being brought up on the "Eggertine" and "Tonic Drops." W. Williamson to W. Rudd.

WHEN READING THIS

I don't want you to say to yourself, "Oh, the usual tale," etc.; I want to prove to you that in my case at least it is not the usual tale. For many years I have publicly stated in this and other papers that my Leipzig Rollers are not only as good as others, but that they are much better than others at higher prices. If you are looking out for a Roller, I want you to test the truth of this assertion by having a Leipzig Roller from me, and an ordinary Roller from elsewhere at any higher price, both on week's trial, test them in any way you like, and if you do not consider mine is far better value, return it to me and the whole of your money will be returned. I put it to you in this way. If my birds were not everthing I say they are, I dare not make this offer, as publicity would do me harm, not good. I have at present time considerably over one thousand Leipzig Roller cocks on view for anyone to see at any time; all are guaranteed in full song, day and gaslight, with long hollow rolls, sweet silvery trills, water-bubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, jug-jug of Nightingale, bell harp gong, and flute notes, and guaranteed entirely free from any harsh or chopping notes, whatever price, 7/- and 8/- each. Special Bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass and hollow bell rolls, etc., 10/- and 12/6 each. I also have a grand lot of genuine Seifert contest Rollers at 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, and 40/- each. These contest Rollers are birds bred from winners, and have been taking part in contests in Germany themselves this season; all have hollow bell, bass, glucke, deep water roll, and schockel, and are free from hardness or nasal tone. This is a splendid opportunity for those desirous of getting birds really fit to win in England, as I tell you candidly I am selling birds at 40/- each which would cost a private buyer £10 in Germany. For those who desire a loud, rattling singer, I have a huge stock of free singing, loud, vigorous Hartz cocks in full song, price 5/- each; Leipzig Roller hens, 2/- each; Hartz hens, 3/- couple; special Roller singing cabinets, with loose fronts and folding doors, 2/6 and 3/6 each. You will notice that following letters are not what you have read before, as every advertisement of mine contains fresh testimonials:—"28, Bank-street, Cambuslang, December 12th.—Sir,—Birds arrived safe on Friday. Many thanks for punctuality and quality.—Yours, W. Lilly." "Sheffield, December 12th.—Sir,—Roller arrived safely. It is a beautiful singer, and highly satisfactory.—Yours, H. Fox." "12, William-road, Sutton, Surrey, December 12th.—Sir,—Please send two more Hartz cocks. I am very pleased with last; he is a little beauty.—Yours, J. Layton." "13, Dynevor-street, Fochriw, nr. Cardiff, December 12th.—Sir,—Roller to hand, and must say he is a champion songster, and better than I have had at double the price. Please send another; P.O. herewith.—Yours, Albert Williams." "58, Cotton-lane, Derby, December 10th.—Sir,—Received Leipzig Roller, and am more than satisfied. He is a beauty.—Yours, T. Hewins." "2, Ivy Cottage, Horace-street, Boston, December 9th.—Sir,—Accept warmest thanks for Roller Canary, which came safely to hand. Though travelling through the night he began singing 15 minutes after entering the house, and certainly promises every satisfaction.—Yours, C. Long." "Tockwith, Yorks, December 6th.—Sir,—Received Rollers this morning and am very pleased with them. They started singing soon as I got them home. I feel fully satisfied, and can only do my best in recommending others to you.—Yours, F. Walker." "22, Temple-street, Dublin, December 6th.—Sir,—I was so pleased with last Canary I had from you that I promised to get you some orders. Enclosed find P.O. for three more, same as last.—Yours, P. Moore." "33, Peddie-street, Dundee, December 5th.—Sir,—I have much pleasure in informing you that the Leipzig Roller I got from you six weeks ago is a little champion singer, and I would not part with him.—Yours, R. Ritchie." Please note, all are safely and warmly packed in special travelling cages, with seed and water inside, and sent on full week's trial at my risk, either on receipt of cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and money fully refunded if every satisfaction not given. As a rule my birds will sing immediately they are unpacked, so that an extended approval time is not a necessity; but I always allow a full week, so that intending purchasers may have every opportunity of testing the bird in any way they like. Every Roller I sell is stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and as I am the only importer of this strain, you must purchase from me to ensure getting the king of all songsters. I hold a stock of over a thousand of these birds, and cordially invite inspection at any time. Dealers supplied with any quantity. Send trade card for wholesale list. (See British Bird column.)

KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES

Owing to failing health, am obliged to sell out practically the whole of my present stock (about 300) of high-class Yorkshires, including part breeders, comprising all varieties excepting whole greens. To induce a quick sale and give facilities to those who desire to purchase reliable birds for show or stock cheaply by comparison, will deduct 25 per cent., or 5/- in the £, on all orders sent out this month. My past 30 years' experience in breeding and keeping Yorkshire varieties only coupled with the fact that my name is familiar to all Yorkshire breeders and fanciers in this and other countries is sufficient guarantee of purity of breed without further advertisement or comment. Properly matched and unrelated breeding pairs personally selected, also single cocks and hens; all cold room bred, reared and kept; all three clear days' approval; cash or deposit; intending purchasers will best consult their future interest by sending postcard for season's list, with deductions, to Jonas Knight (author of "The Yorkshire Canary: Its Breeding and Management"), Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

Mitchell, Hon. Sec.

BONNYRIGG AND DISTRICT C.C.

Meeting held in Calderwood Arms, Dec. 10, when prize money was paid, and office bearers elected, no changes being made. The members present were astonished when Mr. A. Jardine, the president, asked to be relieved of his office; and in view of the fact that the duties are onerous, and entail a long walk at late hours, and that he had the satisfaction of having now pilotted the club into smooth water for a successor, his request was not unreasonable. But after an appeal by every member present, a sigh of relief went up when he agreed to remain, for, as Mr. Hamilton in his plea said, though we might get a president, we could never get one to equal Alex., his commanding presence and happy manner of meeting and overcoming anything likely to mar the harmony of affairs, made him the ideal of presidents. The next item was the christening of the Cumming cup by the winner, J. Hamilton; in which ceremony mine host, the donor, ably assisted; and it was declared well and truly christened. A programme of song was then gone through, and arrangements made for a lecture by Mr. Steel, of Dalkeith; subject, "British Birds. Free and Confined," the meeting is February 25, to which all who are interested are cordiall yinvited.—G. Harper, Sec.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Meeting at Headquarters, Dec. 6th, Mr. A. W. Curtis in the chair. Letters were read from Messrs. A. J. Morley and T. Parr (resigning membership), S. Gluckstein, J. Goodall, G. Crabb, L. Brooke, Mrs. Giddy, Miss F. Simmons, A. Wakefield, J. W. Jeffries, and J. Scudder, were nominated for membership. It was proposed and carried that Mr. Morley be asked to reconsider his decision. The chairman presented silver medals to the winners in recent washing competition, together with prize money generously given by Mr. F. J. Martin:- Champion: H. E. Tringham, and 1st prize, 5/-; Amateur: W. Page, and 2nd prize, 3/-; Novice: J. Lloyd, and 3rd prize, 2/-. Prize money and special prizes amounting to £35 15s. 10d., won at the recent annual show, was awarded, also presentation of cups, diplomas, and prize cards. Votes of thanks were accorded to Messrs. S. Gluckstein, H. W. Dickinson, J. Chard, J. Burton, A. W. Hart, F. Knight, and G. E. Weston for special services, and to Messrs. A. W. Curtis, F. Knight, J. Pooley, W. Sanders, H. Dickinson, T. Cox, and W. Page, as stewards of the above show. A message of condolence was directed to be conveyed to Miss Rose Shephard on her serious illness. The assistant caretaker was presented with a small purse, subscribed by the members present. A petition from the London Federation for presentation to the various railway companies, was placed upon the table for signatures. The chairman announced that the Yorkshire Canary defamed by the secretary, belonging to Messrs. Hawes Bros. (exhibited at the annual show), and which, on the information of Mr. P. Mason, was alleged not to have been bred by Messrs. Hawes Bros., but claimed at Wimbledon show, had been proved as bred by Hawes Bros. upon the production of the said claimed bird in the presence of two witnesses; also by Mr. Easterling, the late owner, in a sworn affidavit Mr. Tredinnick, auctioneer, 199, Piccadilly, W., has accepted the office of hon. auctioneer, and forwarded a donation to the funds. For this Mr. W. Shepherd was enthusiastically thanked as being instrumental in procuring his services. A judging competition in Crests and Crested breds then took place, with Mr. J. Tyson (in the unavoidable absence of Mr. R. L. Crisp) as final judge. Seven champions, eight amateurs, and twenty novices (including 5 ladies) took part, from 52 members present. Special prize for most entries, W. Shepherd. A vote of thanks was accorded Mr. J. Tyson for his services. A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the meeting.—V. Wynn, Hon. Sec.

SUNDERLAND C.B.S.

Mr. J. Farrer presided over a large attendance of members at the fortnightly meeting held Fawcett-street Cafe, December 10th. A long and interesting discussion took place on matters relating to our recent show. Mr. J. Machin moved that Mr. F. Ashmore (Ryhope Colliery) be admitted a member. I shall be glad to receive further nominations. J. Jeffrey, Hon. Sec.

NEWCASTLE C.B.S.

Monthly meeting, held December 1st, Mr. Robson in the chair. Owing to the election, there was quite a small turn-out of members. On account of an accident to his eye, Mr. Carr Foster was unable to give us his promised lecture on taxidermy, and Mr. Shepherd (who is always willing to help us) was asked to postpone his lecture on his experiences as a fancier until next meeting, when we hope there will be a better attendance, as those who heard the lecture at Gateshead all testify to its excellence. After allotting an honorarium to the secretary and show manager, there was a balance of £10, which it was decided to pay as prize money in members' classes at the same rate as last year, 5/- per class in the proportion 3, 2, and 1. This will be paid at the January meeting. Specials have been sent out, anyone overlooked, please communicate with me. T. C. Crawhall, Sec.

GLASGOW AND DISTRICT C.B.A

Committee meeting, held Duncan's Rooms, Dec. 8th. Chief business, drawing up rules to govern competition amongst members of Scottish clubs for the £10 10s. challenge shield, presented by Messrs. Taylor and Son (Glasgow). The president informed those present that he had also received offers of another silver cup, a silver rose bowl, and a silver goblet. We are in the unfortunate position of losing the services of our treasurer, Mr. A. Malcolmson, who is sailing early in January to seek his fortunes in New Zealand. This is a great loss to the Fancy in Scotland, as Andrew has been for years one of the leading exhibitors and judges north of the Tweed. Mr. R. Heggie, the popular secretary of Queen's Park and Dis., was unanimously elected to fill the vacancy. The committee are going about their task in a business-like manner, and are sparing no effort to make the show a success; and all that is needed is the support of Scottish and English exhibitors. The vital point at issue is: "Shall Glasgow continue in the future to hold two great open shows?" The final meeting for receiving and allocating specials was fixed for Dec. 20th. Full attendance requested.—FRED. BOWMAN, Sec.

LANCASHIRE & LIZARD F.A.

A ...ly well attended meeting was held, Old Boar's Head, Manchester, Dec. 10. A good evening's work was gone through, chiefly in connection with the club show. Amongst other things, it was decided to try and give a special to every class. Some very good specials have been received, including watch most points in show, by Mr. White; Mr. A. Hordern giving a silver cup, most points in Novice Lancashire classes. Mr. E. Fuller gives young Lancashires best novice Lancashire. Other specials, 10/- cash, Mr. T. White, for Chester's Brewery; Messrs. J. Vickers, 5/-; N. Stansfield, 5/-; E. Fuller, 5/-; W. Shaw (Hyde), 2/6; E. T. Turner, 2/6; J. Garner, 2/6; B. Salway, 1/-; W. Ridgard, 1/-; and J. Rukin, 2/6. Still room for more. Entries came in very well, 125 having been received up to Saturday, Dec. 10. Mr. A. Wellings, jun., sent a grand gold-centre medal, as a special, same to be awarded by him, before his father has judged the classes; he must be a veritable "Chip of the Old Block." There will be a grand turn-up of quality, and we offer a cordial welcome to all. The show (which will be held at the Wellington Hotel, Hyde, Dec. 17 and 18), gives every promise of being a success.—John Rukin, Hon. Sec.

LONDON AND PROVINCIAL O.S

Annual general meeting, held 8th Dec., at the new headquarters, The Leysian Hall, City Road. A fairly good number of members were present, considering the bad weather. Mr. Crabb (chairman) in presenting the balance sheet, said that the society was in a flourishing state. The amount received in subscriptions might have been more, but several subscriptions were outstanding. The secretary was writing each defaulter. He (Mr. Crabb) remarked on the extra expenditure on new challenge cups, the society having bought six new ones this year. Mr. Crabb then referred to the slight loss on the November show, and also to the profit on the Palace show, and said the members' thanks were due to Mr. Ramsden for this. The balance in hand was £108 (applause). Mr. Trower proposed that the balance sheet be adopted. Mr. Graves seconded. The chairman read out result of the voting papers:—President, G. Crabb, Esq.; auditors, Messrs. Mortlock and Matthes; chairman, Mr. J. W. Ramsden; vice-chairman, Mr. G. H. Couzens; secretary, Mr. C. W. Law; assistant secretary, Mr. J. Oldaker; committee, Messrs. Maxwell, Hodson, Pretty, Ramsden, Hodder, Lathleiff, Couzens, Day, Graves, Picard, Hazell, Boaler, Dring, Thurling, A. Cooper, Richardson, and R. Bamber. The following members were elected:—Messrs. Pickard, Puck, and Salter. Annual dinner at "Horse Shoe Hotel" was fixed for Jan. 19th. Full particulars in CAGE BIRDS later.—Chas. W. Law, Hon. Sec.

WEST BROMWICH & DIS. C.B.S.

Very good meeting, held December 6th, at headquarters, Dartmouth Hotel. The main business was to settle up late show accounts. We could only get a rough estimate as to how we had fared on account of ticket money being not all returned; but up to now, by figures that our show secretary (Mr. H. T. Collier) gave me, we had a loss of nearly £6, and of course we had to draw on the guarantee fund that the following gentlemen subscribed to, viz.: Messrs. G. A. Cooper £1, J. L. Beck 10s., Key, Jones, Collier, and De Maillet 5s. each, making a total of £2 10s. We are now about to start another year, so that we shall not be placed in the same position another year. Mr. A. Jones (Bearwood) proposed a good scheme, which was carried unanimously. It was respecting a guarantee fund for show accounts only, not to be touched on any account for other business. The fund is not a compulsory one; any member can subscribe to it during the year (say, 10/-, 5/-, or 2/6, or even less; it all helps), and they can pay by instalments, a contribution card being used for the purpose. We make an appeal to all members to support us, and put the Society on a sound footing. We should like to see more of our members at our meetings, for we only seem to have the same few workers at every meeting and they always have to put their hands into their pockets. We have had a good send off, the following members subscribing to the guarantee fund for 1911: Messrs. G. Key, J. L. Buck, A. Jones, H. T. Collier, G. A. Cooper, W. Andrews, F. H. Viles, S. A. Taylor, 10s. each; Messrs. E. Walker, A. W. Cowley, T. Duffield, and J. H. Jennings 5s. each, making a grand total of just £5. Now, rally round, members, and do your best.—J. H. JENNINGS, Gen. Sec

YORK C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held All Saints' Schoolroom, December 12th. After the usual business the following officers were elected for the ensuing year; Chairman, Mr. Zimmerman; secretary, Mr. H. Thompson, 6, Neville-terrace, York; treasurer, Mr. S. Cumpling. All members form the committee.—H. Thompson, Sec.

BRISTOL C.B.S.

Meeting held Dec. 7th, City Hotel, Wine-street, Mr. W. H. Manley presiding over an especially good attendance. There were two nominations for membership for the coming year. Messrs. H. W. Chubb (Bristol) and H. Grandfield (Portishead) were both elected. After the prize money had been paid the Chairman, in handing the silver challenge cup to the winners, Messrs. J. Tristem (Nor.), A. E. Lovell (Yorks.), and A. Carter (British), congratulated each. The cups were promptly filled and the health of all greeted. Discussion arose over the advisability of revising and adding to rules at our next meeting (annual), and one that met with favour was the reduction of subscriptions from 4s. to 2s. 6d. Will members who have any alterations or additions to make kindly forward same in good time to the secretary, as per Rule 17?—A. R. A. Carter, Hon. Sec.

READING AND DIST. C.B.S.

Meeting held December 7th. Five new members were elected, viz., Messrs. Holden, J. Gough, J. Cripps, J. Laurence, and C. May, making nine at the last two meetings. The secretary read the report and balance-sheet for the late show, which were considered very satisfactory in every respect. The chairman, with his usual happy smile, intimated that he wished the secretary to leave the room for a short while. On his return he was informed that as a slight token of appreciation of his services to the society, they had unanimously decided to present him with a small cheque. The secretary, in thanking them, referred to the great interest he took in the work and prosperity of the society, and said how greatly it helped him to have such an enthusiastic lot of members to cater for. Our good friend, Mr. G. H. Acton, announced that to start the New Year he would give a sovereign to the funds; for which he was heartily thanked. This being the final meeting of the year, no further business could be done. Our next meeting (January) being the annual one, we hope to have a record attendance. Any fancier wishing to join, please write me as soon as possible, at 25, The Grove.—W. H. Pyke, Sec.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Meeting held December 7th, Wentworth Cafe, Mr. A. Bradshaw (president) in chair. Election of officers as follows: President, Mr. T. Hemmings; vice-president, Mr. A. Bradshaw. Decided, that instead of having two joint secretaries, we have a secretary and an assistant-secretary. Mr. A. Hobson was elected secretary and Mr. J. Woolhouse assistant-secretary. Treasurer, Mr. Oxley; committee, Messrs. Walsh, Bingham, Cowley, Crookes, Furniss, Tow, Kelley, Champion, Drabble, Fletcher, Lindsay, and Boothe; auditors, Messrs. J. G. Cowley and J. Thorpe. After some correspondence from the Cage Bird Union had been dealt with, it was decided to defer the question as to whether we keep in the Union till after the annual meeting of the Union; also that all our members be post-carded re the C.B.U. for the meeting. Also, we suggest to C.B.U. that Rule 22 be deleted. The stewards for the Christmas show are: Messrs. Drabble and Fletcher. The secretaries will sit on Dec. 21st from 8 to 9 p.m. at the Wentworth Cafe to receive entries. Additions and alterations to rules were dealt with. Rule 4: Members must be financially clear at all shows; Rule 6: That the officials of the society be elected by ballot annually; Rule 10: That there be not less than five birds in a class; if there be not two birds in a class they must be put in with the nearest of their kind, and then if the class does not fill, they must go in the any other variety class; Rule 12: That a novice shall win three 1st in members 'classes, etc., instead of two. Messrs. Tomlinson and Jinks gave specials for the Christmas Show. The two unclaimed gift bird numbers at our open show are 885 and 1,008. The January meeting is a show of British birds and Yorkshire pairs.—J. Woolhouse, Assist.-Sec.

Notes from Erin.

LARNE C.B.A. held their annual show December 8 and 9, and it proved very successful. There was much excitement and uneasiness felt by many of the Southern fanciers about the fate of their birds when they read an account of the election in Belfast. It was surmised by some that probably the birds would meet with some mishap at the hands of the "rowdies" when the cases were being conveyed from the G.N.R. to Co. Down terminus; but their fears were soon set aside when they received the catalogues the following morning, and all felt happy and well satisfied when the birds arrived home safely on Saturday. At this show there were many reverses. Birds which won specials and first prizes galore at other fixtures stood down, and in some cases cardless, while others which were not expected to be in the running came out with flying colours, thus causing some little disappointment—to some, of course. However, such is luck. This is the pleasure of exhibiting, and in the Irish Fancy such matters, I must say, are accepted in true sportsmanlike fashion. Come up smiling every time, hoping to do better at next show.

THE competition for the Y.C.B.S.' challenge cups is becoming very keen. At present I have heard a rumour that last week's show was the last to have secured the patronage of the Specialist Club, but up to time of writing I have been unable to obtain definite information. If such be true, then the challenge cup (valued at £10 10s.) goes to a keen and highly respected Dundalk fancier, and I can say with confidence, feeling certain that my opinion will be upheld throughout the Irish Fancy, that the gentleman referred to is one of our best fanciers in every sense of the word, and no doubt his success will be received as an out and out popular win. Certainly the fight between this fancier and another true fancier from the West of Ireland has been followed with much interest, and at present the fight, if ended, has been won with only about 1 point. At present owing to my not being in a position to state the winner, I do not wish to mention any name. Next week I hope to be in a position to give the result of this contest.

WE HAVE still another show granting only four classes for champion Yorkshire. This is rather disappointing to Yorkshire fanciers, and many of our well-known Yorkshire men have made up their minds not to support a show which declines to give them a fair classification. Surely show committee's could give at least six open classes and four novice classes in their schedules, and could easily cancel and class which did not fill. This, I believe, will satisfy our fanciers, and, I feel sure, bring along the necessary support to make a show a success. If 10 classes for Norwich are expected to fill, will the same classification for Yorkshires not fill? Which is the most popular variety? To answer this question, all we have to do is to refer to the catalogues of any one show which has granted the Yorkshire men a fair hunt, and let number of entries decide.

IT is rumoured and hoped that there will be two shows held by different clubs in Dublin this season yet. I am sure we hope such may be the case, and there is no reason why both should not be a huge success.

No. 468.
Handy Sliding Cage-bottom.
Sent by Mr. A. M. Rees, 36, Silveter, Road, East Dulwich, London, S.E.

I enclose sketch of a stock cage. Some think drawers better than turnrail. Why not then have a sliding bottom as well as a drawer? There would then be no need to disturb the birds by scraping dirt from behind the drawer. Of course, the same idea would do for breeding cages. It is quite easy for a handy man to make. The cage illustrated is 11ins. long, 11ins. wide, and 13ins. high. You just make a cage in the ordinary way, only leave the bottom out. Turn cage over and glue or nail a strip of wood along the bottom of each side of cage wide enough to overlap each about a ¼in. (as shown in Fig. 1). Then cut the bottom about 14ins. long. Make two flanges (as shown Fig. 2), 11ins. long (which is easy to do with a saw alone, smoothing with glass paper); place these on sides of cage with bottom under (as in Fig. 3). Then mark off where to nail on. Don't have it too tight, and see that it slides easy before fixing. Nail a strip across the front, and the drawer is finished. It is just the usual one for sliding in on the inner strips. To clean, take out drawer, clean and replace; slide out the bottom, clean, and replace. A loose cage-front is not necessary, as the bottom is all open when both drawer and bottom are removed No more dirty cages or red mites.—A. M. REES

No. 469.
Self-filling Seed Hopper.
Sent by Mr. E. G. W. Cunnington, "Fairleigh," Clayton Avenue, Ealing Road, Wembley.

I made this novel seed hopper some time ago, and it has given every satisfaction. It has two distinct advantages over the usual seed-hopper of this type. Instantly the bird steps on the perch the lid of the feeding chamber is automatically raised, and the bird can easily come forth and have a good feed. This automatic lid prevents the dust and grit, etc., getting mixed with the seed, and is a very great advantage with a self-filling hopper. It works by a cord over a pulley at each end, as shown in the illustration. One end of each cord is fastened to the lid of the feeding chamber and the other end to the perch. The two cross-bars are pivoted to the ends of the hopper, and should have a small weight fixed to the back end of each, so as to close the lid when the bird flies off the perch. A big drawback with the old style of hopper is that when the bird pushes his head through a hole to get to the seed he usually cracks and eats it with his head inside the hopper, dropping the husk inside instead of outside, and covering up the uneaten seeds, so that other birds are unable to get at them. With the hopper here shown this trouble is obviated. The dimensions of the hopper are: 7ins. high, 5ins. wide, and 1¾ins. deep, and if the top top portion of the front is of glass you can see at a glance when the hopper requires refilling, which is done through the hinged top that slopes to the back. —E. G. W. CUNNINGTON.

ROUND THE SHOWS.

KILSYTH.

Annual Show, held Dec. 10th, Drill Hall. The show was a great success. This is the first show held without the pigeons, which muddled of the full use of the large hall for the cage birds. The hall is well lighted, and nicely heated, it is one of the best for a cage bird show. The entries came up splendidly, many thanks to the energetic secretary, Mr. A. D. Duncan, who makes one of the best secretaries we have met. He is most obliging in every respect. The president, Mr. Irvine, and the treasurer, Mr. Brown, also carried out their duties well, supported by a right good working committee, in Messrs. McAulay, McGreechen, Nish, Russell, Roberts, Shillinglaw, and Hardie. Messrs. McLay, Hamilton, Bennet, McQuiston, McGillivray, Bishop, and Bell, all turned out strong teams, and carried off a good share of the prizes. We thought the Scottish British Bird and M.C. members might have turned out much better at a show like this. The judges were, for Nor., Mr. Campbell; for Borders, Mr. Haddow; and for Brit., etc., Mr. Goodfellow. They all got through in good time, and gave every satisfaction. CAGE BIRDS posters came in for much attention.

NON-FED (11): 1, Campbell, very large, nice shade of green, steady; 2, McQuiston, lovely yell., in grand condition; 3, Paterson, nice col., well staged; 4, McGiven; 5, Bishop; 6, Hutcheson. LINNET (13): 1, spl, 3, McQuiston, leader right good one, very large, grand head and markings, solid col., shining like a polished piece of Spanish mahogany; 3rd, another grand one, not quite so large but as good in col. and shape, a pair of clinkers; 2, Johnstone, fine tone of col., good head, nicely pencilled, steady as a rock; 4, Baith; 5, 6, McGillivray Bros., smaller, beaten to-day; a very strong class. TWITE, ETC. (15): An exceptionally hot class; 1, sp, McQuiston, grand Twite, lovely head and breast, nice level col. and markings, worth its place; 2, 5, Bell, about the best Mealy Redpoll on the show bench, enormous head and bib, big round breast, and well pencilled, regular slasher; 3, 6, Bishop, another nice Twite, not quite so good in col. and size, but in grand trim; 4, Small. LESSER POLL (12): 1, McGillivray Bros., gem for col. and lacing, good one all through; 2, Lambie, fine shape, good head and bib, steady; 3, Bell, similar to winner, presses hard, little to draw between these three; 4, Allan; 5, Macaulay; 6, Graham. SISKIN (4): 1, McLean and Nicoll, lovely coloured one, rare eye lacing, fails just a little in cap only; 2, McGregor and Boyd, larger, but not so good in col., grand cap and bib; 3, Duncan, nice head and breast, good bars; 4, Bibby. BUNTING (12): 1, sp, McGillivray Bros., nice size, rich col. and head markings, perfectly steady, well polished, hard to beat; 2, Raine, large Snow, good one but unsteady a bit; 3, McQuiston, well known Corn, not looking quite so perky; 4, Duncan; 5, Parker; 6, Martin, another strong class. A.O.S. HARDBILL (4): 1, Arnott, nice col. Bramble, good all through, wins well; 2, Blair, large Chaffinch, well staged; 3, Baird, Chaffinch, smaller, but as good col.; 4, Hally. SOFTBILL, LARGE (5): 1, spl, 5, Baird, Missel Thrush, and a topper, wins with something in hand; 2, Miller and Eadie, beautiful Blackie, rare red bill; 3, Wands, very fine Song Thrush, well spangled, nice ground col., would look much better in light green cage; 4, Johnston. HEN FINCH (10): 1, McWatt, good Bullie, nice cap, in grand condition; 2, Raine, lovely col. Bramble, well staged; 3, Martin, Greenie; 4, 6, Duncan. CL., ETC., MULE (4): 1, spl, McNicol, about the best we have this season, big six-pointed yell.; 2, Bell, even buff, shown in grand condition; 3, Whitelaw, buff, smaller. VARIEG. ETC. DARK (8): 1, Malcolmson, "Prince Charlie," well known champion; 2, McQuiston, Dark Greenie Can., a slasher, hard lines to meet "Charlie"; 3, Shields, good dark Siskin Can.; 4, Bell; 5, Gorrie; 6, Parker. HYB. (4): 1, Bell, Goldie Bullie, good col. and condition, wins well; 2, McQuiston, Redpoll-Goldie, nice one all over; 3, Mills, Goldie-Bullie, fails only in col. a bit; 4, Lawson. FOR, SMALL (5): 1, sp, Welsh, grand Whydah, well staged; 2, Irvine, Green Cardinal, close up, a good one; 3, Carrick, grand, well staged, pair Zebras; 4th, good Goldie; 5, Henderson. SELL. (10): 1, Irvine; 2, McQuiston; 3, Bell; 4, McGillivray Bros.; 5, Martin; 6, Campbell.

NANTYMOEL.

Nantymoel and Dist. F. and F.S. first annual show, held Dec. 14, Workmen's Hall. Our section was well attended to by a capable band of stewards —Messrs. E. Morris, Barnes, D. Lewis, E. Davies, and T. Evans—who had everything well in hand and birds staged ready for judging in good time. The sec., Mr. M. Griffiths, is a very courteous and capable official. Mr. E. J. Davies (Cardiff) judged.

The Critique.

CREST OR C.B. (4): 1, 3, withheld; 2, vhc, he, Allen, leader, good Crest, wonderful feather, in grand fettle, followed by nice-sized variegated Crest in grand condition, better Crest, but not quite the size of winner; c, Muscott. NOR. CK. (11): 1, no name, variegated, yell., good size and shape, nice colour; 2, Edwards, grizzle mkd. yell., good colour, lovely shape, Llanelly winner, loses just a trifle in width of skull, close up; 3, Davies, variegated buff, nice type, very cobby, in good trim; vhc, c, W. Davies; hc, Morris and Barnes. HEN (5): 1, 3, withheld; 2, Hughes, cl. yell., good type and col.; vhc, E. Thomas, good buff; hc, W. Thomas; c, Morris and Barnes. YORKS CK. (4): 1, 3, withheld; 2, Powell, yell., good length, nice quality, vhc, Hughes, buff, nice type, lovely condition; hc, Catill, another buff, rather frilled, otherwise very good; c, Morris and Barnes. HEN (Cancelled). MULE (6): 2, 3, Edwards, former Greenie-Bullie, grand bird, just a trifle loose in feather, nice one, otherwise, latter well-known, head and wing mkd. yell. Goldie can, fine size and shape; vhc, hc, c, Morris and Barnes; No. 4, good Goldie-Bullie, arrived just too late to be judged. GOLDFINCH (8): 1, Dallamore, nice shape, good bars, buttons and tans; 3, Thomas, larger, good blaze, bars and buttons, loses only in tans; vhc, Edwards, grand Finch, nice square blaze, tans, bars and buttons, some thought might have won; hc, c, F. Nicholas. A.O.S. BRIT. OR FOR. (9): 1, hc, Davies, King Parrot, in lovely condition, wins; 3, Thorne, orange Tanager, in beautiful form; vhc, Edwards, good, well fed yellow Bunting, lovely variegations; c, Dallimore. SELL. 15s. CAMBRIDGESHIRE O.S.

Cambridgeshire O.S. show held Dec. 14th and 15th, Corn Exchange. Notwithstanding the glut of shows, and the "terrors of electioneering," the Society put on a bold front, and though the fixture we were assured by Mr. Howlett (the efficient copartner with Mr. G. F. Irwin in the secretariat) at the advertised time for closing of entries bade fair to be a "perfect frost," persistent whipping-up by these two gentlemen placed them in a more cheerful position. A little revision of the prize money and easing of the conditions, we feel sure, would another year bring them a better entry. The muster was, however, a good one, and the quality in most classes was of a high average, especially in the class for Crests and Crestbreds: one of the latter variety, a grand-headed, thickly thatched Crestbred, winning cup for best Canary. The breeder, Mr. Harrison, is to be congratulated. A grand team of British were staged by Mr. B. Rolf; his beautiful Snow Bunting was just beaten for the British Bird cup by a lovely Bullfinch, shown by Mr. A. T. Jope. The committee worked like Trojans. The Assistant Secretary (Mr. T. W. Hawkins) was untiring in his efforts to help his leaders, and the stewards fulfilled their task with promptitude and efficiency. The hall is splendidly lighted, and free from draughtiness. The only grumble we feel impelled to indulge in is that the cage birds were staged a little too high up to be seen comfortably. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged, and his awards were well received.

The Critique.

OPEN CLASSES—NOR. YELL. (5): 1, spl, Williams, rare type, good head, level in col., strong neck, fine texture of feather; 2, 3, vhc, Brooks, leader hot col, silky feather, just lacks substance of leader; 3rd lovely soft feathered bird, falling only a little in head to body; hc, Thompson. CREST OR C.-B. (5): 1, cup, spl, hc, Harrison, winner nearly green C.-B., fine lashing-out of dense head feather, skull wide at entrance, nicely cushioned, feather wide, good one; 2, 3, Spiller's spl, vhc, Brooks, former good variegated. C.-B., latter very fair variegated. Crest yell. YORKS, BUFF (7), good class: 1, spl, vhc, Mrs. Ballard, winner strapping fine bird, full of fire, showing plenty of thigh, good mover, nice back and wing carriage; 2, Langley, very similar, not quite so correct in position; 3, Autou Bros., smart, good quality, stands up well; hc, c, Mole. A.V., 1910 (7): 1, 3, hc, Brooks, leader very promising, veiny feathered, nicely formed, el. body, dark crest, 3rd sparkling fine Dutch Frill, grand size; 2, Mole, well positioned, lovely quality yell. Yorks; vhc, Harrison; c, Mason. GOLDIE (10), a good lot: 1, Rolf, like glass, steady, rich flush face, wide and full, nice bars, buttons, and chestnut; 2, Jupe, richest col. on face of any, but handicapped by a little slackness of body feather; 3, Brooks, another beautiful Finch; it was a teaser to separate these three: vhc, Williams; hc, Watson; c, Harris; several Finches fit to win at most shows out of cards. BULLIES (5): 1, Brit. bird cup and spl., Jupe, a gem, not a feather away and col. A1; 2, Rouse, stack as a mole, grand shape, fails just a trifle in richness of col. to winner, will take some pegging back; 3, Hays, rich col.; vhc, Watson; hc, Richell. LINNET (6): 1, Watson, chubby, nicely mkd, good col, polish, and steadiness; 2, Harris, another good one, close on winner; 3, Williams, neat, not quite so good in size; vhc, Mays; hc, Gifford; c, Hearn. SELL. (15s.) (8): 1, Harrold; 2, Mole; 3, Harrison; vhc, Ingram; hc, Williams; c, Allen; spl, Ridgeon. LOCAL CLASSES—NOR. (5): 1, spl, Williams, a very level coloured, beautiful feathered yell., good head; 2, Allen, buff, chubby, close in feather, not quite so neat in head; 3, Wallman, dark tailed buff, just lacks undercolour and bloom of leaders; vhc, hc, Wallman. LIN., ETC. (8): 1, Heam, topping Linnet, like box, grand col. and marking, could have won in the open; 2, spl, Roff, rich col. Twite; 3, no name, natty little Redpoll; vhc, Watson; hc, Bye; c, Edwards. GOLDIE, ETC. (7): 1, spl, 2, Watson, both Goldies, little to choose between them; 3, Roff, smart Bullie; vhc, Edwards; hc, Roff; c, Bye. GREENIE, ETC. (6): 1, spl, 3, Roff, leader beautifully sheened Chaffinch, steady, glossy, and vivasious, 3rd Greenie, grand size, nice nat. col, just a trifle slack in feather; 2, Williams, greenie, rich col., steady, good shape, tight in feather; vhc, Manning; hc, Hearn; c, Doggett. A.O.S. BRIT. (9), difficult lot to judge: 1, 2 spls., vhc, hc, Roff, leader Snow Bunting, very tame, grand feather and size, a beauty; 2, Bainbridge, lovely spotted, rich col., steady Song Thrush; 3, Hawes, sweetly pretty Lesser Whitethroat, well shown; vhc, Smith; c, Redfern. SELL. (10s.) (11): 1, 3, Roff; 2, Allan; vhc, Hanold; hc, Langley; c, Westrope.

DERBY C.B.S.

Annual show held December 10, Derwent Hotel. A record entry of 200 birds was obtained, this reflecting great credit on the members. The points' cup was won by Mr. J. Pegg, who, having now won it three times, keeps it as his own property. Cup for best young Norwich was won by Mr. J. Watts; cup for best yellow Crest, Mr. G. Colledge. The birds were grandly staged, and the arrangements for the show were admirably carried out by a capital staff of workers, led by Mr. W. Stevens, the sec., to whom much credit is due for his successful management. Mr. J. H. Roe judged.

RUNCORN C.B.S.

Show held December 10, St. John's School Room, Victoria Road. A very nice entry of 120 birds faced Mr. J. Hampson, the judge. It was a good all-round show. Yorkshires were strong, both in quality and quantity. Norwich were of good quality, and little, if any, behind the Yorkies. Mules, etc., made a good class, and the Britishers were very nice. Dr. Cullen is president, Mr. W. H. Cawley chairman, Mr. E. Peck treasurer, and Mr. T. P. Baxter secretary. The business was got through in good style, and the show went off altogether very satisfactorily.

STOCKPORT B.F.A.

Fifth annual members' show held Boars Head Hotel, Dec. 1st and 2nd. Entries numbered 212, which we consider very good. Norwich were the feature of the show, many birds that had won premier honours at various open shows being on view. The birds were comfortably staged in the large room and seen to the best advantage. Mr. Douglas (Altrincham) attended on behalf of the Cage Bird Union. Mr. H. W. Battye judged. Mr. J. Harrison (Denton) won special for best Yorks.; Mr. S. Cook that for best Nor. The president (Mr. J. E. Davies) offered a timepiece for best bird purchased or bred; this was won by Mr. Hills, Mr. Allsop being runner-up, gaining Mr. McKail's special. Mr. J. E. Davies gave the following specials for most points, won as follows:—Clock, Mr. F. A. Hargreaves; cruet, Mr. W. Snape; and case of carvers, Mr. W. T. Hill—in the champions; barometer, Mr. T. Twitterings.

I have removed from Westgate, Eccleshill, to 8, Moorside Road, Eccleshill, writes Mr. W. Nettleton.

I have changed my address from Parrott Street, writes Mr. B. Wharton, to 18, Britton Street, Long Leigh.

The clear yellow hens class of the Liverpool C.B.A. show should read: 1st Nimmo, 2nd R. Algie.—F. E. Hawkes, sec.

Ebbw Vale show report in the Norwich yellow should read: first and special and second, Morris.—W. Morris (Ebbw Vale).

From Mr. H. Truelove, of Huddersfield, we have received the season's greetings on cards very neatly hand-painted with birds.

Class 53, Greenfinches, in Leicester C.B.S. report, should read, Mr. Lawrence was 3rd, Mr. Coffey he, writes Mr. J. A. Tyler, the Sec.

Our show has been a complete success, there being 505 entries in all sections, writes Mr. F. Rayner, the sec. of Aylesbury Show.

Messrs. Ford and Son have dissolved partnership and will be showing separately in the future, write Messrs. J. W. and J. H. Ford (Swansea).

Mr. J. Barber asks us to state that he has changed his address from No. 46 to No. 10, Apedale Road, but he omits to state the name of the town.

Chichester Show gives my name as Horner; it should read Homer.—Mr. E. Homer (Bognor, Sussex). I have taken Cage Birds almost from the beginning.

In the review of the schedule of Elgin Show published in our last issue, the date of the show was, by a printer's error, given as Dec. 12; the correct date is Dec. 21.

Will secretaries please note that we have fixed our next annual show for our usual dates, viz., Nov. 1st and 2nd, writes Mr. A. S. Treasure, Hon. Sec. of the Cheltenham C.B.S.

Our Members' Old Bird Show to be held in January 14th, 1911, will be judged by Messrs. Mundell and Thornton, writes Mr. Geo. Green, Sec. of the Green Canary Association.

Mr. J. Bailey (Sandy Lane) will judge our next members' show on Dec. 26th, held in the Band Room, Cleckheaton, birds to be staged at 11 o'clock, writes Mr. J. Lewis, Secretary of the Spen Valley C.B.S.

We have before had occasion to speak of the merits of the spring net traps advertised by Mr. W. Cornwall (Peterborough), who now writes that he is advertising these traps in exchange for Canaries.

All prize money has been paid in connection with Blackwood Show except two, viz., Messrs. Park and Buchan, and as I have not their addresses, will they please send them to me, writes Mr. James Hamilton, Kirkmuirhill, the Sec.

All birds sent to our show were in the hands of the railway companies by 7 o'clock and several long distance birds early in the afternoon in order that they might reach home same night.—J. F. Thackray, Hon. Sec. of Halifax show.

Will the members of the Crested Canary Club kindly note that our show of Cage Birds is on January 4th, and not January 20th, 21st, as stated in their rule books, writes Mr. George Jeffery, Show Manager of the Southall and Dis. F.S.

Schedules of our show will be ready in a few days, and as soon as they are I will forward a copy to exhibitors. Owing to elections we had to postpone our show.—A. T. Gollgher, sec. of the City of Derry P. and C.B.S.

We have received 700 entries for our show on December 16 and 17, writes Mr. J. Walsh, sec. of the Blackburn and Dis. C.B.S. Many well-known champions will be on view. All prize money will be paid to exhibitors visiting our show.

We have secured a separate hall, highly suitable, for the cage bird section of our show on December 31, writes Mr. J. Watson, the cage bird sec. of the Wishaw show. There was some grumbling at the last show regarding space allowed for this section.

I cannot but congratulate you on the plate sent out with December 3rd issue, entitled "Romeo and Juliet." It was simply exquisite, quite one of the best of the many grand ones with which you have favoured us.—Fred Hammond (Bradford).

Allow me to congratulate the management of Larne Show on the way I received back my exhibits; the birds looked fit for another contest. Also my best thanks to Cage Birds for the grand coloured picture of "Polly." I am getting it framed.—C. A. O'Reilly (Dublin).

I have posted about 2,000 schedules, will any fancier overlooked kindly apply to me, writes Mr. A. W. Watson, Sec. of the Scottish National, at 58, Colinton Road, Edinburgh. Please enter early. Mr. Hampton has been appointed in place of Mr. J. Ferguson, who has withdrawn owing to ill health.

Should anyone have been omitted in the payment of prize money, please apply at once to the Treasurer, Mr. F. E. Rudkin, Jobs Hill, Crook, as he pays all money out this year, and not the Secretaries, writes Mr. T. Brown, joint Sec. of the Crook Original C.B.S.

I notice you state that a cup was given by the Bush Hill Park Utility and Exhibition F.S. for the best Cage Bird, but our cup was given for the best Pigeon in show and was won by Mr. Greenland, writes Mr. H. G. Mercer, Hon. Sec.

I have taken in Cage Birds now for some time, and must say there is no other paper on Birds to come up to it, by long chalks. Both my sister and I derive much instruction and pleasure by perusing its most interesting columns. The last coloured plate was truly a work of art.—Bernard G. Write (East Sheen).

Mr. A. Hobson, 66, Langsett Avenue, Wadsley, Sheffield, has been elected secretary of the Sheffield C.B.S., and Mr. J. Woolhouse, 111, Oakland Road, Hillsborough, Sheffield, assist. sec., writes Mr. J. Woolhouse. Also all correspondence in future should be sent to Mr. Hobson. Kindly accept our thanks for the splendid report you gave us of our show.

Seeing the controversy that has been going on between Mr. Allen and Mr. Soloman, writes Mr. W. Dobson, hon. sec., Castleford Linnet S.S., we should esteem it a great favour if they come to any terms about a match, if you would say that we will lend them our room any time they want to sing, because we think it would further the Fancy at Castleford.

Whitburn report compliments our committee upon their hard work (which they do with a will), but you say they were headed by the President, ex Baillie Lambie. Now, sir, I was judging at Cowdenbeath on that date, so the vice-president, Mr. W. Livingstone, a painstaking, sober fancier, was at the head of affairs. I am senior Baillie of our town—not ex-Baillie. Your good attention to this will much oblige.—Robert Lambie (Cowdenheath).

Mr. A. Wellings (Prescot) writes that he will judge the Lancashire and Lizard show at Hyde on December 17, and the Douglas (Isle of Man) show on January 2. "I may say," he continues, "that the show on December 17 will mark the finish of judging for a period of 20 years; it is 20 years come New Year's Day since I judged my first show. I hope I shall be able to continue for a long while to come." (We are sure our readers will echo Mr. Welling's wish.—Ed.)

A special meeting of the Ilford F. and F.S. and the Stratford and East London F.A. will be held at the White Horse Hotel, Ilford, at 8 sharp on Dec. 20, when the cups and specials won at the annual show will be presented and prize money paid. (Will those members who promised specials kindly let the Sec. have them as soon as possible, or bring same to meeting?) Members of both societies are requested to attend. Any ticket monies not yet paid up should also be settled for to enable us to present the show balance sheet at this meeting.—J. H. Priestman, Hon. Sec. Combined Show.

— IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT TO OUR ADVERTISERS. —

Xmas Holidays.

SPECIAL OFFER to senders of Undisplayed SMALL PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS. Two Insertions for Price and a Half.

Owing to the Xmas Holidays, advertisements for the issue dated DEC. 31 must close on Saturday, Dec. 24th, and in order to save both our advertisers and ourselves a deal of time and trouble we will accept advertisements for our next two issues, dated Dec. 24th and Dec. 31st, for the price of one and a half insertions, provided the wording remains exactly the same. Write plainly on your order "Two Week's Special Offer," and enclose the fee for the two insertions at the price of one and a half. REMEMBER: Do this next week.

No. 13 of our Nutshells is now on sale—an admirable little brochure comprehensive and practical, written by Mr. H. J. Fulljames, on that pleasing little Britisher "The Chaffinch." Order from your agent, price twopence, or 154, Fleet Street, London, price twopence halfpenny, post free.

Through my time being so short, I have sold the bulk of my stock of Norwich to that well-known breeder and exhibitor, Mr. W. M. Turner, of Hightown, Manchester. I have had so many replies from my advertisement that it has been impossible for me to answer those who did not send a stamp. So will they kindly accept this explanation?—W. E. Espley (Manchester).

All prize money won at our show on Nov. 29 and 30 has been posted to winners to-day, also specials sent on, writes Mr. D. J. Rees, Secretary of the Hounslow and Dis. F.S. We thank all exhibitors for their kind support and hope to have a really good show of cage birds next year. We are badly in want of cage bird members. Will any cage bird fancier in this district drop me a card and we will see what can be done to arouse interest in the fancy.

I wish to thank your reporter for his report of our show, which was very fair in my estimation. I also wish to thank the gentlemen who wrote me such nice letters of thanks for receiving their birds home in such splendid condition, and also for prompt payment of prize money and specials won. If secretaries only had a few more letters like these, it would give more heart for them to work. I wish your valuable paper, Cage Birds, every success.—Jas. Irlam, sec., Sale and Dis. Open C.B.S.

A large concourse of relatives and private and trade friends assembled at Manor Park Cemetery on Monday last on the occasion of the funeral of the late Mr. George Brown, of Sclater Street, Bethnal Green, whose demise, after a short illness, was notified in our last issue. A landau was laden with the handsome floral tributes sent by his brokenhearted wife and children, sister and brothers, and other relatives of London and Norwich and other friends. For these and other tributes of sympathy Mrs. G. Brown wishes through our columns to return her sincere thanks.

Kindly allow me to draw the attention of your readers to Ruthin show, held December 22, which is a very old fixture, and it was feared that last year owing to lack of support we should have to give it up. We, however, decided to have a last try, and this year make it an open show, and we are offering good prizes and specials for each class, but up to time of writing entries do not average 1½ per class. I do hope your readers will kindly give us support, and thus keep up an old fixture and encourage us to continue. I will accept entries if posted on Saturday (December 17).—H. S. Williams, sec.

XMAS PRESENTS.

Why not send one of our framed plates of Birds (Canaries, British, Hybrids, or Foreign) as a Christmas Gift? For 2/6 we will despatch carriage paid to any address in the U.K. any of our Coloured Plates in a suitable frame. Or select your friends one of our practical books upon birds—a gift that will please. Read the list on the back page.—The Manager, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London.

I have received the framed plate (from the Sec. of Brighton Show) given by you as special for best Greenfinch. I must say that I was very much surprised to get such a charming picture, and I thank you very much for same I wish Cage Birds the success it deserves.—E. J. Hill (Eastbourne).

I have been obliged to hold over my advertisement out of the Hardbill column, writes Mr. E. E. Pass (Hucknall Torkard), as I have been receiving more orders for our 1s. cages for British birds than I could supply in a reasonable time, and I do not like keeping orders unexecuted too long. If you would be kind enough to mention this it would explain to customers waiting.

I feel I must give you a word of praise for the benefit I derive from Cage Birds. I have only been in the practical part of breeding Canaries for two seasons, but from the various hints and instructions obtained by reading Cage Birds and Our Canaries, I have got so far as to be able to win three 1sts, 1 special, and a commended with four entries at Cromer show held last week. Then, again, with advertisements, every time I have advertised I have received replies from all parts, which is positive proof of the wide circulation enjoyed by you. Good luck to you.—Arthur J. Dazeley (Aylsham).

Fourth and Last Appeal.

Will all secretaries of Cage Bird Societies who have sheets in hand in connection with the "Watch Competition" of the Accrington and District C.B.S. please note that the competition will be finally closed on Saturday, Dec. 24th, 1910, and that all names on sheets outstanding will not be eligible for competition, therefore, will they please return the sheets without any further delay.—A. Taylor, Hon. Sec.

Gift of British Birds to Keighley

Mr. John Miller, a well-known Keighley gentleman, who was for a long period a foreman at North Brook Loom Works, has presented to the Keighley Natural History Museum, Victoria Park, a valuable collection of British and Canadian birds. Most of the specimens have been shot and stuffed by Mr. Miller himself, the Canadian birds falling to his gun during his residence in the Dominion as a young man. Mr. Miller has been an ardent naturalist all his life, and included in the 17 cases which he has just given to the museum are a number of rare and interesting specimens. The collection is now on view. A large case of birds has also been given by Mr. James Wilkinson, Halifax.

At Birmingham.

All prize monies won at Birmingham show have been paid to non-members, writes Mr. J. H. De Maillet, the hon. sec., but owing to the heavy financial loss on the show the members are waiting for their prize monies until all other expenses have been met first. You will remember publishing in issue of 2nd inst. your sympathy with our worthy chairman in the sad loss of his wife, and I very much regret to inform you that exactly a week later he was stricken down with appendicitis, and now lies in the General Hospital here, and not out of danger yet. Everyone in the Midlands who knows him will endorse my remarks when I say he has always been a true fancier and sportsman, ever ready to help the beginners. I may add that although his wife was ill he came to a meeting and gave a washing exhibition, he also asked for his show entries to go in for the good of the Society, although the funeral took place on the first day of our show. I am sure all fanciers will join with me in wishing him a speedy return to health, and that the Great Creator will comfort his poor children in their heavy grief and sorrow.

OUR PAINTING - - COMPETITION.

A Prize for Artistic Readers.

Following our usual custom at Christmastide, our Frontispiece this week is designed to be coloured. We offer a cash prize of one guinea for the best attempt at colouring the same which reaches us from one of our readers on or before Thursday, January 5th, next.

The medium to be employed (oil, water-colour, or crayon) is left to the discretion of the competitor. The finished attempt should be packed flat, or rolled in a tube, wherever possible, and have the sender's name and address written on the back.

The whole of the front page must be coloured, not merely the frontispiece alone.

In this competition entries are received only on the understanding that the Editor's decision shall be accepted as final.

When a Mule Is Not a Mule.

Overheard at Birkenhead show. Boy and his father get to the Mule and Hybrid classes, and the father explains the different parentages. Boy: "Well, where do the asses come in?"

The N.P.C.

Will you be good enough to draw the attention of members to the meeting to be held on Saturday afternoon next, the 17th inst., at 3.30, at Blackburn show, and to request that as many as possible attend? writes Mr. Jno. Hopkins, hon. sec., Norwich Plainhead Club.

Liverpool to Scottish National.

A trip to the Scottish National show is being arranged for Saturday night, December 31, returning from Edinboro' on Monday night. Any fancier desirous of joining can obtain all information from me, writes Mr. Geo. Green, sec., G.C.A., 36, Lord Nelson Street, Liverpool.

Woodside Drawing Competition.

The school-children's drawing competition promoted at the recent Woodside O.S. show, was very successful, writes Mr. A. Thomson, the hon. sec., though the pupils at Woodside were a bit behind those of the Kittybrewster School, and we had to make a competition for each school, or the latter would have annexed all the prizes. I enclose for your inspection the winning drawings of the Kittybrewster School, done by Masters Eric Gordon, Herbert Wooling, Eric J. Bell, J. Davidson, and Reuben Fraser. (These drawings are really very good.—Ed.)

Border Fancy C.C.

Annual general meeting of the Border Fancy Canary Club will be held in Scottish National Show Rooms, Corn Exchange, Grassmarket Edinburgh, on January 2nd, 1911, at 11.30 a.m. prompt. The following is business to be transacted: Minutes of previous meeting; balance sheet for 1910; election of President, Secretary, Treasurer, and Committee. Motions: "That no Society be granted club patronage unless they have club member as judge"; "That birds with rings on their legs do not be allowed to compete at any show where they have club medal"; "That judges be instructed not to put in birds over standard size"; "That B.F.C.C. adopt the Green Canary Association's standard of points for colour and markings"; "That the same standard of points stand for Cinnamons." A motion regarding perches in show cages and one regarding cage labels on show cages.—M. Jamieson, Hon. Sec., 3, Green Terrace, Hawick, N.B.

Can It Be True?

The London "Morning Post," when speaking of the Hybrid section at the recent Horticultural Hall, went on to say: "In this connection Miss Janette Reeves, of Wateringbury Hall, Kent, probably the most successful and enthusiastic rearer of British hybrids in the Kingdom, writes: 'As you are so interested in my birds I thought you would like to hear that I have at length succeeded in getting a Canary-Chaffinch. He is a little beauty; but I do not intend sending him to shows this season, as I want him to be in full adult plumage before he appears in public. A lot of people have been to see him, and all can easily recognise the pretty ways of a pet Canary. A great scientist seems to think my Bramble Chaffinch cross a wonderful achievement, but it has taken the bird people two years to recognise it, though they now admit that I have been the first person to rear Canary-Bullfinch and Bramble-Chaffinch hybrids.'"—To whom Miss Reeves was writing we do not for certain know (though we could probably guess)—but her statements are of such a startling nature that we think they will warrant transference from the columns of the "Morning Post."

IMPORTANT HOLIDAY NOTICE.

Owing to the Christmas Holidays this year extending over the Monday and Tuesday (December 26th and 27th), advertisers, correspondents, and our readers generally, should note that any communications for insertion in our issue dated December 31st, MUST reach us not later than FRIDAY, DECEMBER 23rd NEXT (or first post Saturday at latest). "Cage Birds" will be published as usual on the Friday. All advertisers should take advantage of the special offer made them this week on this page.

The Season's Greetings to Our Readers

FROM THE EDITOR AND HIS STAFF.

LINES TO THE ROBIN.

"Come, sweetest of the feather'd throng,
And soothe me with thy plaintive song:
Come to my cot, devoid of fear,
No danger shall await thee here;
No prowling cat, with whisker'd face,
Approaches this sequester'd place;
No schoolboy, with his willow bow,
Shall aim at thee a murderous blow;
No wily limed twig e'er molest
Thy olive wing or crimson breast . . .
Thy board shall plenteously be spread
With crumblets of the nicest bread;
And when rude winter comes, and shows
His icicles and shivering snows,
Hop o'er my cheering hearth, and be
One of my peaceful family;
Then sooth me with thy plaintive song,
Thou sweetest of the feather'd throng."

Dr. Jenner.

Some Successes and Surprises of a Mule Breeder.

J. GRIMSHAW (Hale).

I had my first introduction to this fascinating hobby some years ago in trying to obtain Chaffinch-Canary Mules. I did not know at the time that this is one of the most difficult crosses possible to obtain, so went into the matter feeling confident of success.

Attentions that Failed.

I had bought a very steady house-moulted Chaffinch, and for its mate procured a one-year old Norwich hen. I allowed the Canary to have a nest of her own kind first, to get her settled down to her duties, and when she was ready to nest again, I took her away, leaving the cock Canary to finish the rearing of the family.

I now put the hen Canary along with the Chaffinch cock in a breeding cage. I like large cages, and mine are twenty-five by eighteen and twelve inches deep.

There was trouble for the first day or two, but eventually she nested, and laid five eggs, on which she sat well; but they were clear.

In due time she had her second nest, and I felt certain these would be fertile, as I had noticed little attentions on the Chaffinch's part. But the result was the same, viz., clear eggs; as was the case in the third and last rounds. This closed my Chaffinch-Canary trials for that season. I had done nothing, and was disappointed. But another time I mean to try with the birds vice-versa—a hen Chaffinch, with a cock Canary.

Appearances are Deceptive.

My next venture was with a Linnet and a Canary. It is surprising what trivial things sometimes start you on a certain line. I never meant to go in for Linnet-Canary Mules, as I do not admire this cross sufficiently, but happening to call upon a friend one evening who had had a Linnet given him, he offered it me, saying: "Try it with one of your hen Canaries," and on the impulse, and for the fun of the thing, I said "right," and I came away with the Linnet in a paper bag in my pocket.

I could never get to know the age of that Linnet; it had been years in the family of those who gave it to my friend, and evidently had been well brought up. A quieter bird I have never met with anywhere. It never fluttered, nor did it fly about wildly. You could take it from the cage as easily as taking the seed-box off; it might peck at your hand a bit, but that was all.

I put this well-behaved chap with a hen Canary into a breeding cage, gave them nesting materials, with my blessing, and left them.

In about a week the hen commenced building, but Mr. Linnet took no notice whatever, and treated her with supreme indifference. Nothing moved him. She laid four eggs, and then I returned the Linnet to my friend, with a note thanking him for the loan, and saying it had not enough "go" in it to be of any use to me.

I let the hen sit her eggs; feeling it would be something for her to do; and about hatching time I noticed a bit of broken shell on the cage bottom. I thought, surely there are no young ones here? I flushed her from the nest, when four little mouths opened from a bundle of dark fluff. I at once put egg food in, and some tender green food, and she reared all—four strong Linnet-Canary Mules, three cocks and a hen.

Egg Smasher But Good Feeder.

I colour-fed them for the first moult, and though they only took it moderately, I had no trouble in disposing of them all at remunerative prices.

As I stated above, these are hardly favourites of mine, for, to me, this cross shows too little Canary, and too much Linnet. Still, lots of my birdy friends admire them, so it is a case of "everyone to his choice."

But the one outstanding feature of this instance is the misleading behaviour of that Linnet.

I had long admired Goldfinch Mules, having seen a few good specimens at the shows, and I determined to try my luck at breeding these. I sent off for a cock Goldie, which arrived safely; but it died in a few days. I then bought one from a man in the Bird Market one night, who said he was the actual catcher, and swore it was a cock bird. It is difficult to tell a cock from a hen, under a flaring naptha light, and in a crush; and I was "done"—the Goldfinch was a hen.

Some time after this I was lucky enough to come across a catcher who was just taking his birds to the dealer. He had scores of birds, almost every kind of British wild bird being amongst them. The business transaction occupied but a few moments, and I brought away with me a fine cock Greypate, which the catcher assured me would be all right for the next season's breeding. And he was correct. The bird moulted without any trouble into a clean-looking Goldfinch, which I was strongly advised to exhibit at some of our local shows.

I put this Goldfinch up with a clear yellow hen. The first nest consisted of five eggs, which I had been careful to remove each morning as laid. These were all smashed through leaving the cock in the cage during incubation. He was a very orderly fellow, and I thought it safe to leave him in, and he would be company for the hen. But he managed to put his sharp beak through every egg; and that was the end of that round.

I knew better next time, and kept him away until the young ones (four this time), were about ten days old, when I slipped him in and watched. He took up his duties very soon, and turned out a good feeder. They reared all the four—two hens and two cocks. The cocks were larger birds than their father.

I sold the four in one lot in reply to an advertisement in CAGE BIRDS. I did not go in for another nest that season.

My ambition now is to get light Goldfinch Mules, and to be successful I must have the right strain of Sib-bred hens.

A novice may, as easily as an old hand, breed good Hybrids or Mules. Indeed, some say that beginners have all the luck.

W. SCHOLEY (Hull).

When the eggs are not filled, it is plain the birds are not in condition. Separate the pairs and give extra dandelion leaves, and eight drops of tincture of steel in their drinking water, better food, such as egg-food and maw seed.

Now, suppose your birds hatch out alright, have an egg (boiled twenty minutes), and give nothing but the yolk for the first two days. Then give them egg and biscuit flour (about equal quantity of each) three times a day, with a little crushed hemp added. Always see that they have plenty before retiring for the night, for they will be wanting a feed before you are up in the morning.

When they are three or four days old start giving green food, chickweed, dandelion, or very young lettuce. I grow my own lettuce in a shallow box; I sow another afterwards, so as to keep up the supply. When the young are about twelve or thirteen days old, you will begin to see them on the nest-box side, but do not take the box away, even if they come on the perches, as they often go back at night to roost, and the longer they stop in the nest the better it will be for them.

I give them scalded rape. Be very careful of this, as it very soon turns sour. Keep an eye on the cage bottom; it often happens that a youngster is pulled out of the nest by the hen jumping off. If you find one in this predicament, although it looks dead, breathe on it, and if it has not been thus too long, it is almost certain to recover.

Sometimes you will find that when the cock is very attentive to the hen she will start to "sweat" them. When this happens take the cock away and put as much Epsom salts in the water as will cover a sixpence. What with leaving the nest for food and the action of the salts she will cool down; and this often saves a nest which would otherwise be lost.

When the birds leave the nest, I give soft food mixed with crushed hemp, crushed Canary, and soaked rape seeds, also crushed seeds in a feeder in the cage bottom. See that the youngsters do not get too much water. I always add a few doses of the following mixture: Landanum, tincture of rhubarb, and spirits of camphor, in equal parts, say, ½ oz. of each. Mix together and give three drops in the drinking water. This not only stops inflammation of the bowels, but makes the water so unpleasant that they won't drink much. Look at the droppings; if they are watery the above mixture has not had the desired effect. Grate some common chalk on to their soft food, also in the water. I always continue soft food even when they are well on hard seed. But I make it poorer by adding more biscuit. This, I think, is a great preventative of their going soft.

I had a rather curious experience at the finish of the last round last year. I had two nests, one with three and one with four; they were barely on hard seed, and the old birds would not feed. I put the seven into a three-compartment cage (with slides drawn) with an old cock and a young hen about seven weeks old. The cock fed them for a day or two and then left them to the young hen, who fed them all round splendidly. I don't know if this is a common occurrence, but it was new to me. I am looking forward to a good season with her.

When I have got my birds all well on to hard seed I place the lot in flights, and give them baths three times a week, till November, then only on fine days with water that has the chill taken off. Always use quassia in your water. You can get the tincture at the chemists. I go to the seedsman, and buy the chips and put about 2 ozs. to a pint of boiling water, and when it is cold I bottle it, and use one tablespoonful to each bath. When I begin to see signs of moulting (which is when the birds are about eight weeks old), I pick out what I think is most likely and cage them separately.

Now a word about cleanliness. This cannot be too much considered. Always have two sets of feeders, and use one while the other is in soak all day. This prevents anything going sour. Use plenty of gritty sand, and clean out the cages as often as possible, especially when young birds are starting to pick about the floor of the cage, as they often get soft food and green meat that have gone sour, which soon set up inflammation.

Mr. E. Jones (Swindon) and the outdoor birdroom designed and constructed entirely by himself.

We have now to consider the worst pest in the bird-room—red mite. Before you start the season scald out every cage, dissolve some camphor and paint inside and outside, getting into every crevice. Then paint with petrol; it dries quickly and leaves no smell. Put them into the sun to dry. I have always a spare cage ready, and I change the cages as often as I can. I use for the inside ordinary whitewash, which I put on with a paint brush, dipping the wet brush into dry plaster of Paris; this effectually stops up all crevices. Dust well with insect powder; also dip the inner ends of perches and put plenty of powder into the nest boxes when the birds are building, and two or three times when they are sitting.

Get as many plantain stalks as you can when ripe and dry; bring them home, and hang them up in paper bags to thoroughly dry. You will be surprised how it will lessen your seed expenses in the winter; besides it is as good as green meat, if given along with a bit of ripe apple in the winter.

How I Built and Fitted a Birdroom.

F. BOXALL (Chiswick).

(Associate of the British Institute of Certified Carpenters).

To construct an apartment suitable for the successful breeding of high-class birds in the waste space usually contained between the ceiling of the upper rooms and the slates and tiles forming the roof of a dwelling house, is a performance which the amateur carpenter would be well advised to carefully consider before attempting same; but to those who gain their bread by the working of wood, and who have a slight knowledge of the laws of building construction, these remarks are intended to apply, and it is my wish that they may be of some interest and instruction to enable such to carry on their delightful hobby with that ease of mind and quietness of thought which the keen competition of the present day demands.

How to Commence.

Aim at making your room with the least possible amount of timber, not entirely ignoring the fact that strength and utility are likewise required. Commence by taking the precaution of exchanging the centre support of one slope of roof for a well designed triangulated truss, which answers the threefold purpose of supporting the roof and its covering, of supporting the framework and floor of our new room, and also of hanging up the ceiling joists of the room below. After having got one side secure, the other half of roof can be treated in a similar manner. These frames will then be the foundation to which all weights and strains will be distributed.

Proceed to frame the ends of the new floor joist into the lower member of the beam of the truss, and, if possible, let the joist take a bearing on the brick walls or partitions which usually show through the ceilings from the room below. Care must be taken that the joists are quite clear and independent of the ceiling joist, or otherwise a fracture would soon appear in the plaster underneath.

Mr. A. Hollingshead, of Hove, a member of the Brighton C.B.A. and for many years a keeper and breeder of birds.

We have now a good and solid foundation for the new room, and one quite capable of taking any reasonable weight which may be placed upon it.

The "Better-half's" View.

Cover the floor joist with a good laid felt, which is a capital non-conductor of sound, heat and cold, and on to this lay a flooring of good dry, yellow grooved and tongued flooring boards, and clean off the irregular joints in the usual manner. As some amount of noise and inconvenience will by this time have been caused to the lady of the house, it will have a most soothing effect if an invitation is made for her to survey the result of our labours; and as she aviates through the trap-door which serves for the entrance, you will be greeted by cries of, "Oh, isn't it funny?" "What a lovely bedroom it would make," etc. Why your best half is always on the look-out for further sleeping accommodation passes my understanding, but as our object is to increase our stud of birds, we will ignore such pointed remarks, and push on with the work.

For the purpose of constructing the walls and ceilings there is at present no better or more handy material than the ordinary matchboarding; but it has one serious drawback, viz., it is for ever on the move—always either swelling or shrinking—and as we must prevent draughts at all costs, it is necessary to first sheet the walls and ceiling with a dry and narrow layer of boards, and on this apply the laid felt with edges and laps held tightly together by screwing battens thereto; and to this we could put our facing matchboarding, fitting the ends nicely to floor boards, and intersecting with the ceiling and slopes of roof. Over these angular joints may be placed an oval fillet, for appearance sake only.

Light and Ventilation.

Our room has now become almost draught-proof; outside noises are conspicuous by their absence, and if you are using artificial light, you will begin to feel that a change of air would be acceptable, which proves conclusively that our chamber has become almost airtight, and to work in comfort we must at once confine our attention to the light and ventilation. Cut through the sloping side of ceiling on the side facing east or south, and insert two good-sized skylights, made to open upwards, erring on the side of having too much light rather than too little; and follow out system of the groove and tongue joint to stop the direct currents of air which persist in finding their way through all crevices.

Ventilation is of supreme importance, and we now direct our efforts to this delicate operation with great care and caution.

Briefly, efficient ventilation consists of changing the air of a room without producing a perceptible draught—not by any means an easy task, particularly as we have to remember that all building materials allow of a considerable passage of air to pass through them.

The Best Method.

Of several methods the best is undoubtedly that whereby movement of air is made by the application of heat to extract the foul matter, thus causing a partial vacuum, which is filled up by fresh air entering to fill its place. To put this into practice, form up a few square wooden tubes, about four inches inside dimension, one end of a tube to be covered with open wire netting, and taken on a level with new floor to outside of building, the innermost end of tube to be fixed about 4 ft. above floor, and to be fitted with perforated zinc and a hinged flap to regulate the incoming current of air. Known for years as "Tobin's" tubes, they are even now acknowledged to be the best method of bringing fresh air to a room.

Next take out a portion of the ceiling boards about 18 in. square, and into this space form a frame about 6 in. high and panel the four sides with perforated zinc, and through the sheet iron ceiling of this fitment, bring the artificial light, gas in this instance being most suitable. After lighting up and opening the valves in the tubes, a slight movement of the air is at once noticeable, proving that the air is being changed, the intake being easily regulated by the opening or closing of flaps already described.

We now have constant and moderate ventilation entirely under our control, and as near perfection as it is possible to get it, without employing mechanical pumps or fans.

The entrance to this birdroom, for such it has now become, could be by a ladder leading through the trapdoor, and this method was used by the writer for some considerable time; but it has now given way to a more convenient staircase.

Avoid Useless Trimmings.

In the making of room avoid useless trimmings, such as fillets, beads and mouldings, which are more often than not used to hide up bad workmanship, but which in reality only serve in this case to create harbours for dirt and the everpresent red mite, which seem to take a peculiar interest and liking for these handy hiding places.

Partition off a corner of the room for a sink fitted with both hot and cold water, and a waste pipe connected to the nearest available drain, as a large quantity of water is used, and it would well repay its cost.

Give all woodwork to walls and ceilings two good coats of oil paint, and finish off with a reliable make of white gloss enamel.

Cover the floor neatly with a thick cork linoleum, and we then have a room fit to receive our cages, racks, cupboards, tables, necessary to an orderly room, the making and fitting up of which I will, with our editor's permission, describe in a further article.

Wild-Bird Life.

Notes on the Linnet.

Although the Finches are with us the year round, it is somehow mostly during the winter months that we notice them particularly. In the summer we have a host of other attractions—the dainty Warblers and migrants command our attention daily, and then there are the nests and young of many other species to interest us. But during the winter when the wind and wet drive across the open fields, and we seek the sheltered side of the hedgerow, the flocks of Finches feeding upon the rough herbage, docks, thistles, etc., which grow freely in some fields where the cultivation is not over close, attract our notice at once. Some of these corners are the special favourites of the Linnets and Goldfinches. The Linnets, since the Wild Birds' Act was put upon the Statute Book, are in great abundance; in fact, it is very doubtful if any of our commoner birds have profited so much by protection. They have increased enormously; some of the flocks are not only of exceptional size, but are met with much more frequently than was the case some years ago. There is one thing at least in favour of this sweet songster, and that is, he is not nearly so destructive as some. He does not trouble the farmer during harvest, nor does he partake of the fruit during the summer and autumn; and these, after all, are the chief factors that count in a cultivated district. His tale of good done, in the shape of the consumption of millions of wild seeds, is a considerable one; and in addition he is the most [illegible] finches as a caged pet, bringing with his [illegible] thoughts of green fields and sunshine to many otherwise cheerless home. To most people who have not seen him in his courting dress, it may here be said that he is simply a little brown bird with a speckled breast. The writer will never forget the astonishment of a companion who saw one in all the glory of his summer plumage for the first time. We were resting under a tall hedge, when a fine cock Linnet swung over the top and alighted upon a projecting branch. His breast was a gorgeous crimson, so rich and vivid that it hardly seemed natural. He was in full voice, and as the rich wild notes reached us he appeared to my companion to be the most beautiful and charming bird he had ever seen. The Linnet sings well in confinement, but it is doubtful if the sweet song has the real flavour and volume of the wild notes, heard under the best conditions, namely, perfect weather, the scented hedgerow, and open green fields.

An Army of Falconers.

It is said that at the time hawking was so fashionable a certain Sultan maintained a corps of seven thousand Falconers, to train and fly the birds.

Virgil on Birds.

In his writings, Virgil mentions about twenty kinds of birds, most of them several times. These twenty kinds do not correspond so much to our species as to our genera; for the Greeks and Romans, one need hardly say, had only very rough-and-ready methods of classification. When they found birds tolerably like each other they readily put them down as of the same kind, rarely marking minor differences.

First Steps in Foreign Bird Keeping.

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., Etc.

In this article a description of species cannot be given—these have already appeared in a previous series of contributions from my pen—and mention can only be made of groups of birds and a mere list of the more popular species. As to what may be kept together, it is not well to keep large and small birds together. For instance, one group may consist of birds from the size of a Waxbill to that of a Norwich Canary; but a pair of small Doves and Quails may be kept for variety and effect. Another group may consist of such as vary in size from Cardinals, Bulbuls and Starlings to the Thrushes; but it is not well to enclose many pairs of closely-related species together.

Quarrelsome Species.

Weavers, and Whydahs, Saffron, Parson, and Crimson Finches all come under the category of quarrelsome or reputedly quarrelsome species, and it must be admitted that Pin-tailed Whydahs, Orange Bishops, Grenadier and Rufous necked Weavers, Saffron and Crimson Finches, are very unsafe in any mixed community of birds. On the other hand, it must he noted that many species, quite amiable at other times, become almost ferocious in the breeding season, but their ferocity is generally reserved for birds of their own kind, for closely related species, or for the purpose of keeping intruders from the nest. The conclusion is, be content with at most two pairs of Serins, Buntings, and other families and orders, and only one pair each of individual species. Most of the Weavers and Whydahs (except those named) may be kept in the general aviary, and as they seldom attempt to breed, it is better to have only males, which will add to the general effect when they are in their brilliant nuptial plumage; they also do not in a single state suffer from ennui, but keep themselves busily engaged in the weaving of endless toy nests. As a rule, their bickering is among themselves, though they will chase any intruder from their latest nest. Paradise and Queen (Racquet-tailed) Whydahs are the most suitable species for a mixed series.

Parrots and Parrakeets.

In this paper I am only referring to Parrots and Parrakeets briefly. They must not be mixed with Finches, etc., as sooner or later disaster is the result. This applies equally to large or small species, not even excluding the favourite and much-kept Budgerigar. I can, however, make one exception, and that is in favour of the Cockatiel. Over a long number of years, both in my own and a friend's aviaries, I have never known them to interfere with the smallest Waxbill. However, as growing plants are a desideratum in the Finch and Waxbill aviary, all species of Parrakeets should be "barred," as they soon cut to pieces all trees and bushes. For a Parrakeet aviary it is useless planting anything—simply have an abundance of branches of varying thickness a suitable number of nesting receptacles, and sow ground periodically, as required, with oats, grain, wheat, Indian corn, etc. The brilliant colours of their plumage serve to make up the lack of green foliage, etc.

It is only my intention in this paper to briefly pass in review, as a list, the various groups of birds.

TANAGERS, SUGAR BIRDS, AND GREEN BULBULS.—These birds should all have access to milk sop, soft food mixture, unlimited ripe fruit, and some live insects. There is a great deal of individuality about them. Some will not take milk sop, others will not touch soft food, and again others will live almost entirely upon ripe fruit and a live insect or two; other species seem to refuse all live food. So that you must supply all the above till the taste of an individual bird is ascertained; or if a group be kept together, regularly supply the whole. Providing they are not overcrowded, most of the species will agree together as an ornamental group, but if any of them attempted to nest, there would then be very pronounced "ructions," I expect.

"Hello! There's some naughty little rascals behind you with snowballs. But I've got my eye on 'em!"

Most of this group need to be brought indoors for the winter, but can be turned outside in the general aviary during the summer months. However, I have found the Blue, Palm, Maroon and Scarlet Tanager quite hardy and healthy if left out-of-doors all the year round, and I have found all four species to ignore the Waxbills and small ornamental Finches in the same aviary.

Note.—I have found the Green Bulbuls unsafe company for birds smaller and weaker than themselves.

FINCH-LIKE BIRDS.—These, including the Mannikins, Waxbills, Singing Finches (Serins), Grassfinches and Buntings, can all be kept together, with the precautions as to number and other provisos already made. They require seed, soft food, green food, ripe fruit, and some live food, especially when rearing young. They will take no harm from any other diet supplied for any of the insectivorous frugivora occupying their enclosure.

WEAVERS AND WHYDAHS, with the exceptions already noted, may be kept with, and under the same conditions as, the Finch-like birds referred to in the preceding paragraph.

STARLINGS, THRUSHES, and the like.—These may be said to be almost omnivorous, and will take to a greater or lesser degree of all the items given under the heading of "Foods," and all should be supplied. But few breeding successes will occur with this group unless an almost continuous supply of live food can be kept up while they are feeding their newly-hatched progeny and for the first ten days afterwards. Some individual pairs will feed with the insectile mixture, but such are the exception and not the rule.

For all species during the breeding season there should be an unlimited supply of green food, and also ripe fruit, as the former, with many species, is an important factor in the rearing of the young.

There is no better time than the autumn for the erection of a garden aviary, as it is the best time for planting, and it enables the plants, creepers, etc., to get established before the aviary is in use in the following spring.

List of birds which may be kept together in one aviary—not full, but a reasonable variety of 60 pairs for a large garden aviary:

Finches.—Grey Singing, Green Singing, Alario, Cuban, Cherry, Diamond, Guttural, Lined, Ribbon, Red-headed and Olive.

Grassfinches.—Parrot, Gouldian, Long-tailed, Rufous-tailed, Bicheno's, Zebra, Pectoral, Yellow-rumped and Parson.

Buntings.—Nonpariel, Indigo, Black-headed, Red-headed, Ruddy-backed, Chingolo Song Sparrow, Pileated Finch, Yellow-billed Cardinal.

Waxbills.—Green Avadavat, Common Avadavat (Tiger Finch), Orange-cheeked, Zebra, Crimson-winged (Aurora Finch), St. Helena, Grey, Sydney, Firefinch, Lavender Finch and Cordon Bleu.

Miscellaneous.—Pekin Robin, Blue Tanager, Scarlet Tanager, Maroon Tanager, Indian Zosterops, Diamond Doves, and Chinese Painted Quails.

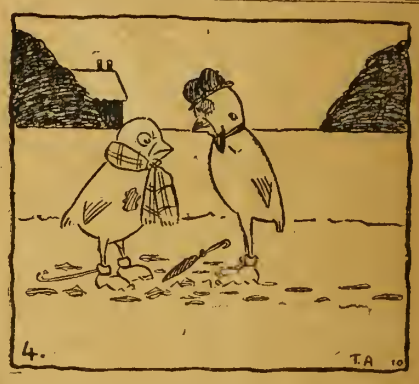
Cardinals.—Virginian, Green, Pope, Scarlet and Red-Crested.



"Little beasts!—must have been some other rascals on the other side!"

Thrushes, Starlings, etc.—American Blue Bird, Mocking Bird, Spectacled Thrush, Rosy Pastor, Silky Cowbird, Common Cowbird, Ruddy-shouldered Cowbird, Red-breasted and Yellow-headed Marshbirds, Glossy Green Starling, Long-tailed Glossy Starling, Malabar Starling.

Miscellaneons.—Black-headed Sibias, Gold-fronted Green Bulbul, Harlequin Quail, Australian Crested Doves.

With these might be included a pair or two of the larger Tanagers, such as Greater and Orange-billed Saltators, and if Saffron and Crimson Finches, and the larger Whydahs and Weavers are desired, they should be included in this group.

Note.—I must emphasise what I have already referred to throughout this paper, that if breeding results are the desideratum, then ample space and cover must be allowed for the birds, and only a few pairs be kept in a large space; but if, on the other hand, a varied collection is required, and only occasional or chance breeding results, then the number can be materially increased; but it is bad policy to fill the aviary to its utmost capacity, because one pleasing feature will he spoiled, viz., the growing greenery. To secure this pleasing feature, it is better to limit numbers and to change the species every two or three years.

Before concluding, I may say that a very pleasing Tanager aviary may be constructed by erecting, say, a 12ft. by 8ft. shed, half of which is glass (similar to a greenhouse), and the other half wood or brick. Plant the glass portion with orange, sweet bay, and myrtle, with cobæ scandens and abutilons as climbing plants, grasses, weeds, canary, hemp, etc., being sown all round these. Glass must be covered on the inside with netting, and full ventilation secured without draught. During the winter months a minimum night temperature of 45 deg. F. should be maintained.

Continuous observation is necessary during the breeding season, as the demeanour of birds changes materially during this period, but as the difficulty frequently suggests the remedy, all can usually be surmounted by the intelligent aviarist, without great inconvenience or loss; but for the avinrists who will not think for themselves (there are such!), but little can be done, for I fear even the largest library of sound text books will not save them from failure and loss; for all general principles must be governed and modified by the environment of each particular case.

The Skylark at Home.

By B. J. OUNSETT.

Without in any wise wishing to pose as an experienced ornithologist, I may perhaps be permitted a few notes on the Skylark as I have observed it in its native state. (Readers will remember what the writer had to say in a previous issue about the caged Skylark. EDITOR). The bird has always been a great favourite with me, and for years in the country I have watched the Skylarks through all the changing seasons.

Singing in Every Month.

Running through some old bird notes which I have made year in and year out, I find that over a period of ten years (roughly speaking) I have heard the Skylark singing at some time in every month in the year. Twice my amateur records remind me that its song has gladdened me on Christmas Day; and in another calendar, in the space opposite January 1st, are the words: "Lark singing in —— Lane."

No bird, I feel sure, can beat the Lark's record for the extended period of its song. Yet several of our poets have tripped with regard to the Lark, associating the bird's song with the coming of spring. Thus, Richardson, in his "April Allegro" :—

Then at last one April dawn
High above the glimmering lawn!
While the first faint fires are scattering the dark;
Lo, I hear a buoyant note
On the dewy air afloat,
And I catch the first fine prelude of the Lark;
Then I know, ah, then I know,
When I hear the glad song flow,
That the sweet of all the year
In a little while will be here,
And the spring is coming, coming back again!

This is "pretty music," but anyone in the country knows that the Skylark does not wait for April before he commences to sing.

And what a Song!

And what a song it is! Watch him as he springs from the ground with fluttering wings, rising almost perpendicularly higher and higher in his flight, till he is almost lost to sight in the clouds, and all the while his beautiful song floats down to the charmed ear of the listener. Then, whilst but a speck against the bright blue of a summer's sky, you see him make a graceful curve, and watch him descend, singing all the time, until he drops in the field, only a few feet perhaps from where he rose.

Many writers have sung the praises of the notes of other birds, even in verse being able to convey a splendid idea of the nature of the bird's song. No better illustration of this can perhaps be found than Maud Byron's lines on the song of the Thrush :—

Dear Throstle on the birchen bough,
You sing each song twice over—
"Blue violets now!" "Blue violets now!"
"White clover!" and "White clover!"
With silver flute you strive to show
The countless joys of May,
The tender notes come clear and slow,
With a fa la la, and a fa la la,
Like a sweet old roundelay.

I have never noticed anyone as successful in describing the Skylark's song.

Occasionally one may hear a Lark sing whilst on the ground, but one of our poets calls the bird "a scorner of the ground," and it certainly gives the greater delight to hear the Lark as he sings, free and unrestrained, in the boundless expanse of the air.

Where the Lark Nests.

The Lark nests on the ground, sometimes in quite exposed places. The nest, which is composed of bents and dry grass, lined with finer grasses, is generally placed in rough grass on the edge of cultivated fields, and I have found the bird particularly partial to the ground surrounding clover leys for the rearing of its brood. One, however, comes across Larks' nests in all sorts of places—in meadows, gardens and cornfields. The eggs are whitish, thickly blotched with brown and dark grey. The nests (which may be looked for any time between mid-April and August) are often destroyed through grazing cattle and horses treading into them, and I have seen more than one little family of callow Larks upset by mowing machines when the standing grass has been cut.

And if the eggs escape, the young birds, reared as they are on the ground, have many enemies to contend with, but Dame Nature has protected them wonderfully, for the colour of their first feathers closely resembles that of dried grass. The young are fed on insects by the parent birds, but when they are able to leave the nest the young Larks may be found more amongst seeding weeds and grasses, and I think they must be greater seedeaters than a good many give them credit for being.

When Summer Wanes.

As summer's glories wane and the sickle has been put to the corn, the Larks flock to the stubble, and they undoubtedly consume large quantities of the scattered corn, for Larks caught at this season are very fat. In some districts hundreds are caught during dark nights by nets drawn over the stubbles where the birds have been seen to settle down for the night. I think it is the birds taken at the fall of harvest—so many of which seem to find their way to the bird shops—that do not always take kindly to caged life and prove disappointing to fanciers. They are then usually very fat and the change to a softbill mixture seems to thoroughly upset them, and yet they will often refuse to touch a grain of the corn from the very field in which they have been caught.

It is quite a different story with Larks taken after a spell of very hard weather, or when snow has covered the ground for a few days. They are much more easily domesticated then, and quickly become steady. Care should be taken, however, with birds caught almost starved to death, that they do not "cram" themselves, for some Larks are quite gluttons in a way.

The Sex Problem.

The plumage of the Skylark is so well known that it is needless to venture a description here. Both sexes are practically alike, both as fledglings and adults, but whilst they are "pushers" (that is, young birds well feathered, but only able to take short "rises") one can generally be fairly safe as to securing a cock if the largest are taken. Or when the birds are adults and you are making a selection from several in a large cage, choose the one whose demeanour is the boldest, and who tries to pull himself up like a Game Bantam. Size, however, is the safest line to go on. I remember an old birdcatcher who used to expand the wings of the Larks and measure them across from the tip of one wing to the tip of the other; and those which did not measure one foot across were liberated, the catcher holding the view that they were hens. Of course, he may have been wrong sometimes, for birds naturally vary a good deal in size and other respects. Some excellent songsters may not perhaps measure as much as a foot across the expanded wings, but the old man generally relied on this method of selection.

In conclusion, I will say that no "Britisher" will give his owner greater pleasure or repay him better for the care bestowed on it than the Skylark.

Competitor's Name and Full Address.....

One Guinea (Cash) for the Reader who is Successful.

The six drawings seen above are pictorial representations of the names of six well-known birds. We offer a cash prize of One Guinea to the reader who correctly fills in the names of these birds in the spaces provided underneath the pictures. All competitors must observe the following conditions or their efforts will be disqualified.

THE RULES TO BE OBSERVED.

(1) The names of the birds must be clearly written in the spaces provided.

(2) Only one name must appear in each space.

(3) Competitors can send in two or more attempts, but each attempt must be made on a separate form cut from a copy of CAGE BIRDS.

(4) The name and address of the sender must in all cases be given in full,

(5) In case of two or more competitors guessing the six birds correctly, their names will be written on slips of paper, the latter placed in a hat, and one slip drawn out by some independent person, and the name appearing on the slip so selected shall be the name of the winner of the guinea prize.

(6) All solutions must reach us on or before Friday, December 30th next, or they will be too late to compete.

(7) Entries are accepted only on the understanding that the Editor's decision shall be final.

NOTE.—In the unlooked for event of no competitor correctly guessing the six bird, the prize will go to the competitor whose form gives the greatest number correct (subject to rule 5 in case of tie or ties).

Hunting the Magpie.

In days gone by the Magpie was frequently used as a quarry for Hawking, and if hunted in the open country he was not difficult to take. But the "'Pie" was much too knowing to get there if he could possibly avoid it, and would skulk in the thick bushes, whence it could only be driven out by a stick.

A Bird Pirate.

The Skuas are large birds, breeding in the coast in the Far North. They are very courageous in defence of their young, and will attack even Eagles and other birds of prey, four-footed animals, and frequently human beings. As they are very powerful birds they seldom come off second best, and the intruder is glad to get away without injury. These birds live principally by piracy, and rob the Gulls of their prey, and if any resistance be offered they will not infrequently kill and make a meal off the Gulls themselves.

CANARY QUERIES.

Ailing Cinnamon.

Mr. Good.—The following treatment should make a considerable improvement, but it is always best to strictly avoid breeding with such birds. See that red mites are not troublesome, and keep the bird in a fairly comfortable temperature, not overheated, nor yet on the cold side, and keep it well away from any fire, so that the warmth will be as equable as possible night and day. Only allow it to bathe on nice bright and mild days. Feed on a staple of plain canary seed only, and every second day give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and a morsel of ripe banana. On each alternate day for the next fortnight give have a teaspoonful of crushed stale sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed. Twice a week give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, teazle, and millet. A mealworm a day for a time would be beneficial. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts for two days, and afterwards 20 drops of a mixture of 2 drachms each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, one drachm each of chlorodyne and ipecacuanha wine, plus six grains of iodide of potassium, every second day for a fortnight, then miss a week, and give again for another fortnight. Any chemist will dispense this mixture.

Mating Crests.

J.T.P.—There are several points you must carefully consider before so closely in-breeding, and also double-cresting. First, is the history of blindness in the bird referred to in the cutting fixed in your strain? Thus if you have had any save the most exceptional cases of blindness occur among birds related to those you wish to mate in the way you suggest, you should give up the idea at once. But if this history of blindness is absent, and you have not already in-bred with these birds, and they are strong and robust, then there could be no objection on this score to you mating either the father and daughter, or the half-brother and sister. Next you must consider whether double-cresting is called for in your stock. Its chief object should be to ensure a fair proportion of crested birds being bred. If you breed anywhere near the same number of Crests or Crest-breds, it is scarcely necessary, but if you produce a large preponderance of Crest-breds and have not mated two Crests together for some years, then this mating would be useful, but you must not expect to find a vast improvement right away. On the contrary, they may appear to deteriorate and produce mop-headed, shapeless Crests, or more or less bald birds. From these you will be able to pick a few that when mated again in the usual order—Crest to Crest-bred—will prove invaluable stock birds. Having considered these points, if you decide on the in-bred double Crest mating, my advice is to mate the half brother and sister next season, and the following season mate the old cock with the most promising young hen (Crest-bred) from this pair. If the old cock is not then on the active list, mate the best of his produce next season with the progeny of this half-brother and sister in the usual way—Crest to Crest-bred.

Loss of Mandible (A Novice).—If they have really lost the upper mandible—"their top bill" as you say—I fail to see how they can sustain themselves, or be alive to need treatment. Please send us fuller particulars, describing the appearance and position of the scab (a little sketch, no matter how rough, would show this), how much of the beak is lost, and whether there is any probability of injury being the cause by quarrelling or from jagged ends of wire or splinters of perches. Meantime give the birds so affected a morsel of bread and milk, daily, and drop 10 drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and sprinkle with maw seed every second day. Also give a little ripe banana to assist them to feed. If any soreness is present slightly smear it with carbolised vaseline daily for a time.

Samples of Hemp (James Fulton).—The seed as a whole is old and stale, and something like 50 per cent. of it is thoroughly bad, being quite rancid, and often rotten in kernel.

Seed Samples (Smart).—The canary is rather poor, but of very fair average quality. The rape is a very nice sample of summer rape, but seems rather new, and should improve by a few months' proper storage.

Still Moulting (Smithy Green).—Your feeding might well have been a little more generous. You are also probably keeping the bird where it is exposed either to cold draughts, or extremes of heat and cold. Remedy this at once, and keep bird in a comfortable and equable, but not necessarily very warm, position. In addition to the plain canary seed give half a teaspoonful of summer rape and a morsel of ripe banana every second day, and on the alternate days give a few grains of hemp and half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed. Add a pinch of Epsom salts to the water for one day, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day for a fortnight.

Sore Feet (E. Godry).—You should have described the appearance of the "scurf" you mention, whether a scurfy growth on the under-surface of the toes or all round them. Dissolve a small teaspoonful of boracic acid in two-thirds of a teacupful of hot water (or in about this proportion for any other quantity) and whilst still very warm hold the fect in it and bathe them well for a few minutes, using a small feather to assist in removing dirt and scurf. Dry gently and anoint feet with boracic ointment. Repeat daily, and if not well in a fortnight, write again, and describe appearance as closely as you can. Keep cage floor and perches scrupulously clean.

Future Prospects (W.J.W.)—There is no reason whatever why you should not try again with the Green cock and prove successful. I imagine the previous failures were due to the hens and not the cock. Get a strong, robust 1910 bred hen to mate with him. You do not say what breed he is, but if your chief object is to get some singers from him get a Roller hen. Get "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., post free, from our manager, and follow advice given therein. Glad to hear the other bird is so much better. Why did you give the Green cock the prescription advised for the other one? You certainly do not want to force a bird to drop feathers now if he has moulted at the proper time.

Not Singing (H.P.).—Assuming you are certain the bird is a cock, and you have it caged by itself, in addition to the usual seed diet of canary and rape, give it a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut sprinkled with maw seed twice a week, and on two other days an equivalent quantity of crushed sponge cake with four or five drops of sherry mixed in it and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed. On each of the remaining days give a pinch of a mixture of hemp, inga and teazle, equal parts, and a morsel of banana, raw carrot, or sweet apple, in lieu of green food. In the drinking water give 20 drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence every second day, continue this for a fortnight.

Insects in Sand (Enquirer).—Sample duly received. I failed to discover any trace of insects with a lens whilst sand remained dry, but on moistening it and examining it again shortly after I caught glimpses of three, but failed to isolate any for more particular examination. Still, I have no doubt now that they are natives of the sand, and have no connection with the birds. In all probability they belong to the class of minute insects which inhabit lead and similar situations. You can get rid of them by keeping tho sand quite dry, and treating cage occasionally as previously advised. The sand, by the way, does not appear to have been obtained from a pure or clean source, and you would be well-advised to discard it altogether, and get a cleaner and slightly coarser kind. If you must use this, well wash it, and when dry heat it quite hot in an oven, having first mixed a very slight dusting of flowers of sulphur in it.

Still Moulting (Rookey).—You should see the birds are kept quite free from draughts, and if they have been kept in a warm room it would be most advisable to move them to where the temperature was just fairly comfortable, but not overheated, and as equable as possible. As a staple mixture give three parts canary to one part summer rape. Every second day for a fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed, and in the alternate days a few grains of hemp and a morsel of banana. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts and six drops of lemon juice for two days, and afterwards six drops of tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day for a fortnight; then miss a week, and if moulting is not quite stopped, begin again, and give for another fortnight.

Bare of Feather (Ethelbert).—If the hen is an aged one, as I rather suspect, I doubt your being able to make much permanent improvement. Keep her in a comfortably warm place, where the warmth is as equable as possible, and quite free from draughts. Only give the bath when weather is bright and mild. Feed on plain canary only as staple, and every second day give half a teaspoonful of summer rape separately. On the alternate days give a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake or bread and milk, slightly dusting it twice each week with a mixture of two parts flowers of sulphur to one part chlorate of potash and finally sprinkling the top with maw seed. Twice a week give a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts inga, teazle, black rape, linseed and millet, and on three other days a scrap of green food when available, or a morsel of raw carrot as a substitute. Twice a week slightly smear the bare places with sulphur ointment. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts and ten drops of lemon juice every second day for a week, and afterwards 20 drops of chemical food every second day for a month. Continue this treatment for a month.

Hen Plucking Herself (Puzzled).—In addition to the staple of plain canary and the rape seed, limit the diet for the next month to these items and a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, and teazle twice a week. On two other days each week give a morsel of bread sopped in cold milk, drained, slightly dusted with flour of sulphur and sprinkled with maw seed. Keep a piece of cuttlefish in the wires for her to peck at, and each day for a week or two crush the head of a mealworm and pin it to the end of the perch. Allow her to bathe when weather is mild. Add a pinch of Epsom salts to the drinking water for two days, and afterwards four drops of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid, every second day for a week. Slightly smear the bare places daily with Lano-cyllin, or, if this is not available, neatsfoot oil for a week or so.

Moving Barder (W. E. H., Liverpool).—As you say the birds are from a cold room they will thrive all right and be perfectly comfortable in the room you mention, and will be much better in health than they are likely to remain if kept in the kitchen any length of time, unless the conditions in the latter are quite exceptional. You should take advantage of the first break to mild weather to move them there and not wait until the weather becomes more severe. You must not spray the bird that refuses to bathe. Offer the bath only in mild weather, and if it does not choose to use it, take it away and let bird go as it evidently desired, unbathed. Your feeding is correct, only give the mixed seed twice a week.

Moulting Again (Novice).—I suspect the other room to which you have moved the bird is not only warmer but drier, and this combination is sufficient to start some moulting, even though the temperature is, as you say, but two or three degrees. If your estimation is merely from your personal sense of feeling the difference is quite probably much greater than you suspect. Treat the birds as advised to "Smithy Green" in this issue, but instead of giving the gentian and steel dissolve twopennyworth of ammoniated citrate of iron and quinine in two tablespoonfuls of sherry and give twelve drops of this in the water every second day until the moulting ceases. To tighten up the show birds feed them as advised to "Smithy Green," but add an equal quantity of teazle and inga to the hemp; also give a small piece of raw carrot three times a week, and add ten drops of the above quinine mixture to the water for a few days.

Fits of Sneezing (N.K.J.).—You ought to have given a reference to my last reply, and also said whether your room is heated or not. If room is not heated, move this bird into a fairly comfortable and equable temperature, but do not overdo it, and see that it is quite free from draughts. In addition to the seed diet give a morsel of bread and milk, with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with maw seed every second day for a fortnight. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts every second day for a week, and after this, every second day for a fortnight, give fifteen drops of a mixture of two drams each glycerine and oxymel of squills, and one dram each of chlorodyne and ipecacuanha wine, and six grains of iodide of potassium. Any chemist will supply this; give it in the water.

Out of Song (Jack and Gill).—Feed and treat for another fortnight as advised "H.P.," and on the days when you give the hemp mixture give also a morsel of paste the size of a large pea made by mixing together on a hot plate a teaspoonful of honey, as much chlorate of potash as will lie on a sixpence, one-third this quantity of pure cayenne, and a sufficient quantity of fine biscuit powder to make the whole into a soft paste. When cold it will be firmer and you can cut off the required quantity and press it on the end of a perch. Omit the mixture in water advised to "H.P." If you let the cock, of course, assuming you are certain of the sex, hear another that is in song for a week or two, it will help to bring him out. There is no necessity to keep the two birds in separate rooms if you keep them in box cages and hang them side by side on the same wall.

Fish Tails (J. T. M.).—They have the natural defect known as fish-tails, and from what you say the defect is bred in them and nothing you can give will be of any use. You can make a very considerable improvement of a more or less temporary character according to your skill in doing it, by immersing the tails for two-thirds of their length, or a little more if the openness extends to near the base, in fairly hot water for a minute or two, and then gently drawing the feathers through the tip of the forefinger and the thumb-nail, holding the base of the tail between the other thumb and forefinger in order to avoid pulling out the tail. In drawing the lower half of the shaft of the feather beneath the thumb-nail gently but firmly apply the little pressure necessary for straightening the shafts and bringing them in from each side towards the centre to give the appearance of close pipe tails. A little care will enable you to make a very good job with scarcely any practice. You must be careful to see that these birds are mated with very good, compact, pipe-tailed birds.

Swellings (J. T. M.).—Is the bird in a thin or plump condition? If rather thin, I should say what you suspect for red swellings are simply the outlines of the bird's gizzard showing against the abdominal walls. It is quite palpable there is some enlargement of the liver, which presses this organ into relief, as it were, viewed from the outside. But without seeing the bird it is impossible to say definitely if this supposition is correct. Treat as follows for a month and then report result. Staple food plain canary only. Every second day give separately half teaspoonful of summer rape, and on the alternate days give a small piece of bread and milk sprinkled with maw seed. Two or three times a week give a morsel of ripe banana. Keep cage strewn with clean gritty sand. Limit the diet strictly to this. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts every second day for a week.

Birds Dying (Disappointed).—The sample of canary is a nice and fairly good allround quality, but the rape has every indication of being badly infested with a very minute mite, which is often found in seeds of this class, so I did not venture to sample the flavour of it. I strongly advise you to reject it, and get a better and cleaner sample. Also break open a few grains of your hemp and examine condition of the kernels. Although the cause of the trouble may lie here, there is decided reason to suspect a contagious element, and you would be well advised to chloroform the bird you say is now ill, and send it our Mr. Yates for post-mortem (see his column for particulars), in order to get all doubts at rest. Meantime keep your stock isolated; introduce no fresh birds, and get mitchell hooklet on "Disinfection," 2½d., post free, from our Manager, and thoroughly overhaul and disinfect your cages at once, in order to rout out the infection before another breeding season arrives. Feed and treat the birds for a month as advised to "Puzzled," but dust the bread and milk with carbonate of bismuth, instead of sulphur, and you will not need to use the Lano-cyllin or castor oil.

Canary Querists should send to our publisher for "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d.; "House's Canary Manual," 1/2; and "Yorkshire Canaries," 1/-, post free.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., etc.

What Bird?

Nemo.—The Carmine Finch is a very different bird to either the Crimson or Red-head Finches—all these are different species, not even closely allied. The Red-headed Finch is nearly allied to the Ribbon Finch, but is almost as large again; its head and throat are bright, brick-red, the back greyish-brown, and the under parts whitish, heavily scaled with dark brown; beak light horn-colour. The Carmine Finch is one of the Rose Finches, probably Carpodacus mexicanus, or some near species, in which case it will lose the lovely carmine colouring which, after the moult will be buffish. The female almost entirely lacks the carmine areas. Add millet and a few live insects to your dietary. Though not impossible, I fear there is little probability of it breeding in a cage.

An Ailing Java Sparrow.

C. J. M.—I strongly suspect the Budgerigars have been up to their mischief, and given the Java a playful nip—you are never safe keeping Parrakeets and Finch-like birds together, something always happens, sooner or later. At this stage you had better leave nature to work its own remedy with the legs. The ailing Java will be better caged separately till it has recovered. Your diet is satisfactory, but I should give the bird a dose of Dinneford's magnesia twice weekly, so long as the voidings are not watery loose; when that occurs, you must lengthen the period between the doses. On the days you are not giving the magnesia, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's chemical food. Keeping the bird caged separately should enable it to rest the leg without being hustled about by the other birds, and it should soon recover. One teaspoonful of magnesia to an ordinary sized drinker will be ample. The drinker should be either glass or china when giving drugs. Shall be glad to hear how the bird progresses.

Birds in a Greenhouse.

J. M. M.—Finches, such as Gold and Bullfinches, Canaries, Siskins, Redpolls, and similar Foreign species, would certainly damage the plants, especially the hard-wooded kinds, by taking the buds as they appeared: Waxbills, Avadavats and many small Ornamental Finches, Cordon Bleus, Long-tailed and Rufous-tailed Grenadines and Zebra finches would do no serious harm to the plants, they would certainly keep them clear of blight; but all the glass and ventilators in such case must be covered with fine wire netting on the inside, or the birds would escape. If you build an aviary inside, it must be in the dryest and best ventilated part, and you must check all draught, or the birds will not live. Fly loose would be the better plan, on account of the exercise and occupation they would get foraging among the plants for insects. You should have a lobby either inside or outside the greenhouse, so that the birds do not escape as you enter. For foundation, either a few rows of bricks, or a board let half its depth into the ground, with a piece of sheet zinc attached, will meet your requirements.

Outdoor Aviary and Birds Dying.

West.—So far as I can gather, you have bought your birds too late in the season for turning out of doors, and in consequence they have died from exposure before they were acclimatised. Foreign birds ought not to be put out of doors later than July, if they are intended to remain out altogether. However, you had better leave them out as they are now, as most of these should now survive the seeds of pneumonia, etc., already sown. Though, if any of the Waxbills are still alive, it would be better to bring these inside for the winter, and turn them out again in May. Foreign birds which you wish to keep out of doors altogether, should be put out in May, then by the time winter comes round, they are sufficiently established to weather winter's inclemencies. Probably the British species died owing to being newly-caught specimens, and having to subsist on dry seed instead of the saturated wild seeds they got at liberty, but this is a matter for Mr. Weston. The Foreign species you have require canary, white and spray millet seeds, greenfood, grit and cuttlebone. The piece of plant you send is from a creeper, I think, I take it to be the Wild Clematis (Traveller's Joy), and such is quite harmless to the birds.

Diet for Lemon-Crested Cockatoo (W. M.).—A seed mixture of Canary, white millet, paddy rice, hemp, oats, dari, maize, and sunflower seeds, equal parts of each, well mix, and keep a constant supply in case, also supply such ripe fruit, and greenfood, as it will eat, nuts in variety, with grit, cuttlebone and water. It can have plain biscuit, and a little plain cake, and dry potato; but do not give tea, coffee, or milk sops, table scraps and any kind of animal food whatever.

Is a Ringneck a Young Ostrich? (E.T.).—As well ask me if a sheep is a bullock, but there you are—shall I say, as you please? It is a young ring-necked Parrakeet, the other term you refer to being used is used indiscriminately, and has no real significance, save as indicating the locality certain species come from. Yes, the bird should talk, I have heard very many talented talkers of this species, but, as a rule, they take a lot of teaching. Keep it where it will have plenty of company, talk to it, and make a fuss of it generally, and it will gradually develop into loquacity. Hope you have luck with the birds. That Cowrie of yours evidently has the bump of gratitude well developed.

Breeding Java Sparrows (J. Rays). (1) They usually avail themselves of a small box, closed all round, with a round or oval hole for entrance in one side. Hay, long grass, and a few feathers will be all they require. (2) Yes, the white Java is easy to breed, but the wild species (grey Java) is less so. The young will be reared mostly on seed, but you can supply soaked nuts' eggs, to which a portion of crumbled sponge cake or crushed biscuit (or both) is added. (3) Paddy rice is a very wholesome and cheap food, which my Javas, when I kept this species, were very fond of. Staple diet Canary, white millet and millet sprays, also green food, grit, cuttlebone, and water for drinking and bathing.

Amazon with sore feet (Walsall).—I should bathe the feet in tepid water, then partially dry them and anoint with a little healing antiseptic ointment (from your chemist). If you notice any pus under the swelling, such should be pricked with a needle, the pus exuded by gentle pressure, well cleansed, and then treated as above. Instead of the sweet tea, etc., give a little Parrish's chemical food prepared as follows: Take a little boiling water, dissolve in it a lump of sugar, add chemical food to make it the colour of tea, and when cool supply to the bird; this will be wholesome, and as fruity to the bird as the tea slop. Add a few nuts to your dietary, which otherwise is about right. Give several doses of Dinneford's magnesia (one teaspoonful soaked into the boiled maize) every fourth day, but if the voidings become watery loose, you must cease giving it for a time.

An Ailing Java Sparrow (Forth View).—It appears to me very probable that the bird has strained one of its legs somehow, but you had at this juncture better leave nature to right the trouble. Stop the Epsom salts, and well colour the drinking water for a time with Parrish's Chemical Food, then if the voiding become at all moist, an occasional dose of Dinneford's magnesia will keep them regulated. Supply canary, white millet, spray millet, and a little Paddy rice, also green food, grit, and cuttlebone—continue to keep warm and quiet.

Grassfinches and Parrots (M. R.).—(1) It all depends on its size, though the breeding results are usually better where only one pair of each species is kept. They will agree with grey and green Singing Finches, providing they are not in crowded quarters. (2) Parrots take several years to fully mature the moult with your bird will be more or less intermittent, I expect, for the next year, after which it will usually take place in late autumn, but it is rather variable.

A Course of Chemical Food (Foreign Siskin).—By the above is meant colouring the bird's water with the chemical food, according to its taste; you cannot very well give it too strong; home birds, however, will not drink the water when it is highly coloured, in such cases you must only tinge the water with the ruddy hue of the chemical food. By "a course" is implied continuing the remedy till the bird is in condition again. When given regularly for a time, the chemical food has a constipating effect; this is easily remedied by a dose (half teaspoonful to an ordinary sized dock or dinner drinker) of Dinneford's magnesia. Continue the seed mixture, the little it takes will be beneficial, even as a change.

What Parrot (Crimson).—It is a Pennant Parrakeet, an Australian species, which does not rank as a talking species; in fact, is more often kept in aviaries than in cages. Nevertheless, if sufficient petting and training patience be indulged in, all Parrots and Parrakeets will respond with a word or two. Its seed mixture should consist of three parts each canary and white millet, two parts each paddy rice and oats, and one part each hemp and sunflower seeds, well mix and let the bird have a continuous supply; also supply ripe fruit, greenfood, grit, cuttlebone, and water for drinking and bathing.

Blue Bonnet Parrakeets ("Nikse").—A seed mixture of three parts each Canary and white millet seeds, two parts each oats and paddy rice, and one part each hemp and sunflower seeds, well mix and keep a continuous supply in the flight. Also supply such ripe fruit as they will take, with greenfood, grit, cuttlebone, and water for drinking and bathing; also a few nuts, if they care for them. I do not consider the bald patch calls for treatment under the conditions of your letter, the plumage will be renewed in due course. Furnish the flight with natural branches of varying thicknesses, and hang a good sized log-nest or small barrel to top of flight.

Californian Quail (Quail).—Yes, they can be left out of doors all the year round, but they will require a small, dry shed attached to the aviary, the floor of which should consist of several inches of loose, dry sand, as all Quails need a dust bath.

Foreign Bird Querists will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Burgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free; a mine of information of use and interest.

Chinese Painted Quails can be kept under the same conditions, but I expect the Californians would interfere with them in the breeding season if kept in the same aviary. The male Painted is a very beautiful bird, price 15/- to 25/- per pair. Quail eggs can be incubated under a bantam fowl, which also makes a good foster mother, but if the Quail will incubate I should leave them to bring up their own chicks.

Sawdust for Cage Tray (Constant Reader).—If you use sawdust, you must put fine netting over the tray grill, or the sawdust clinging to the food will be sure to set up bowel trouble. Peat moss litter is a splendid absorbent, but there is the same objection, and I should recommend you to use this, and to wire the gril over with half-inch mesh netting, so that if food is dropped and passes through, the bird will not be able to get at it again—of course, the netting will get fouled, and have to be scrubbed as required. It is a necessity, if the food gets dropped about, you must take means to prevent the bird picking it up when it is fouled, either by sawdust or other refuse. The above is the best method. Glad to note the bird has done so well.

A Restless Amazon (J. L. B.).—It will ultimately settle down as it becomes thoroughly accustomed to the life and surroundings of its new sphere—some individuals take much longer to do so than others. You must pet it, stand by it and talk to it as opportunity offers, put a curtain round its cage at night, leaving a space on the top open for ventilation; put in thick pieces of tree branches for it to chew up. It ought to have a continuous supply of seed, also ripe fruit and nuts. Spray the bird twice weekly with a fine spray, using a saturated solution of quassia chips for a few times, afterwards tepid water can be used, choose genial days for the purpose, and protect from draught till dry. Twice a week put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in the drinking water, and continue so long as voidings are not watery-loose. Yes, I should say the bird will ultimately become steady.

Parrakeet Queries (D. Wallice).—(1 and 3) I cannot advise you to put the Ringuecks with the small birds—the better plan would be to put up a shed at other end of aviary, large enough to have a division in the middle (wire front only) both for the Ringnecks and Alexandrines. If you will send me a ground plan of your present avairy, and a stamped addressed envelope for the Editor, I will send you a working diagram of suggested alteration, which will cost you but little more than the cage. (2 and 4) Both species rear and feed their young all right, though at times there are mishaps—do not meddle with their domestic arrangements once they start-sitting. Three, four or five eggs are usually laid, and the incubation period is about 21 days.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by G. E. Weston.

Egg Cake (Anco).—The sample you send is that of ordinary egg-cake, which can be bought at most large bird-stores and of seed dealers, while it is advertised in our columns under various names by several firms. Some splendid recipes for making egg-cakes are given in "Our Canaries" (now being published in monthly parts.

A Trio (America).—1. An excellent article on the management of Tits appeared in a recent issue; I recommend you to read it. Great Tits require soft (insectile) food, some good makes of which are advertised in our columns at really low prices—quite as cheap as one can make it up by purchasing the ingredients separately. In addition, give suitable live-foods (mealworms, small grubs, etc.), and a little seed (especially sunflower), while in the cold weather a piece of fat meat or suet is relished. 2. You could keep these Tits in pairs. They are dangerous companions for other small birds, though. 3. The wings of a Redpoll ought not to cross badly and always be carried crossed, but that they should cross occasionally as the bird moves about is unavoidable, and is no detriment to any bird as a show specimen. The red breast counts for nothing as a show point, and not many Redpolls with crimson shirt-fronts are seen at exhibitions. If a bird had a big bib and heavy flank markings (lacing), and was good in other and essential points, he could win either with a red breast or without one.

A Weed (D.T.B.).—The plant sent is pennycress; the seed is liked by many British Finches, and it is good for occasional use. Linnets, etc., can be seen feeding upon it in a wild state.

Show Cage for Blackbird (Constant Reader).—There is no set pattern and no set size for the show cage of a Blackbird. Some exhibitors like one shape and colour, and others prefer something different. Any good up-to-date cage maker would supply you with a suitable show cage. Size, about 20ins. long, 15 high, and 9 wide. Have the outside black, etc., inside and wires some shade of blue—a turquoise blue being, in my opinion, very hard to beat.

Opening Medicine (Royal).—Give the Linnets a little extra linseed for a time. The best opening medicine, in my opinion, is sulphate of soda (glauber salts). The dose varies according to circumstances, but, as an average dose, as much as will (when crushed) just lie on a sixpence, dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water, will be found to stimulate the bowels to healthy action. If a heavier dose is deemed necessary (in bad cases, or to obtain a quicker action), a half-teaspoonful of brandy should be added, which will serve to obviate any griping. A few spots of good brandy, in fact, are at all times a useful addition.

British Bird Querists should purchase our "British Bird Manual," published in two parts, "Hardbills" and "Softbills," price 1/- each, or in cloth cover together, 2/3 post free.

A Black-throated Chatterer (A. Penman).—Mr. Maxwell's Black-throated Chatterer was correctly named, and it is a true foreign bird, i.e., never likely to be found wild in the British Isles. The bird you have caught and describe is a Waxwing (sometimes, but not often, referred to as the Bohemian Chatterer). Some years huge flocks of Waxwings visit us; other years never a one will be seen. Many Waxwings are now being exhibited (note the show reports this week). The "red things" are the wax-like tippings of the wing from which the bird derives its name. Feed on soft food, ripe, soft fruit, and herries (haws, privet, elder, black, etc.) well soaked (scalded) grocers currants, and live foods, according to season. I couldn't value the bird without seeing it.

Another Waxwing (Novice).—I mention the method of feeding the Waxwing in another reply this week. A really fine and most economical stock food can be prepared by taking a tablespoonful of crushed "Melox" (obtainable at all corn and seed stores), thoroughly soaking it with hot water, and then reducing it to a crumbly consistency by adding (dry) some good make of prepared insectile food, such as is advertised in our columns at about 1s. to 1s. 6d. per pound. These birds very quickly get tame if kept in box cages and offered mealworms from the fingers. Show cage about 16in. long, 14 high, and 8 wide, black outside, light blue wires and inside. The Waxwing is very hardy, and can stand any amount of cold, if kept free of draughts and damp.

GENERAL.

Answered by The Editor.

A Photograph (J. Broad).—Many thanks; we will find a corner for the excellent photograph you send us.

An Explanation (J. S. Napier).—Thanks for your letter; contents duly noted. Glad to hear you are feeling fit once again.

On Approval (D. Hawthorn).—The birds did not become your property, because they were not approved by you, therefore the owner (the seller) must claim from the railway company for the loss of the bird which died, as you say you can prove they were both all right when despatched by you.

Acceptable Help (A. H. C. Legg).—It is very good of you to render our journal such excellent help, and we thank you most heartily. The special prize shall duly be sent and our manager will write you with reference to the "Nutshell" booklets.

A Photo (F. Botwood).—Sorry, but we are afraid this photo is too flat to reproduce satisfactorily; it is lacking in contrast. We will utilise it if at all possible.

The Bennett Case (J. Baker).—Any subscriptions to the Bennett defence fund will be welcomed, and duly acknowledged in our columns. We do not think it will be necessary to incur the expense of printing subscription lists.

POST MORTEMS.

"Ornithos."—Goldfinch was very emaciated. Death resulted from pneumonia, subsequent upon an attack of enteritis. Pneumonia is a common termination to other ailments when the system becomes depleted and weakened the lungs forming a ready nidus for the operation of harmful germs. It occurs, of course, as a disease per se, and unassociated with specific diseases at times. Treatment will vary as to symptoms displayed, but when a bird goes thick and the respirations are accelerated you may be sure fever is present and the temperature above normal. In such cases a supply of warmth is essential, bringing near the fire, or placing in cage in hot air cupboard if convenient, and the administration of febrifuges. Of the latter I find the preparation of ammonia most suitable, and preferably aromatic spirits of ammonia, given in the drinking water in doses of 10 drops combined with a sweetening agent like syrup of prunes in similar quantity. When the temperature remains high for any lengthened period pneumonia invariably results. It is, therefore, with the idea of promoting the circulation, which is always depressed when heightened temperature exists, to ward off pneumatic complications.

M. Wallis.—Septic fever in its acute form I believe to be the cause of death. You must send me another bird to examine, should one die; it is not always possible to definitely diagnose this disease in one specimen, the post mortem lesions varying very much in extent in individual cases.

Singing Contests.

CASTLEFORD.

Weekly Linnet contest held George and Dragon Hotel before a large company; but we had it dark before we could get through. 28 birds entered. Result:—1st and 3rd, Dobson; 2nd, Nelson.—W. Dobson, Hon. Sec.

ERITH (Kent).

On Dec. 11th, there was a meeting held at the Royal Alfred, Manor Road, and we started a bird singing club; we have 16 members, and a radius of five miles, open to any fancier therein.—J. Baker, Hon. Sec.

GLASGOW.

City of Glasgow Linnet S.C. usual singing contest held December 10th, at Mr. Muir's, Salt Market. 1st and 2nd, McMillan; 3rd, Pullin. Judge, Mr. S. Pullin; timekeeper, Mr. Kemp. Contest next Saturday, December 17th, at 4 p.m.—W. Ross.

SHEFFIELD.

Weekly Linnet singing contest held Fitzwilliam Hotel, Milford-street, Attercliffe Common, December 11th, when 14 birds entered. 1st prize, Brown, 72 secs.; 2nd, Thompson, 70 secs.; 3rd, Driver, 59 secs.; Brown, 45 secs.; Sam, 44 secs.; Thompson, 42 secs. Contest every week-end, also on December 18th, when all old members should attend.—J. Grundy.

WARRINGTON.

Warrington Linnet S.A. open contest for Linnets, to be held Club House, Mersey Hotel, Mersey Street, Jan. 2nd. Entrance fee 1s. each. First pair birds to be hung 1.30 o'clock. Entries taken until 2 p.m. For time only. We would like to see some of the old Linnet fanciers compete against the novices, for out of 18 members we only have two old ones. What has become of them? Have the novices frightened them? If that is the case we will be pleased to give them every assistance. New members are allowed to join until the 14th January. I hope this will catch the eyes of some of them, and induce them to again become members.—C. W. Corbett, Hon. Sec.

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

A Friendly Great Tit.

A friend had in his garden three nine-inch flower pots stood in each other. One day when in his garden he noticed a bird come from these pots. Thinking it was searching for food, he did not disturb it. After a few days he noticed two birds come from them, and on lifting the two top pots he found they had built a nest in the bottom pot. They have since reared five young.—Sent by Willie Wallis (age 12), 5, Mansard Terrace, Dartmouth, Devon.

*A Clever Rook.

One Sunday morning a signalman threw a biscuit out on the line. A Rook came and broke the biscuit into five pieces. He ate one and hid the other four. One he hid under some sticks, another under a piece of paper, another under a stone, and the fifth under a wooden plank. About a quarter to ten he came for two of the pieces, and ate the others for his dinner about a quarter past one.—Sent by Lucy Paul (age 13), Home Farm, Ripley.

*An Artful Sparrow.

A male Sparrow brought to his nest a goose feather. His next-door neighbour, a female Sparrow, seeing her chance, slipped in and seized the feather, but instead of carrying it to her nest hid it in a tree. The male bird, finding it gone, rushed into the other's nest, expecting to see it there; he went away disappointed, and flew right away as if to repair the loss. When he was out of sight the thief fetched the feather again and lined her own nest with it.—Sent by Chas. Bridges, 15, Dovetail Street, Tailsworth, near Manchester.

Correspondence.

To Know the Sex of Mealy Redpolls.

SIR,—I have two Mealy Redpolls, and one of them has a red breast and head, and the other has a red head but no red on the breast, though it is well pencilled on sides. At the vent it has dark feathers; is light feathered on the breast. Is the larger bird of the two. I would like to know if it is a hen. Can any reader enlighten me as to this?

TOLLCROSS.

The Disputed British Goldfinch at Glasgow Show.

SIR,—I am extremely sorry to state that the Finch which was in dispute as to its nationality has now gone over to the great majority. As previously stated, this Finch never moulted, which was the cause of the trouble. I trust that the judge, and the expert he called in, should they be disturbed in their peaceful slumbers by the apparition of a Goldfinch hovering over them, will take it as only a reminder to them of how a British Finch should really appear. May it be impressed upon their minds for their judgment in future.!

ALEX. PORTEOUS.

Is Crushed Hemp Seed Poison to Birds?

SIR,—In answer to Mr. G. E. Weston's direct inquiry as to how I have got my information, my authority for making this sweeping statement came through my experimenting some four years ago with young Norwich Canaries. I found when using crushed hemp seed (crushed with an ordinary egg mill) mixed with egg food, I lost one nest of four promising youngsters. Another nest of three I gave soaked rape seed with egg food and they thrived apace. About this time I was being visited by an old Indian aviculturist, Mr. E. B. George, of Calcutta. I told him of my experience when using crushed hemp, and he assured me that it was a recognised fact in the Indian bazaars that crushed hemp contained a big amount of poison, and that the natives would only use whole hemp, although crushed millet formed the principal diet for young birds. Seeking for knowledge on seeds, I possessed myself of the book on "Bird Seeds" (from your office) by Mr. G. H. Boaler. As Mr. Weston enumerates that paragraph in his open letter, I need not repeat what he (Mr. Boaler) says. Further, in the same book Mr. Elfick states: "For young Canaries when separated from their parents it (hemp) should be used with great discretion, as it is apt to engorge the liver; if so, congestion ensues, and in the early days of the moult you may expect to lose by atrophy some promising youngsters." Now another old proverb: "Prevention is better than cure"; I prefer the prevention. As Mr. Weston states, my contention can be easily determined, and only so by a skilled analyst. Until such time, I am quite willing to rely on my old friend Mr. E. B. George's word, also willing to give any knowledge I possess on seeds for the benefit of the Fancy at large.

Judging the Judge of Foreign Birds at the L.C.B.A. Show.

SIR,—I fear Mr. Frostick must be afflicted with extremely complicated work if he finds that judging Foreign birds is "the most simple job" he knows. At any rate, I was judging them at the above show, and he wasn't, so perhaps I may be permitted to hold a different opinion. If it is difficult to adjudicate in a class of excellent British Thrushes, for example, where does the easiness come in in the case of a class of Tanagers of various species, most of which deserve a 1st prize? I find, for instance, a Necklace, a Superb, a Black and Blue, etc. etc., all looking lovely, and really not one perhaps more so than another; yet according to Mr. Frostick, it is perfectly simple. There need be no hesitation, no walking backwards and forwards biting one's pencil, you walk up to the first bird that is perfect and give it first prize! Oh yes! absolutely simple! In that case I really need not have troubled to have returned from Italy to do this most simple job; I might have delegated it to my bird-man. One certainly does seem to receive on occasions more kicks than halfpence! Mr. Frostick writes of my having hurried my work of judging. I don't think I am ever slow in anything I do, but, without wishing to find unnecessary fault, I might say that had the classes been in order when I arrived I should have had another three-quarters of an hour to spare. The cages were anywhere and everywhere, and one or two British birds were mixed up with a Bird of Paradise, etc., and even after I had given some of the awards the numbers were changed, and I was obliged to readjust and alter them in my judging-book. Officials were most courteous and apologetic, and I am sure that the chaos was their misfortune and not their fault; but there it was. I should be curious to know how others would have judged. No doubt some exhibitor who did not own the greater Bird of Paradise, would say—"Ridiculous! my Blue-tailed Patagonian Screamer ought certainly to have been first"—etc. In that Parrot class it was entirely a matter of opinion as to which species the prizes should be awarded. I certainly allotted none except to birds which were in beautiful condition. The Yellow-winged Sugar Bird which won a 1st was not so rare as some of the others, but he was perfect, and fully deserved to be at the top. I think that if people are not exhibiting it does not exactly concern them whether the judge gives satisfaction or whether he doesn't!

HUBERT D. ASTLEY.

Novice Classes for British Birds at the Palace Show.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Everett, certainly more than one species of British bird will have to compete in each of the novice classes. Mr. Everett, however, may rest assured that full justice will be done to each exhibit, as that well known fancier, Mr. H. Norman, has been specially engaged to judge the novice classes. Perhaps, sir, you will be good enough to allow me to reply to other correspondents by stating that the British bird champion section is as last year, with the following exceptions: a class has been provided for Redpolls, any species, also a class for Skylarks.

J. W. RAMSDEN, Show Manager.

Untimely Death of a Noted Crest-bred.

SIR,—We regret to say that on the arrival of our birds home from Gateshead Show we found our young green Crestbred dead in bottom of cage. This bird has won firsts at Manchester and Cambridge, and thirds at Cheltenham, Nottingham and Birmingham in 1910 crestbred classes. It is rather a loss to us, as we were looking forward to great things from him next breeding season. We bred him from a yellow Crestbred cock and variegated Crest hen. He was massive in build, well feathered, and had exceptional browing, and afforded an object lesson to those fanciers who say yellow blood is of no use to the Crest fancier.

EVINS BROS.

A Working Man's Loss.

SIR,—I entered nine birds at the Launceston show, at which five classes were cancelled. Four of these birds were entered for Cardiff the following day, travelling to that show by night mail. I received ticket on Monday morning and found out that only one could be shown at Launceston—class 12 unflighted, which won for me 1st at Liskeard, 2nd at Exeter, 3rd Paignton, 3rd St. Austell and 1st at St. Columb. I kept him back from Cardiff (the entry fee was 1s. 6d.). He came back from Launceston with a vhe and when I came home I could not tell whether it was my unflighted or not, as it was nearly dead. I did all I could for him, and am sorry to say it died on the following Saturday. It was one of the best I ever bred. I refused 50s. for him at the last Plymouth Show. It was in the best of condition. Did any other fancier have a similar experience at Launceston Show?

H. WILLS.

Who is Auld Reekie?

SIR,—This is a question which has been occupying the minds of some members of the Edinburgh N.C. and Mule Breeders Society since their last meeting, at which a gold badge sent by that anonymous donor, "Auld Reekie," was presented to the owner of the bird which carried off two cups at their annual show. In his covering letter to the secretary, "Auld Reekie" made a very remarkable statement that he had been at the show and that as a lover of birds he had been much struck by the remarkable quality of the bird which won the cups, but he didn't know who owned it. Now does a lover of birds usually visit a show and see a remarkable bird with prize tickets, become so enamoured of it as to decide to send a gold badge to its owner, and yet not inquire whose it is? If he could pay for a gold badge, why not table twopence for a catalogue, or, if without his purse, ask someone standing by to whom it belonged? And then he remains anonymous. Is this because he doesn't wish to be run in for a yearly badge, or is he possessed of modesty that far exceeds that of the crimson-tipped flower so deeply lamented in Burns' immortal ode? In the meantime we can only in wondering amazement launch forth into boundless space the question—"Who is Auld Reekie"?

A SEEKER AFTER TRUTH.

The Lutterworth and District Society.

SIR,—In answer to the letter signed C. Brooks, I think it would be better if he stated the truth. As to poisoning the members' minds, I must remind you, Mr. Brooks, that several members, including myself, resigned our membership because you were appointed secretary for the present year. As to a man coming fourteen miles to judge, that is untrue, also my condemning everybody and everything connected with the Society, and I throw it back in your teeth. When I had anything to say I said it at the meeting. No doubt you will remember the time when your wife was in the show room the whole time the judge was judging, when I myself received a 2s. 11d. article for a 4s. prize (if this is denied I will forward the ticket for the Editor's inspection). These matters I told you of, and when I did so, both you and the president said it was jealousy on my part. That was the word you both used when you could not have your own way. I repeat that it was a two-men society. As to paying subscriptions, I paid mine in advance; also as to collecting the 60 odd entries the night before the show, it would be better if you told the marines that tale. I note you state you object to a man who can't speak his mind; you have had a piece of my mind at the late meetings, which you are aware of. I hope you are satisfied now you have got the copy of the letter of Nov. 5th (which was not published). I must remind you that I did not obtain your address from the quarter you stated. This will be my last letter, but I hope some other fanciers of Lutterworth and District will answer you and prove that the statements in my letters are correct.

F. CLARKE.

[Mr. Brooks can briefly reply, if he chooses, then this correspondence must close.—EDITOR.]

Cowdenbeath Show.

SIR,—I notice some comments about the show which was held at Cowdenbeath last week and I think they are only right. However, we hope another year to remedy this state of affairs. We have collected 36 names of cage bird fanciers (at the time of writing) and hope to get 50 yet, who are favourable to the starting of a new cage bird society which will be confined to cage bird men only. A meeting will be held in the Arcade Temperance Hotel on Saturday 1st at 7 o clock for the purpose of starting this new society, when we hope all interested will attend. I may here state that the old society have decided to hand over the cage bird section to us if we go on, so I would appeal to all true fanciers to join and help us to have a first class show here next year.

JOSEPH R. REID.

British Birds at Lancashire Shows.

SIR,—Having always been a reader and a great follower of all discussions in your valuable paper CAGE BIRDS, I beg to ask a small favour of you, viz., to print this letter. In certain parts of Lancashire the different C.B.S.'s have held open shows this year and to my knowledge three of them have been patronised by two or three large exhibitors who have simply wiped the slate in the British classes. Now, what puzzles me is, why do these exhibitors not get their cages up in an ordinary style? The poor judge cannot get them out of his mind, and I dare say his thoughts are, "Now I must be careful and place them in the same order as I did at so and so show." I have no doubt these cages look very artistic; but do they win for their owner the coveted prizes with the money attached? I and others (exhibitors and fanciers) are positive it is not the birds. This sort of thing cannot be passed unnoticed. It simply means that two or three large exhibitors will have the British classes to themselves another year. Will these classes pay then? Are the novices and others going to pay entry fees to pay these large exhibitors their prize money? I don't think. What is to prevent them making all exhibitors show in cages of uniform pattern, colour and size? The alternative, which is better still, is to make the British classes limited to a certain radius only. I must thank CAGE BIRDS for all the good things it has given us lately; they cannot be too highly spoken of.

BROWN 'UN.

Lizards at Sunderland Show.

SIR,—I would like to say first of all that there was no intention on my part of casting any reflection upon either Mr. Dixon (the judge), or Mr. Jeffrey (the exhibitor), as the former could not in any case be conversant with the rules of the Sunderland Society, and the latter may have entered the bird under a misapprehension, and probably did so. You will have noted from the schedule and catalogue which Mr. Jeffrey sent to you that the other sections of the show (which was a members' show only) Norwich, Crests, Cinnamous, Yorks., Borders and A.O.V. classes are all distinctly classified the schedule stating plainly which classes were for old birds and which for young birds, the old birds representing an open show and the young birds the members' show (vide club report in CAGE BIRDS). On the other hand there was nothing in the schedule in reference to the Lizard classes, these being worded exactly as they have been for many years past in the members' schedule, the only difference being the addition of a pair class. There is a rule in the Sunderland Society to the effect that "all birds shown in members' classes must be young birds bred by the exhibitor, except in pair classes." On this occasion, although the other sections were distinctly classified for old birds and young birds, Lizards were left just as they always have been, and there being nothing in the schedule stating otherwise, the other members naturally inferred that they were for young birds alone, the old birds going into the pair class which was provided for them; otherwise there would probably have been a much larger entry in the Lizard section, and the class for Gold Clear Cap would have undoubtedly contained more than three. Hence my comment.

YOUR REPORTER.

Concerning Cats.

SIR,—Can you tell me how to feed a blue Persian neuter cat for show, and what dose of syrup Eastoni and what dose of Santonine to give same cat (full grown)? I may state I was the means of CAGE BIRDS being kept in stock by a newsagent in Dennistoun, Glasgow.

GRAHAM RUSSELL.

Though knowing something about them, we do not care to open our columns to cat matters, but as you seem in some difficulty, and there are other readers who may be in the same plight, here is our reply:—The best way to feed a cat, to get it into show condition, is to give it as much variety in its food as possible, something different every day and every meal, meals of all kinds, cooked and uncooked, vegetables (lentils are especially good), fish, cooked and uncooked), of course taking care all uncooked meat and fish is perfectly fresh and clean. Nothing, however, can equal a freshly-killed mouse or Sparrow, and nothing is enjoyed so much. A little cod liver oil or malt extract is good for imparting a sleek appearance to the coat, and is also fattening and a good tonic, and prevents worms increasing when present. The dose of santonine is three grains for a large, full-grown cat; less to smaller cats. The dose of syrup Eastoni is 2 to 20 drops, beginning with 2 drops, and adding a drop each time until 20 is reached. When a cat is being "fed up" a cooling powder once a week is often an advantage. Most cats will eat lentils if prepared as follows: Take two tablespoonfuls of the fine, thin kind, place in a saucepan with enough boiling water to cover, add a little salt, stir until soft, about 15 minutes, adding more water or gravy, if it gets too stiff; then add a piece of butter or dripping the size of a walnut. Give warm with bits of liver or meat chopped up with it; if made with all gravy, so much the better.

The New Skipton and District Cage Bird Society.

SIR,—Our Society is going ahead. Seventeen members joined at our meeting on Monday night last. Our two secretaries have changed places—Mr. Roberts is Hon. Sec. and Mr. E. Gill the Assistant Sec. We intend arranging for a members' show at our next meeting.

Norwich Hens Wrong-classed at the Recent Paignton Show.

SIR,—Can a Norwich be too high a colour to be eligible to compete in a hen class? This is the pith of a controversy at the recent Torbay O.S. Show, where we exhibited two buffs, one a grizzle tail, the other a cap mkd., the latter having previously won a first in a hen class under Mr. J. B. Dyer. The discussion was chiefly about the grizzle tail, as this was the first time it had been shown in second feather. Mr. Roo's (who wrong classed the birds) opinion was shared by Messrs. F. Redwood, T. H. Veale, and T. Pope (Sec. of the Western C.O.S.), the latter stating that colour was the only safe guide in sexing Norwich. Messrs. J. Bastard, P. W. Mugford, and W. Hodge, members of the Committee, thought an injustice was done to us, as they considered the birds to be hens; and I might add that theirs (the three latter gentlemen) was not a hasty conclusion as they had visited my bird rooms and seen the birds in question several times before the show. We saw an appeal in CAGE BIRDS for entries by the Cardiff Sec., and thought we would include this bird in the few entries we made, as we understood Mr. J. H. Payne to be a specialist in Norwich. The result was as we anticipated, Mr. Payne considered the bird to be a hen by giving the bird a second prize in the Hen Class. The first prize bird being a yellow made this bird a winner over all buffs and some yellows, probably, as there were 19 in the class. I need hardly say they are a very smart pair of good sized birds and most excellent in colour, the cap mkd. being what is termed red hot for a hen. Mr. Ramsden, your colour food, we think, is the cause of the trouble!

The Open Letter to the Cage Bird Union.

SIR,—Mr. F. Johnson states that owing to the rought time the C.B.U. has been having, and also to the fact that he has not heard of any faking or dishonourable practices taking place lately, they have now got nothing to do, so are taking "a breather." Well, let's hope they will soon get the necessary breath to start again, in earnest. That R.S.P.C.A. job is still waiting for someone to take it on, and the donation promised of £10 does not look like our National Society being out of a job. That suggestion of a pair of white gloves won't do for this season, Mr. Johnson, though I would like to suggest that if it ever should fall to my lot to present the worthy president with anything white, I would rather it were a pair of socks to keep his tootsies warm and nice. Re novice question, Mr. J. is wrong on this, according to rule 12 in the rule book for 1910, issued to the members of our premier society in these parts, and the stronghold of the Cage Bird Union, which reads as follows: That the definition of a novice be "one who has never won a first, second or third in open or amateur competition at any show." That was the note I had, and still have, in my eye. But I will neither deprive you of your stablo fork nor ask you to use it on an operation to your own eye. I have no quarrel with you to wish you hurt. It was the novices and their British birds that I was pleading for; did you note that? The novice who possesses a Canary good enough to win a first in the open, I say his place is in the open, because his bird can "face the music." I have no plea for him, but for the novice who happens to possess a good British bird which gets in the open money, and the authorities make him a professional with his Canaries, though he can scarcely get in the tickets with them in members' novice classes! Is it common sense? I say again, cannot we have one rule for all the kingdom regarding British birds and the novice? That is, where there are no novice classes provided for him at open shows, allow him to show them in the open classes without any fear of his wins throwing him out of the novice section with Canaries. This will hurt no one, but certainly be a help to all. Or, better still, try to induce other societies to follow the lead of Blackburn, who are all having a distinct class for novice British; also the coming Palace show, who are putting four classes on for the novice British exhibitor. More power to them, say I. But the classes may want nursing for a time, if there are many districts like ours. A week ago I attended the finest members' show I ever saw, held by a local society only about a year of age. There were upwards of 230 exhibits, and everything else to make a perfect show, except one—the British section, which totalled nine birds in three classes! I have attended similar shows in the south, where the number of British staged was in keeping with the number of Canaries shown. When I commented on the fact to the officials, and told them of the restriction put upon the novice in our part of the country, they informed me that in their part of the country the novice Canary exhibitor had no restriction placed upon him regarding his British birds. Why cannot we have the same rule in this part of the country, and give the novice a chance with his British to fill our shows, and induce others to take up this branch of our hobby?

The Properties of Charlock Seed.

SIR,—Would some kind reader of CAGE BIRDS give me information regarding the properties and use of charlock (or ketlock seed as it is called in Lincolnshire), as we can obtain it plentifully from the thrashing machines. Is it all right for Canaries and Goldfinches, mixed with hemp and Canary and linseeds? Or which seed is the best for Canaries in a cold room?

ANXIOUS NOVICE.

An Outdoor Birdroom.

SIR,—My aviary I built entirely myself, and it was also my own design. It is 8ft. long, 5ft. wide, and 7ft. 3ins. to centre beam. It is lined inside with ⅜in. matchboard and sawdust, ½ in. outside, and 2ins. sq. frame, making a thickness 3⅜ins. It has four windows, two in front and two on other side of roof, running in direct line with the two in front. It is built in sections to take down with sawdust intact, and stands 1ft. off the ground. The birds I am keeping at present are Norwich, and I hope to extend my Fancy to foreign birds. I may say that CAGE BIRDS has been of great value to me.

E. JONES.

A Curious Happening at Uddingston Show.

SIR,—With reference to Dr. Syson's letter in your last issue re above, as I resent that gentleman's misstatement that I had his bird reclassed, I beg your indulgence for space to give the true facts of the case. As the bird in question carried a good deal of "mealing" on the back and particularly on the head and neck, I examined it very carefully in the best of daylight and came to the conclusion that it was a rich-coloured buff. I then asked the other two judges, separately, what colour they made it, and as both replied confirming my opinion I reported the matter to the show officials. One of them (I believe it was the president, Mr. Prentice) remarked that it was a pity if the owner could not have a run for his money," whereupon the secretary, in the same sporting spirit, said he would transfer the bird to the buff class. He did so, and I was instructed to re-judge it, with the result that it won 1st prize. On the face of these facts, I fail to see what the Doctor is making a song about. My own impression, which is shared by a good many fanciers hereabout, is that his letter was written for the double purpose of having a slap at me in my judging capacity, and as an advertising "puff" for himself. As for the former, of course he is entitled to his own opinion; regarding the latter, his appetite for advertisement per the "Correspondence" and "Twitterings" columns must be insatiable, otherwise he might well have been satisfied with the publicity already attached to the particular win.

Alleged Stained Linnets at York Show.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Richardson's letter in last week's issue, I wish to say that I still strongly object to his phrase "the one put down at York." Anyone reading it can only take one meaning from it, and that is that Mr. R. accuses me of staining a Linnet and putting it on the York show bench and having it disqualified there. Now, he knows this is a gross falsehood, and so he shuffles from the York show bench to the members' headquarters in North Street. Getting so far, why was he not straightforward enough to go a bit farther and state the full facts of the case? Now, Mr. Editor, we will get to plain facts. I was asked by the members of York Cage Bird Society to give a paper at their headquarters, All Saints' Schoolroom, York. This I did to the best of my ability on the evening of April 19, 1909. I chose for my subject: "The Linnet and Hybrid Breeding," and the paper was duly published in CAGE BIRDS. To illustrate the lecture I brought three actual specimens of Linnets, one of which I purposely stained so that my audience could contrast a faked specimen with a natural coloured bird, and see how the faking business was carried on. Now, sir, to my mind it is meanness of the most despicable kind for Mr. Richardson to try and brand me as a faker, and to try and give readers the impression that I staged a Linnet on the York show bench, and had it "put down." Besides, he occupied the chair the evening I gave the paper, and knew for what purpose the Linnet was stained and brought there. These are the true and honest facts of the case, and I should feel obliged if Mr. Richardson will come forward as a gentleman and remove the slur he has put upon my character.

A Peep at Gateshead Show.

SIR,—I rather agree with "A Country Fancier" that one gets tired of "wrangles." How we all revel in nice acounts of our "birdie friends" little families, and home life. It is a real relish to me to reach quite unpretentious narratives about some quite ordinary bird that is tame and "knowing." I saw the grand Gateshead show last week. How often have I been told the Nightingale was a shabby little brown bird? Nothing of the sort—he's beautiful! Such a grand, bold look, and a carriage of his person not unlike a Robin. There were Bullfinches as big as hassocks—what size, and what colour! The same of the Greenfinches. My heart warmed to the Norwich Plainheads, but I can hardly go into Canaries, or I should never stop. On every side there were the cornerstones of somebody's room. Being immensely interested in Britishers, I was very astonished and surprised to see cardless exquisite specimens of Goldfinch-Canaries. I read you never want to part with a hen that can breed light feathers, and here they are in plenty—tight, trim, elegant, and unacknowledged. Wasn't I pleased on coming round a corner unexpectedly to see signs of recognition of me in the scions of my own house! I told them they were too young and small for their company, but I thought I liked little ones best. I am stopping short the gorgeous foreigners so well cared for and brilliant. Some of them were at Newcastle, and some of the natives I rejoiced to meet again. The Redstart is adorable. The Wryneck looked very composed. The Goldfinches were tip-top treasures for somebody. My compliments to CAGE BIRDS and staff, with thanks for happy hours from A BIRDIE WOMAN.

A Little Encouragement for Show Secretaries.

SIR,—I was very pleased to see a letter in your last issue re above from Mr. F. C. Faulkner. I think many fanciers and exhibitors think the secretary is the one being in the world to abuse, and if they can get a shot at him they will do so on the first opportunity. During my term of secretaryship I have found many fanciers who will appreciate the amount of work a secretary has to do when conducting an open show, and thank him on the return of his birds and the prompt payment of prize money. A great many fanciers seem to think that they have only to give their orders when to send their birds off, stating the day, also the time, thinking the secretary has Alladin's lamp in his pocket, can rub it, and the cases are at their destination. It must he admitted that it can he done in the case of one or two, hut when it comes to nearer one hundred, it cannot be done. A secretary has to make his arrangements heforehand, and if fanciers would leave him to carry them out, without wanting him to alter them, there would be fewer complaints. Here is one instance of what I have had to put up with over our late Leicester show. I overlooked an exhibitor winning a 2nd prize in a certain class, when forwarding his other prize money (which was sent within three days of the closing of the show). If I did not send it him, he wrote, hy Tuesday morning (December 13), he should place the matter in other hands. Now, Mr. Editor, what do you think of this treatment, considering there had been no correspondence over this matter with the exception of the letter referred to? I have written to him, pointing out that our show was held under C.B.U. rules, and referred him to rule 17; so the balance will not in this instance be paid before the 28 days allowed. So please note that all prize money has not been paid. Then there is the matter of late entries, which makes things worse for poor Mr. Secretary. At our late show I had over 100 letters with entries in Tuesday and Wednesday. Cage lahels have to he got out, names and addresses, and the birds entered up in their respective classes, and everything got in order for the printers and judging to commence at 9 o'clock Friday morning! The amount of sleep to be got is precious little; and you do all this for ahuse! I think the same experience applies to other secretaries. Now, exhibitors, do give a little more thought to Mr. Secretary, and instead of saying nasty things about him, and making him disgusted with his joh (how many secretaries that are fanciers and do not get any pay whatever for the large amount of work done, say they will never take another open show on?), do give him encouragement.

J. A. TYLER.
Hon. Sec. Leicester C.B.S.

SIR,—I desire to put on record the excellent manner in which my exhibits were packed and returned to me from the late Gateshead Show. My hirds arrived home (London) at 10.45 p.m. same day as the show closed (Saturday) which I think is truly remarkahle. I can only mark my appreciation—which I consider a duty—by tendering Messrs. Holden and Curry my sincerest thanks and gratitude for the kindly consideration and attention extended to me and I assure them I shall not forget the "Geordies" on some future occasion.

A. J. A. MARLEY.

SIR,—Seeing the letter in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, re the above, I should like to mention in regard to the L. and P.O.S. autumn show, that I was agreeahly surprised at the way in which exhibitors expressed their thanks, or acknowledged the receipt of their prize money. Nearly everyone who received money due from this show very kindly acknowledged same, many passing some very pleasant remarks regarding the L. and P.O.S., for which, on behalf of the committee, I should like to tender thanks. I quite agree with Mr. Faulkner that these small things encourage a secretary greatly, as it is not all honey. We do our best, if we sometimes fail.

SOME PROPOSED NEW CAGE BIRD SOCIETIES.

Newport (Mon.) and Dist.

SIR, It has been decided to call a meeting for the 20th December at the Bush Hotel, Newport, with a view to forming a cage bird society. All interested are asked to attend.

J. HAMMETT.
56, Milman Street, Newport.

Walsall and District

SIR.—A meeting was held at the Vine Hotel, Cross Street, Walsall, on December 7th, and a society was formed to be known as the Walsall and District Cage Bird Society. The next meeting will be held on Wednesday, December 21st, at 8 p.m. Business: Fixing rules, subscription, and election of officers. Will any fancier in this district wishing to join the new club kindly attend?

FRANK PRICE,
Secretary pro tem.
18, Milton Street, Walsall.

Springburn and District.

SIR,—Kindly permit me space in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, for a few remarks re the above, with a view to holding a conference of all the fanciers in Springburn and neighbourhood to consider the formation of a cage bird club. I think we should be able to form an excellent society in this district, as the field of operation is both large and rich, there being a number of diligent fanciers anxiously waiting for someone to take the first step. Two weeks ago I read a letter in these columns on the subject signed J. Mosshouse. I beg to direct that gentleman or any other interested in the movement to Mr. J. Waugh, 489, Springhurn Road, secretary of the late Springburn Club; he will render every assistance possible to carry this movement to a successful issue.

J. MCLEOD.

North Shields and District.

SIR,—On November 30 a party of local fanciers of cage hirds met at 37, Howdon Road, North Shields, to consider the formation of a bird club in the district. Seventeen members turned up at the appointed time, and it was decided to start a club at once, and to name it the "North Shields and Dist. Cage Bird Club." A chairman, a secretary, and a working committee were appointed. Interesting advice on bird life was given us by some of the most notable fanciers of the North, viz., Messrs. R. McVay (British birds), Mr. Whittaker (Border Fancies), Mr. Wilson, of Tynemouth, M. King P. Main, and many others. Our meetings are to he held monthly on the first Wednesday of the month. The next meeting is to be held on December 14, when Mr. Dohinson, of Seaton Deleval, has kindly consented to read us a paper on "The Norwich Canary." All local fanciers are invited to attend. Particulars of subscriptions, etc., can be had from the secrotary, R. P. Fox, 22, Waterville Road, North Shields, or from the chairman, Mr. W. Hunter. Place of meeting, 37, Howdon Road, North Shields. Time, 7.30.

R. P. Fox, Sec.

Sheffield.

SIR,—A very large and enthusiastic meeting was held in the Norfolk Hotel Cafe, on December 12, to consider the advisahility of forming a new society for Sheffield. Mr. T. Dawn was elected to the chair. After the chairman's remarks a general discussion was entered into, after which it was unanimously decided to form a society to be called the Sheffield Ornithological Society, after which the following officers were elected:—Chairman, Mr. T. Dawn; vice-chairman, Mr. J. Woodall; secretaries, Messrs. T. Bishop and R. Colton; treasurer, Mr. Drabble; committee, Messrs. Fletcher, Wilkinson, Smith, Somerfield, Turner, Naylor, Milne, Marshall, Hadkin, H. Bishop, Crookes, Drahble, Bartholme, P. Walsh. It was unanimously decided to hold a large all-England show, a members' back-end show, and a first feather show, lectures, bird-washing competitions, lantern lectures, etc. The meetings are to be held the first Tuesday in each month. Next meeting, Norfolk Street Cafe, second Tuesday in January, for adopting rules, election of president, vice-presidents, etc. On the first Tuesday in February a pair show will be held, for best matched pairs for breeding, 5s. for the best and 2s. 6d. for second pair, and 1s. 6d. for third pair. All given by friends.

An Accrington Watch Competition.

SIR,—On December 8th, one of our members called my attention to a letter in CAGE BIRDS of December 3rd, signed "Lancashire Lad." Through pressure of business I have not had time to even cut the leaves of the last three issues, let alone read the contents, or I should have answered "Lancashire Lad's" letter sooner. I wish to inform him that it was not on account of so few having entered that the date of closing was extended, but it was the fact of so many sheets [illegible] returned that compelled us to postpone the competition. If "Lancashire Lad" will look up his CAGE BIRDS as far back as Sept. 3rd he will see an appeal from me to those who had sheets in hand, asking to have them returned at their earliest convenience. With what result—I will tell you. About six returns up to the end of September. In the first week of October I tried my persuasive powers once more, this time by circular, to one hundred and twenty-one secretaries of cage bird societies, and would you believe it, Mr. Editor, I have had one solitary return up to date! In conclusion, does "Lancashire Lad" know if the sheet on which he signed his name has been returned to me? Does he consider it fair to close the competition before we have satisfied ourselves that everyone who may have contributed towards our success had an equal chance in the competition, seeing there are one hundred and twenty sheets not yet to hand?

ALFRED TAYLOR, Hon. Sec.

British and Foreign Birds at the L.C.B.A. Show.

SIR,—I am sorry that when I wrote my note re the Spanish Magpie. I had forgotten the Blue-winged Magpie of Spain and Portugal, and I have to thank Mr. Frostick for his reminder. I have been under the impression that this uncommon bird is only found in very restricted localities in these two countries, and I now learn for the first time from Mr. Frostick's letter that it is found "in large flocks" in Africa. The allied species Cyanopica cyana of Japan resembles C. Cooke so completely that it has been asserted, I know not with how much authority, that there is no difference, and that the presence of the Blue Pie in Spain is accounted for by importations from the Far East. Mr. Frostick is, of course, quite entitled to his own opinion of the simplicity of foreign bird judging, as are those who differ from him. I know that Mr. Frostick thinks that even the judging of British birds admits of great exactitude, for I have heard him, after having judged these, express himself on the second day of the show to the effect that if he had his task to do all over again he would not alter a single one of his decisions. It goes without saying that anyone who is so certain of his own judgment as this would not see much difficulty in the task, and that he should consider it "child's play" is only natural. There are others, however, and I think that if such classes of foreign birds as were at the L.C.B.A. were judged separately by a dozen of the most experienced judges, there would be a dozen different placings of the awards. For an answer to his note re the Crosshill, I would refer Mr. Frostick to the drawings of the wings of the White-winged and Two-barred Crossbill, which were in your hands before his letter was written, and to my article accompanying the same.

HENRY J. FULLJAMES.

[Owing to pressure upon our space this week, the article mentioned by Mr. Fulljames has had to be held over.—EDITOR.]

Tin-lined Seed-boxes at Scottish Yorkshire Shows.

SIR,—"Onlooker" must be a very simple-minded person indeed, thinking little of, and weighing less, the indelible words he puts in print. Quoting from his second letter, he says: "I find that Mr. Barron has been fairly roused by the remarks in my first letter concerning tin-lined seed-boxes at S.Y.C.C. shows. I wrote this letter by no means to injure the S.Y.C.C. Mr. Barron suggests that I intended to do so, and makes me appear as one who knew these seed-boxes were there for a special purpose. I said, and still say, that it would be an easy matter for a judge to know the cage-owners if they continue using such seed-boxes." Now, "Onlooker," according to this, your second writing of the same remark, you imply that the judge with the knowledge of the ownership of the tin-lined seed-boxes has the power (for knowledge is power) placed in his hands to do one thing or another. You give no room for honesty of purpose either on the judge's or the competitor's part; therefore, what use can the judges make of this knowledge you say they have and will have before the shows are finished? You craftily conceal the names you are trying to throw suspicion on, and, more than that, your attempt at casting doubt on the competitors and judges do's not do you credit. You say you did not intend to injure the S.Y.C.C.; but I make bold to say that your attempt at harm is greater than all the good intentions you are trying to make us believe you have for the Scottish Yorkshire Club. Had your first letter contained the simple suggestion of a standard cage you would have thrown out a valuable suggestion to the S.Y.C.C. for consideration, but instead you cloak this suggestion with an attempt at tarnishing fair names. You say you are not a member of the S.Y.C.C., but as you labour this point so much, I am almost forced to believe you are writing as an interested party, and you need not again say you are an onlooker. You say I am roused. Man! I'm fairly boiling!

The Protection of British-bird keepers.

THE R.S.P.C.A. versus BENNETT.

SIR,—The above society have now made their application for an order directing the magistrate to state a case for appeal to the High Court against this decision dismissing the society's summons against Mr. Bennett, and the matter will come before the Divisional Court possibly in the course of next week. The case will be a test case as to the meaning of the words "recently taken" in the Wild Birds' Protection Acts, and the Society's contention must be strenuously resisted in the interests of all persons concerned with cage bird keeping. We understand that many of your readers are prepared to form a fund to assist our client to fight the case properly. The time has now come for action, and we shall be glad to know what sum can be relied upon.

ODY AND WILMOT.

[We shall be pleased to acknowledge in our columns any donations, however small, which readers care to send to assist Mr. Bennett to adequately defend the position of the British bird-keeper against the latest oppressive move of the R.S.P.C.A. It is not large amounts that are wanted (though these, of course, will be welcomed), for if everyone interested contributes a small sum, according to means, the necessary money will be easily raised. Mr. Bennett's case (which ended in favour of the bird-keeper) was fully reported in our issue dated November 19. Send early, please.—EDITOR.]

The Suspension of Cage Bird Union Members.

"CAGE BIRDS'" LETTER TO MR. LYTHGOE.

SIR,—Are you in a position now to make any further statement with regard to the procedure to be adopted by the Cage Bird Union with regard to members of the C.B.U. who have exhibited at recent non-union shows, notably the L.C.B.A. and other London fixtures? Our inquiry is prompted by the fact that London exhibitors are constantly making personal inquiries of us as to this matter; but we are, of course, unable to give them any definite answer. It is a matter of great public interest, as we think you will readily realise, and we are sure that any statement you can make will be welcomed by a large section of the Fancy, and help to "clear the air" as to the actual position of affairs. Thanking you for your courtesy in respect to our own previous inquiries.

Yours very truly, THE EDITOR.

[MR. LYTHGOE'S REPLY.]

December 7, 1910.

SIR,—In reply to your enquiry, I am not in a position to make any further statement at present.

Yours faithfully,

GEO. W. F. LYTHGOE.

[The above letters "speak for themselves," as the saying goes. We know for certain that the Cage Bird Union has suspended some of its members for exhibiting at non-Union shows—and one of these is the L.C.B.A. show. We hope we shall be pardoned for observing that it is difficult to see what the Union officials expect to gain by suppressing all particulars of the suspensions they inflict from time to time. We venture to think that a more open policy would meet with greater favour.—EDITOR.]

Wellington (Salop) Show.

SIR,—I should be pleased to know when the above society intends paying the prize money for the show held March 3 and 4 of last year. Have written the secretary a few times, but failed to receive any reply. Does the society intend running another show this season; if so, how can they expect support? This is the sort of thing that spoils other societies from getting entries, as no exhibitor cares to support other shows when no money is forthcoming which he has already won.

G. P. MORGAN.

A Complaint from a Novice at Liverpool.

SIR,—May I trespass upon your valuable space by commenting upon the lack of consideration shown to Liverpool novices? A case in point: A bird-washing exhibition was advertised to take place on December 8. The gentleman who so kindly offered to do the washing was there at the appointed time, but there being neither birds nor fire, the exhibition had to be cancelled, and the only "entertainment" was the usual squabbling between the fanciers.

DISGUSTED LIVERPOOL NOVICE.

Bullfinch Which Turned Black.

SIR,—A most extraordinary thing has occurred. A cousin of mine, Mr. MacConkey, has had a Bullfinch for a number of years, and it has housemoulted many times, and generally has then been fed on Parrish's chemical food. This year it has been treated the same way, only, perhaps, it has had a little more of the food than usual, and it has issued from its moult a glossy jet black all over, for all the world just like a small Crow! I have made several enquiries of bird fanciers, but they are all quite unable to give any explanation, nor have they heard of such a thing occurring before. I should be glad if you or any reader could explain the matter and advise us how to treat the bird so as to get it back to its original plumage.

R. S. DIXON.

[Black Bullfinches are of fairly regular occurrence—not by any means rare—and feeding too freely upon hemp seed is often stated to be the cause of the change in the colour of plumage. Probably old age and some change in the blood have combined to turn our correspondent's bird into a black one; whether the Parrish's Chemical Food (? in excess) was a contributory cause we cannot say. Nothing can now be done to alter the bird's colour, but possibly it may revert to normal plumage at the next moulting season.—Editor.]

OUR CALENDAR.

A Charming 1911 Calendar in colours should be found in each copy of this Xmas Number.

CAGE BIRDS Calendar for 1911, which we hope will find a place in the homes of all our readers, has two coloured plates by Mr. G. Rankin, and one by Mr. H. Norman, as its decorative panels, and we venture to think that they combine to form a most artistic and completely charming whole.

THE WALL CREEPER is a bird of delicately beautiful plumage—a dainty creature, familiar some few years ago to bird-lovers in the Metropolis by reason of the specimen then being exhibited by Mr. C. T. Maxwell. It is a not by any means uncommon inhabitant of the mountainous districts of Southern Europe, though it is a very rare and quite accidental visitor to the British Isles.

The Wall Creeper is a strictly insectivorous bird (like the Tree Creeper and its other relatives). When flying, its motion is peculiar, resembling that of a butterfly. On the face of rocks, walls, etc., it climbs in zig-zag fashion, sometimes head downwards, and "with a crab-like sidling motion, rapidly expanding and closing its wings in a succession of jerks, and showing its brilliant crimson shoulders at each movement." (Tristram). It nests in the crevices of rocks.

COLOUR-FEEDING: The panel representing four stages in the colour-feeding process will require no explanation so far as the expert Canary breeder is concerned. It shows us the red plumage breaking through at the sides of the breast (the spot where new feathers are first clearly observable at the moult), and in the other three birds the spread of the area of "fiery" plumage as the moult progresses can be traced. The head is the last part to acquire its new covering, and the appearance of a Canary when it has a red body and a pale (natural) coloured head is rather ludicrous.

THE BLACKBIRD needs no introduction. He is a general favourite with the bird-keeper; and with everyone else except those who grudge him the fruit he pilfers and destroys. His ravages in the orchards are a serious matter, unfortunately, for the fruit grower. Master Blackie has become exceedingly common, and his rich, flute-like voice charms our ears from practically every garden, hedge and copse of the countryside, while his home—or that of his neighbour, the Song Thrush—is almost certain to be the first the average bird-lover will discover as he glances along the hedgerows in the early spring.

Borders at Liverpool Show.

SIR,—In answer to Mr. Wright's bombastic reply, I was not aware I had asked him any questions. I should be sorry to ask a novice any, either. I wish him better luck next season for the nest-feather class for the "Corby Castle Stakes" than he had last year.

NORTH COUNTRY TYPE.

The "Kruger" Controversy.

SIR,—I think the above is getting a bit too personal; it almost sounds as if there is to be bloodshed! I don't care a straw for the personalities myself, but I do like to give credit where credit is due, and according to performances I think we should all honour "Kruger," and if the title of Champion Redpoll has been fairly earned, then Kruger is entitled to it. I think Londoners ought to be proud of him, as he lives among them and is one of them. Mr. Marley showed three birds in the Redpoll class at Leicester, and there are not many fanciers that would show three in one class. I quite agree with the first part of Country Fanciers letter, but he spoils himself and is most unkind to a brother fancier to say that he comes out as a specialist with one Redpoll and two Linnets, as I consider Mr. Marley a British fancier, considering he made fifteen entries at Leicester show alone. I would ask how many London fanciers this season have sent their birds away and patronised the provincial shows as Mr. Marley has done? I think it must be admitted that most of the best birds are not in London. I don't know Mr. Pooley, Mr. Marley, or "Country Fancier," but I do think these personalities should be dropped, and whoever owns a good bird given the credit for it.

CREDIT WHERE CREDIT IS DUE.

SIR,—As a constant reader of your valuable paper, I am pleased to see "Country Fancier's" letter this week. In a widely distributed paper like CAGE BIRDS what does it interest readers miles away about "Kruger," stained Linnets at York, Goldfinches at Glasgow, Linnet singing challenges, etc.—nothing but fanciers bickering amongst themselves! What we look for is interesting news, not personal grievances. I agree with fanciers airing their complaints and also being replied to, but that should be sufficient. It is not right that such people should take up such valuable space.

WM. SCHOLEY.

Despite the extra pages this week, we have regretfully had to hold over several letters.

Under the White Rose.

HALIFAX Show on Saturday last was well patronised by visitors, and the birds there were certainly worth going a long way to see. Yorkshires, as would be expected, were very strong, and the Norwich, for this district, were indeed a grand lot. Now with the O.N.P.C. in our midst we should really have them better catered for. British birds were not strong in numbers, but some grand birds were shown. One of the First Prize winners, a Redpoll, catalogued at £1, was claimed at that price; evidently somebody is on the look out for good British cheap. It was noted that all that were entered did not look quite British; probably a mistake.

ONE of the Novice birds, and not a first prize winner was claimed at the limit price, £5 5s., also a self cinnamon in one of the selling classes was pounced upon. Somebody whispered that the latter was going Liverpool way. Can they breed good greens from cinnamons?

UNFORTUNATELY we seem in this district to have got into the way of having birds disqualified; there were no less than three on Saturday at Halifax. Two of them were in the uneven-marked classes (green marked). Both had a slight tick on one wing, while one had also a tiny speck over the eye and also on the cheek, neither of which were regarded by the judge as touching the eye; therefore no wrong classed that one as being only ticked. The other bird had two ticks near the eyes, one on each side, but these did not satisfy the judge as being "technical marks." Result: chucked out! Number three was in the Novice Section; the winning buff hen commenced to sing on Friday night—maybe was a little bit elevated at its success. It might have waited until it got home; but birds don't seem to study these points! It was objected to, and the Committee uphold the objection. It is hard lines that many birds never seem to sing at home; in fact, now above one old fancier who has paired two cocks together in March—they really should know by then.

EXHIBITORS and fanciers generally will be sorry to hear that the elder of Messrs. Ogden Bros. is dangerously ill with pneumonia. That he may be able to battle with it and come through safely will be the sincerest wish of the Fancy, and I hope it will not be long ere he is amongst us again.

THE Societies in the Yorkshire Union have during the last week had forwarded to them through the Y.U. secretary, the petition to be presented to the railway companies in regard to the charges for carriage of birds to and from shows; also the question of cheap fares for fanciers visiting shows and the charging for birds when the owners convey them personally to and from shows. Other matters are dealt with, and as this petition will be pushed forward by the Cage Bird Union and the London Federation of C.B.S., it should carry a little weight with the railway companies. It behoves every fancier to do all he can to help this movement forward, and especially must this matter interest all exhibitors, who must do all they can to get the signatures of every possible fancier to the petition. The railway officials must be shown the great injustice that we suffer, and their eyes must be opened to the great chance they have of increasing traffic if they cater properly for the Fancy.

The Irish Goldfinch.

I have seen him at the shows,
On the benches ranged in rows,
Waiting for the judge to make his call;
He's a gay and merry fellow,
With his wings of golden yellow,
And his crimson blaze unbrightening up the hall.

Both for singing and for show
He is prized, the Fancy know;
He's the most proficient member of the band;
The Russians are more bulky,
But they also are more sulky,
Than the hardy little Goldie of Ireland.

Though not in it as to size,
He for Muling takes the prize,
With him his German cousin can't compare:
Nor the Spanish, nor the French,
Can compete with Erin's Finch:
In all-round points he leaves them in the rear.

A Visit to a Bird Specialist.

By W. A. Dickins.

It was a happy thought of mine a few days since to spring a surprise, in the shape of a flying visit, to one of the best-known men in the cage-bird Fancy—W. Rudd, of Norwich. Here was at once an opportunity of getting away for a brief—a very brief—spell from the rush of work on CAGE BIRDS, and a chat with one whom I knew well by repute, but had never had the privilege of meeting. And sharp almost as the thought I was off to Liverpool Street station where I entrained for the ancient City of Norwich.

The weather was unconscionably wet and wintry, but it did not damp my enthusiasm.

Arrived at Mr. Rudd's private house in Park Lane, I must confess to being not a little surprised at finding that there was nothing on the exterior of that well-known address to indicate that the owner (whose name appeared only on a small brass plate affixed to the door) carried on from thence a huge business in birds. True, I was told some little time since that he did not "keep a shop," but I had forgotten. I ventured to ring the bell, when I soon learnt that Mr. Rudd was to be found at other premises situated a couple of minutes' walk away, in Havelock Road, and, of course, again no shop. Here I found what I had come to Norwich for—the man, his birds and his business.

At the start I was interested chiefly in the man, but after my chat with him—(and Mr. Rudd is a rare one to chat with)—I don't know which to admire most—the man, or his birds, or his business. I was not long in finding out that he is a business man in a million, that his stock comprises some of the best birds in the world, and that his business is the product of a keen commercial instinct on the one hand, and on the other a real love for, and a sympathetic knowledge of, the birds he retails to fanciers and exhibitors.

One or two facts about the business side of Mr. Rudd's life interested me immensely, and served to whet my appetite for more. Somewhat reserved in manner, and certainly reticent with regard to the more personal side of his commercial life, Mr. Rudd is a self-made man, with none of the harder and more objectionable elements of character usually found in men who have risen. He is keenly observant, sharp witted, and has a business brain. He spares neither time, thought, nor enthusiasm.

His business, I may say in passing, is conducted entirely through the post. He wastes neither efforts nor words; his order books, etc., told their own tale; and his birds spoke for themselves—in more ways than one.

But, I'm not sure Mr. Rudd will thank me if I go on much in this strain. I will therefore simply say, in addition, that I have never before encountered a man whose perspicuity so effectually prepared the way for me in my journalistic task.

Birdrooms as They Ought to be.

Mr. Rudd took me over his bird-rooms. I cannot say how many rooms there were; I only know that I saw several thousands of birds comfortably and carefully caged. They were obviously bird-rooms and not bird shops. I saw all the birds that were in Havelock Road, including a large number that had come only the previous night from abroad. Every room and every cage and every bird I found spotlessly clean. The floors of the rooms are laid with linoleum; the cages are stacked end to end on top of one another, so that, being specially made for the purpose, they occupy every available inch of wall space, the centre of each room being left quite unoccupied. Every room smelt beautifully clean as the door was opened, and no wonder, for by the system of ventilation adopted a current of fresh air passes constantly through each room, and this can be regulated according to wind and weather; and there is no foul air. The system struck me as being as near perfect as it could well be. For several reasons of Mr. Rudd's own, every room is fitted with electric light.

What shall I say of the birds, of their number, and quality, and variety? Words fail me to express my astonishment. I knew Mr. Rudd could supply any quantity of birds, that he satisfied customers who insisted on having good exhibition stuff no matter what they paid for it, and that he sold many rare specimens; but I had no idea until I saw for myself that, like me, anyone might "drop in" at any time and on any day in the week and actually see the birds there, waiting to be sent to this or to that customer. And yet that is the fact. I saw hundreds upon hundreds, nay thousands all told, of Canaries of practically every known variety. I had never seen such a large collection of Canaries before, not even at the record Crystal Palace Show. And it was not a case, mind you, of one kind of Canary predominating in number. If I saw two hundred clear yellow Norwich, I also saw an enormous quantity of Yorkshires. (Here, note, I am speaking of "Specials," not what is known in the trade as "Merchants.") The fact, too, that I saw scores of Lizards and Lancashires, and dozens of Dutch Frills, should be proof enough (if such be needed) that the birds were there in proportionate numbers. Of course, there was little to be surprised at in this when one recognises that Mr. Rudd sets himself to supply the needs of breeders, exhibitors and others in all branches of the cage bird Fancy.

Of Crests and Crestbreds, there were birds of a far higher merit than any person would believe without seeing them; but Mr. Rudd honestly confessed that it was not always that such quality in this variety could be held. I also noted the good quality of the other birds. Many of them were undoubtedly of the high st possible exhibition merit, and would secure for those who exhibited them.

Mark you, if a man sends a good price for a good bird he gets what he wants; and if a fancier sends but a small amount and trusts to Mr Rudd to do his best for him, he gets as good a bird (or birds) as it is possible to supply for the money he sends. Third, I soon learned, is the principle upon which this vast Norwich business is conducted.

In Mr. Rudd we not only have one who knows what he possesses good stuff—thereby indicating the fancier—but one who is aware of the breeding qualities of his birds, and can tell what their value is as exhibition specimens, thus indicating the careful breeder. So that anyone, be he the veriest tyro or an advanced champion breeder and exhibitor, may, it struck me, instantly depend upon it that if mine host picked out the birds for him they would be the best suited for their purpose, and would produce birds of good quality.

It was Mr. Rudd's proud boast that several of the specimens were first-prize winners at a number of quite recent big open shows, and without being in any way labelled, it is wonderful how he knows and remembers all about the different specimens amongst such quantities; yet so it is. On the other hand, I can safely say that I did not see one really poor specimen of any variety. The birds were all of more or less good quality, but the pick of the various sections were "absolute toppers," as the reporters would say. I have seldom seen such remarkably clear-capped gold and silver Lizards as I saw on this occasion; and the Dutch Frills were simply superb, the feather-parting down the middle of the back being magnificent, and the frilliness of the feathers really fine. The Belgians and Scotch Fancies would grace any show bench. As for colour and type in the Norwich, the birds need to be seen for these qualities to be fully appreciated. They were, in fact, an exhibition in themselves.

Variety and Quality.

I was given also a vision splendid of a very large number of Goldfinches (Siberian and British), and in addition lovely specimens of Redpolls, Siskins, Linnets, Twites, Chaffinches, etc., and of foreign birds, Budgerigars, Parrots, etc. I was informed, by the way, that Mr. Rudd does not believe in keeping newly-imported Parrots, preferring to supply his customers with birds which have been properly acclimatised; and if the one specimen of the Amazon Parrot which I had the pleasure of talking with is a fair sample of the sort of bird supplied, some good stuff must have left Havelock Road at various times.

As one who is interested chiefly in Mules and Hybrids, I spent not a little time in looking at Mr. Rudd's collection. The light exhibition Mules and Hybrids were in themselves, I thought, worthy the journey to Norwich to see. I observed a really magnificent specimen of the Greenfinch-Bullfinch Hybrid, and learned that this had taken first prizes at Blaydon, Wallsend, Yarm, Hull, etc. Mr. Rudd sold a number of exhibition Mules only recently, which have also done well on the show bench for their new owners.

So much for the birds. I would fain say a great deal more about one of the finest all-round collections I have ever seen, but space forbids.

Not the least important factor in this notable business is the cage-making department at the rear of the premises. Here I saw hundreds of flight cages and travelling cases piled one above the other; and the workmen were busy sawing, planing and wire-cutting, polishing, etc. Mr. Rudd makes a large number of his cages on the premises, and his customers' orders for same are so numerous as to necessitate the employment of a staff of specialist workmen who never have cause to complain for want of work.

Just before taking my leave of Mr. Rudd I had the pleasure of reading a number of testimonials (unsolicited, of course) that had been received by him that day from customers, one being from a gentleman in Italy stating that his Canaries (Lancashires) had arrived safely and were all that he expected them to be. Mr. Rudd does a tremendous foreign trade, by the way, as readers of CAGE BIRDS well know, and he sends birds and appliances of all sorts to every quarter of the globe; and every bird sent out to the country, as well as at home, I learned, is handled by Mr. Rudd himself—a very important item to purchasers.

When at last I was compelled to run and catch the last train back to London, I was sorry to have to say "Goodbye." I had been charmed by the birds—a perfect galaxy of beauty they were, and I was left wondering at the unique character and the genuine nature of the business.

But I am back again, delighted at having made the acquaintance of "Rudd, bird specialist, Norwich," and pleased to be able to testify to his consummate sincerity and reliability. It is not to be expected that he, any more than others, can satisfy everybody, but it can confidently be said that he will give his customers as little cause for dissatisfaction as anyone in the business, his facilities in very many respects being unique, to say nothing of his practical knowledge gained by long and great experience.

[Owing to recent severe pressure upon our space, the above article has unavoidably been held over, awaiting publication, for a fortnight or so.—EDITOR.]

I have had excellent results from my recent advts. in "Cage Birds," having done business with several gentlemen of position, including Lord Tavistock. Truly "Cage Birds" reaches all classes of fanciers.—J. PITCHFORD (Stoke-on-Trent).

THE SHOWS.

SHETTLESTON.

Shettleston and Dist. (N.B.) third annual show held December 10th, Hill Street Hall. President, Mr. A. Marr; vice-presidents, Messrs. R. G. Sommerville and M. Semple; sec. and treas., Mr. A. Berry. The hall is well adapted for show purposes, there being plenty of good light and room. The sec., Mr. A. Berry, and the president, Mr. A. Marr, ably assisted by Messrs. R. G. Summers and M. Semple, and the committee, had the classes arranged to perfection, numbering in all 21 classes. Borders and Norwich were a nice even lot, and the Britishers were good, many of them being fit to win in open competition. A silver cup, presented to the society by Mr. A. Semple and Mr. McKay, for best Can. in show, was won by Mr. G. Henderson with a Crest, the runner-up being Mr. Semple's Pallnhead. Many were unable, however, to follow the judge's selection here, preferring the Pallnhead. There was a large turn-out of visitors, the hall being crowded during the afternoon. The show proved a grand success. Mr. Chas. Irvine (Ayr) judged the 32 classes, which must have given him a good morning's work.

SANQUHAR.

Sanquhar Society held its 26th annual exhibition in the Public Hall, 10th December. Entries numbered about 150, and were in advance of those of the previous show. The new secretaries, Messrs. Laidlaw and Hyslop, were most energetic and untiring in the performance of their duties, which were, however, lessened by the assistance they received from the hardworking stewards. Mr. McCredie judged, and his awards were well received.

The Critique.

BORD. FCY., ETC., YELL CK.: 1, Muir, exceedingly good cl., grand, well-filled bird, nice head, lovely wings and tail; 2, Mossie, another fine specimen, we thought a Kilmarnock winner, good feather, nicely balanced; 3, Findlay, also good cl., lovely shape and quality, nice wings; 4, Walker, a beauty for type, good quality; vhc, Geddes. HEN: 1, 2, Mossie, pair of clinking cl. yell., grand typical birds, nice free style, and quality of feather, second fails just slightly in wing only to first; 3, vhc, Walker, 3rd, fine, grand type and condition, carries itself well; 4, Findlay, fine position, good wings and tail, fails just slightly in head qualities. BUFF CK.: 1, 2, Mossie, brace of exceptionally good cl. bulls, former wins Border Fancy Club's medal, and spl. for best in show, excellent head, well braced wings, close tail, 2nd grand col., nicely rounded. A1 quality, close up on winner; 3, vhc, Culderwood, 3rd, good type, grand position, excellent wings; 4, Walker, neat, not quite the finish of the winner, good wings; hc, Findlay; c, Johnstone. GLASGOW AND WEST OF SCOTLAND C.B.S.

Twenty first annual show held Good Templars' Hall, Dec. 10. The hall, being well lighted from the roof, is one of the best places in which to hold a show. Entries were up to the usual in numbers, while the quality, also, was not lacking, many noted winners being on view. Two raffles were also exhibited in the British bird classes, and came in for a deal of inspection, namely, Mr. Erskine's yellow-breasted Bunting and Mr. Burnett's Black-headed Bunting. Mr. Watson, as secretary, went about his duties in a quiet but capable way, which showed that he knew his work. President, Mr. F. Taylor; vice-president, Mr. F. Bowman; and the committee, consisting of Messrs. Sloan, Brown, Ferguson, Erskine, Donaghy, McLeod, Jarvie, McLay, Smith, and McCulloch, all helped to make the show a success. Judges: Mr. A. Watson (Kilmarnock), Nor. and Cresta; Mr. G. Hislop (Stirling), Borders and A.O.V.; Mr. M. Craig (Tollcross), Mules, Brit., and For.; all got through in fine time, and seemed to give general satisfaction.

The Critique.

YOUNG BIRD SECTION: NOR. YELL. CK: 1, Ferguson, rare size, sound col., fine cobby build, good one, well put down; 2, Barron, another nice one, fine level col., clear cut away behind, fails just a trifle in head to winner; 3, Donaghy, neat one, well staged, just inclined to be on small side; 4, Dowell, nice one for size and quality; 5, Sloan; 6, Barron. BUFF: 1, 2, Donaghy, 1st really good one, staged to perfection, short and chubby, nicely mealed, fine quality, well filled in neck, neat and typical; 3, Graham, just lacks size of leaders, but nice quality feather, and neat head, wet when we saw it; 4, Barron, nice one for size and type; 5, McLeod; 6, Chalmers. YELL. CHESTERFIELD.

Chesterfield and Dis. C.B.S. annual exhibition held in the large Assembly Room, Market Hall, Dec. 10th. The room is an ideal one for a cage bird show, and the hon. sec., Mr. C. H. Naylor, had the exhibits nicely benched, so that all could be seen without removing any single cage. The Fancy in the district is growing, and we feel sure that with the assistance of the outside exhibitors sending on a few entries, this association will rank as one of the best in the county. Mr. Naylor was assisted by the following gentlemen: Mr. L. Goucher (chairman), and committeemen Messrs. Wilson, Gee, Marriott, W. and G. Marsden, Brailsford, Jepson, Chappell, Booker, Baxby, Smith and Hunt. The entries turned up well for a first venture. The Yorkshires were a fine lot, as was to be expected with such well-known exhibitors as Messrs. Shackleton, Wykes, Thomas, Shaw Bros., Wilkinson and Elliott, Rhodes, Wilkinson Bros. The Norwich were a fine lot, and Messrs. Fox, George, Hathaway, Wilcox benched some nice exhibits. The British birds turned up well, Messrs. Walsh, of Blackburn, and Howe, of Wellingborough, putting down two grand teams. Messrs. W. Mundell (Bradford) and W. Vardy (Huthwaite) placed the cards.

POPLAR AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Third annual members' show held Dec. 3, St. Stephen's Parish Hall, East India Dock Road, Poplar, E. A capital lot of birds graced the benches reflecting credit both on the members individually and on the society collectively. The arrangments were admirably carried out by Mr. H. W. Cook, the popular, energetic and businesslike secretary. He was ably assisted by a grand committee of workers. Mr. J. Robson judged.

BANKFOOT AND WIBSEY C.B.Ss.

Joint show of these two societies held Dec. 10th, Bankfoot Schools. Only a moderate entry (147) faced the judges, Messrs. T. Bentley (Cleckheaton) and W. Stables (Bradford); the latter officiated for the first time, and very ably acquitted himself. After the show all exhibitors, along with several friends, sat down to a pie supper, the expenses of same being borne by one of the members. The whole of the proceeds were divided into specials, and extended over the whole of the classes. The light at the time of judging was extremely bad, and necessitated the whole of the birds being judged by gaslight.

Gateshead keeps up the Tyneside Reputation.

Another Record Show in all Departments.

The eleventh annual show of the Gateshead Society ("Palace of the North") was held December 9th and 10th, in the Burt terrace Drill Hall, Bensham-road. It was admittedly the most magnificent show ever seen in the North of England. What a marvellous array of exhibits! There were 1,450 of them, and practically the pick of the Fancy. This huge total eclipses Gateshead's record of last year by about 75, and it is very gratifying to find that this increase is principally accounted for in the open section, as the members' entries only totalled three more than last year. We found it necessary last year to comment on the paucity of entries in the Crest section and we thought Crest fanciers should "buck up" a bit. This year no such comment is needed, for it is practically owing to this section that we are enabled to chronicle a record entry; but more of this anon.

Perfect Management.

The arrangements for this great show cannot be otherwise described than as absolutely perfect, and were all in the hands of the joint secretaries, Messrs. A. Holden and W. Curry. Mr. Holden's past experience as assistant-secretary of the society, enables him to carry out his duties in the most efficient manner, and what he does not know about show management is not worth learning; while Mr. Curry, who is well known as the late joint secretary of the Newcastle Society, is undoubtedly a past-master in the art of managing a great cage bird show. We found both gentlemen always courteous and most obliging to everyone, always willing and ready to attend to anything required of them, and it is scarcely to be wondered at that in their hands everything passed off without the slightest hitch, and that the management was right up to the high traditions of the Gateshead Society. The arrangements for the feeding and watering of the exhibits were again in the hands of the show manager, Mr. F. F. Hawkins, and this gentleman's abilities in this direction are so well known to visitors to this show that we need say nothing further than that he carried out his duties in his usual efficient manner, nothing whatever being overlooked. He was ably supported by a body of good hard-working fanciers, consisting of the chairman, Mr. T. Almond; vice-chairman, Mr. Shafto Robson; and Messrs. W. Longstaff, A. T. Hodgson, J. Moor, J. Campbell, P. Rule, G. Robson, W. J. Smith, R. W. Smith, E. B. Hooper, D. E. Kent, R. Lowery, A. Storey, J. Adams, H. Johnson, J. W. Reed, and J. MacKenzie.

Something Like Staying!

The staging was again splendidly arranged, four rows running nearly the length of the hall, with the exhibits arranged four tiers high, the Softbill British and also the Foreign bird sections being in another row at the end of the hall away from the entrance. The members' classes were placed at one side of the room. Every class, and the winners therein, were placed in regular order, in a manner that gave satisfaction to everyone, and we failed to hear one single complaint; and, truly, there was absolutely nothing to complain about, everything being practically perfect.

Despite the inclement weather the show was well attended by the public, and on the Saturday we noticed a great many fanciers from different parts of the country.

There was nothing exceptional in the way of sales, no birds changing hands at big prices, although many did so at the smaller prices; and an enquiry at the sales office elicited the fact that the sales were fairly good.

Taken all through, the show, which was not held under C.B.U. rules, was a huge success, and we heartily congratulate the officials upon their splendid achievement. Coming to the exhibits themselves, they were simply grand, every section containing birds of superlative merit.

Wonderful Norwich and Crests.

Norwich came up well, totalling 191 in twelve classes, an average of 16 per class. Many of the birds were gems for type and quality. Competition was very keen, and several well-known winners had to take a back seat, some even standing cardless, amongst the latter being Messrs. Pickering and Wright's clear yellow hen, the L.C.B.A. winner. This bird, although not a monster, is a real gem for shape and quality, and many thought she should have been at least in the tickets, if not in the money. Special for best in section went to Mr. W. H. Howe, with a hot-coloured yellow variegated. Grand birds were staged in this section by Messrs. A. Holden, A. Wake, F. F. Lawson, Geo. Dobinson, Jos. Cuthbertson, R. G. Freuch, and others. The two novice classes were stormers—21 yellows and 28 buffs—many grand birds amongst them, too, the winning buff being a real good one. The Crested section was undoubtedly the feature of the show, for besides coming up in good numbers the quality of the exhibits was simply wonderful; and they were, without a doubt, the finest collection ever seen in the North of England, which is saying a great deal. Ten classes were provided for them, the exhibitors responding with an entry of 118, an average of nearly 12 per class, just double the number of last year. The section being under the patronage of the Crested Canary Club, and the Northern Crest Club, all the cracks were out, including the celebrated Dark Crest which was claimed at the L.C.B.A. for £35, the bird being exhibited here by its new owner, Mr. J. Tyson (London). This is the bird that won the Newcastle bowl over Mr. Armstrong's "King of Kings," and although we have no hesitation in saying that on that occasion it deserved its win, there can be no questioning the superiority of "King of Kings" at the present time, he having come on wonderfully since Newcastle Show, and is now being exhibited in the most perfect condition. On the present occasion "King of Kings" won the Gateshead Challenge Bowl for best bird in show, and as he has now won it three years in succession, it becomes Mr. Armstrong's own property, and we heartily congratulate him on his great achievement. Other grand birds were exhibited in this section by Messrs. Ley, Tyson, T. Taylor, Brotherton, Martin, Bewick, and Dobson and Son, the young Dark Crest of the last-named being a bird of great merit. Special prize winners in this section were Messrs. R. Armstrong (challenge bowl, best in show, and C.C.C. 5s. special for best Crest); J. Tyson (C.C.C. special 2s. 6d. for 2nd best Crest); J. L. Martin (C.C.C. special 5s. for best Crest-bred); R. S. Bewick (N.C.C. special 2s. 6d. for 2nd best Crest-bred). The C.C.C. 5s. special for best yell. Crest was also won by Mr. R. Armstrong. Mr. J. Brotherton winning the C.C.C. special 5s. for best yellow Crest-bred; the C.C.C. special 5s. for best clear body Crest any colour went to Mr. G. C. Ley. The Northern Crest Club specials were won by Messrs. Currah and Son and Messrs. Dobson and Son.

Scot. Fcy. had three classes provided for them, and totalled 24, an average of eight per class, and although the entry was not so numerous as we would have liked to see, the quality of the exhibits reached a very high standard. The winning buff of Mr. Chapman's was a bird of real good merit, and well merited its position as winner of diploma for best in section, an honour it also captured at the late Newcastle Show. On the whole, the exhibits were a very nice lot, and attracted a good deal of attention from visitors.

Lizards came up fairly well—18 in the two classes provided for them. And the quality was really good, several recent winners having to take a back seat. The leading honours in both classes were secured by Mr. W. P. Barnes, and his silver clear cap secured the diploma for best in section, and thoroughly deserved it.

Border Fancies came up well, totalling 160 in eleven classes—an average of nearly 16 per class. And what a treat they were! Type and quality predominated in every class. Mr. J. Patterson, the noted Chirnside exhibitor and judge, put down a grand team, and the bulk of the prizes went to him, including the diploma and the Border Fancy Club medal for best Border in show, the winner being a grand yellow cock, a gem in every respect. Other excellent birds were staged by Messrs. Armstrong, Duncan and Logan, F. F. Hawkins, Ross, Dixon, and Smart. The Greens and Cinnamons were a very nice collection, 15 in the former class and 10 in the latter, the quality in both classes being really good, several grand birds having to stand cardless. The novice Borders filled well—19 Yellows and 20 Buffs, practically all true to type. The novices are to be congratulated upon their grand display. The novice Border medal was secured by Mr. A. Smith with a grand typical Buff, which thoroughly deserved the honour bestowed upon it. Mr. T. Taylor's diploma for best Cinnamon was won by Mr. W. Dormer's unflighted yellow; Mr. T. Taylor's diploma for best Yorks. was won by Messrs. Ogden Bros.' unflighted Buff.

A Record Lot of Linnets.

The British birds were super-excellent, nearly 300 in number; and what quality, too! Most wonderful were the Linnets; never before in the history of the Fancy, we think, has there been seen so many at any one show—over 100 entries in Linnets through the open and members' classes. It speaks volumes for the future prospects of Linnet classes when one sees 36 tip-top birds in the field-moulted Linnet class. It was worth going miles to see. The Goldfinches were very smart, and the Bullfinches were grand. Greenfinches were also a very hot lot; the Any other British birds all tip-top specimens. Brambles and Chaffinches were good, whilst the Redpoll, Siskin, or Twite class contained 34 remarkably fine birds. A fine Chough headed the large Softbill class, whilst the small class contained a superb lot of birds, a Wryneck winning and taking diploma for best in the British section. It was simply perfect. The novice Finch, etc., class contained a "mixture" of 36 birds, and a really fine Greenfinch secured premier honours after a hard fight with a fine Bullfinch. The Foreign birds were a fine collection, and many rare and beautiful species were present. A magnificent Yellow-wing Sugar Bird, in perfect condition, secured diploma for best in the section. A good King led the way in the Parrot, etc., class, and a capital St. Helena in the Waxbill class. Altogether these made a very choice and attractive collection, and drew the public in crowds to view them. Competition was remarkably keen throughout the British and Foreign sections, and in the former in many classes extra prizes were given, and two sets of winners could easily have been selected.

The members' classes came up well, the strongest classes in the Canary sections being those for Norwich and Borders, closely followed by Yorkshires. Britishers filled well, and in all the sections quality was well to the fore, many of the birds holding their own in the open sections. Members' special prize winners were: Mr. J. Maddison, who secured the beautiful dinner set for most points gained by a member throughout the show; Mr. J. Patterson special for second most points. The novice members' classes also came up strongly. Here again the Norwich and Borders were the strongest, the quality being very good.

The judges were: Messrs. W. Vardy (Norwich), J. Robson (Crests, Lizards, Scots, and Mules), W. Mundell (Cinnamons and Yorkshires), W. Pennington (Borders), and C. Houlton (British and Foreign). The awards appeared to give every satisfaction.

LLANELLY.

Some very nice exhibits were staged in the Market Hall, on December 13th, the occasion being the show of the Llanelly and County F.A.; the entry also was well up to the average, and much in excess of last year. Messrs. J. Holmes, J. Auckland, C. Griffin, T. Williams, H. B. Roderick, A. T. Weatherley, S. H. Gascoigne, G. Auckland, and D. John form the executive committee, and right well did they attend to their duties, being well assisted by Mr. Jenn as secretary of our section. Mr. C. A. House judged.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

FALKIRK (Good Intent).

First annual show, held Dec. 10th. Entries numbered 350, which was remarkably good for a members' show. The hall in which the function was held is an ideal one, being large and roomy, and well lighted. The staging was very nicely arranged around three sides of the hall, with a double row in the centre. The quality of the exhibits was much above the average, especially in the Norwich section, some capital specimens being staged. The society are happy in their possession of an ideal secretary in Mr. Wm. Clubb, who is both courteous and obliging, and is ably assisted by a committee of well known fanciers. The judges officiating were —for Norwich, Mr. A. Chalmers (Kirkintilloh b), for Borders, etc., Mr. D. Buchan (Falkirk), and for British, Mr. R. Bald (Bathgate); and their awards seemed to be well received.

CATERHAM.

Show held December 13th, Public Hall. Our section was staged in a separate room. The entries came up very well in numbers, quality was extra ordinary. Norwich were a keen lot, Mr. A. J. Killby securing a cup given by R. A. Russell, Esq., for best cage bird. Britishers were also very keen, and in several classes two sets of winners could easily be found. Borders also gave the judge a trying task, Mr. J. Robson judged. Mr. A. J. Killby, the sec., deserves much credit for so ably conducting the affairs of the show, being assisted by a grand committee.

The Critique.

WATFORD.

West Herts F.A. annual show held Clarendon Hall, December 13th. Notwithstanding the efforts of the hon. secretary, Mr. C. A. Edwards, and his assistant, Mr. E. Greeves, the entry was not up to what the schedule warranted; consequently amalgamation had to be resorted to. The committee, led by Mr. G. Perkin, jun. (chairman), rendered excellent help, and the arrangements were well carried out. Quality in the birds was excellent. Special for best bird went to Messrs. Hawes Bros., and that for best local bird to Mr. R. J. Watts. The attendance of visitors was good, as is always the case at the shows of this society, and the most attractive section appeared to be the cage birds, particularly as far as the ladies were concerned. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged.

NOR. (12): 1, Buckingham, buff, rare front and neck, nice undercolour, silky feather; 2, 3, Battison, 2nd variegd. yell., glossy feather, nice and stout, neat head, good neck; 3rd, buff, good col. feather, buckled its flights a trifle occasionally; vhc, hc, Bowler; c, Giddings. YORKS. (12): 1, spl best in show, 2, 3, c, Hawes Bros., leader, spanking fine yell., grand carriage, literally dances, topping quality; 2nd, equally fine buff, little to choose between; 3rd, tkd. buff, nice in position, not quite so tight in wing carriage; vhc, Sears; hc, Alford. GOLDIE, ETC. (10): 1, Gunnell, Goldie, well known, often commented on; 2, Bowler, rich col. face, but not quite the size of blaze of winner; 3, Tavener, Goldie again, loses only in face, in grand condition; vhc, Freeman, Gardner; hc, Mitchell, Gregory; c, Young. LINNET, ETC. (9): 1, vhc, hc, Gregory, leader lustrous, rich col., well mkd. and steady Linnet; 2, Tavener, ditto, good one, but drops its tail, somewhat awkwardly at times; 3, spl, Watts, very pretty Redpoll; c, Sears.

INVERURIE.

First show of the newly formed Inverurie Cage Bird, etc., Association, took place in the Drill Hall Dec. 10th., and was in every respect a most successful exhibition. In the various classes competition was keen, and the exhibits came from a very wide radius. Judge for the cage bird section, Mr. W. B. Mackie (Aberdeen), and his awards appeared to give general satisfaction. Excellent arrangements were made by an energetic committee of local fanciers, consisting of Messrs. Allan Jnr., Burnett, Chapman, Duncan, Christie, Fraser, Gray, Irvine, [illegible], Leys, Simpson, Tough, and H. [illegible] Morrison is a first class president, and was ably backed up by his committee, and a hard worker in Mr A. Mackie, the secretary and treasurer; and the proceedings throughout passed off with the greatest smoothness. During the day the show was largely patronised by the general public, and a satisfactory "gate" was the result.

The Critique.

YELL. CK. (4): 1, Forsyth, grand col and quality; 2, Stile, bolder bird, fine head and neck, stands well on perch, good col., must have pressed; 3, Steele, loses only in size, nice one; 4, Maitland, good one, a trifle open in feather. YELL. HEN (4): 1, Thomson (Aberdeen), grand hen, teeming with quality, A1 col., and condition; 2, 3, Steele, two good hens; 4, Wood. BUFF CK. BRIT., A.O.S.: 1, Shearer, in grand condition; 2, Urquhart, Greenfinch, good size and col.

BRACKLEY (Northants.).

The cage bird section was disappointing at this show, held December 7th, Town Hall, only two classes out of eight provided being allowed to stand. This we much regret, and hope exhibitors will look to their laurels and support shows who cater for them; otherwise, they may find their classes removed from schedules. The secretary, Mr. Jas. Hawkins, is a capable official, and worked hard to make the show a success. Mr. J. N. Harrison judged.

NOR. THORNTON (Fifeshire).

Sixth open show held December 10th, and taken all round the entry was very fair. Scotch Fancies were a nice collection, and some good specimens were on view. Mr. Low (Dundee) judged these varieties, and left little to be desired. Norwich were a good all round collection, some good ones being out; and in many classes they were difficult to separate. Borders all round were good, and the judge, Mr. Colin Millar, seemed happy in his awards, which were well received. British birds, taken all round, were good in entries, but they were extra good in quality, and the judge, Mr. J. W. Bruce (Coldstream), after careful consideration, managed to please the majority of fanciers present. The show was held in a comfortable room, and everything was snug and well and carefully managed by an enthusiastic committee of young fanciers; everything passed off well under the supervision of Mr. Moyes, the energetic and capable secretary. It would pay this society to advertise a little more, as after what we saw as regards management, etc., it should prove to be one of the most successful of Fifeshire shows.

WALKLEY (Sheffield).

Walkley and Dist. C.B.S. annual show, held Dec. 10th, St. Phillip's Mission Room. President is Dr. T. C. Jones, who renders valuable assistance of a most generous description; the chairman, Mr. T. Ridal, a true fancier; the treasurer, Mr. R. Smith, a very capable official; the secretary, Mr. J. Scott, who is most courteous and obliging, and whose heart and soul are in the welfare of his society. Entries came up well. Yorkshires were truly a fine lot, they being the feature of the show. Norwich were nice, and the British birds good. Special for best bird in show went to Mr. T. Ridal, a clear yell. Yorkie (unflig.) of great merit, doing the needful. Special for best unflighted Yorkie, same owner. Ramsdeu's, Mr. Woolhouse; Sandiford's, Mr. Marshall; special best vhc, Yorkie, Mr. Butler; 1910 Nor., Mr. Woolhouse; 2nd best 1910 Nor., Mr. Woolhouse. Most points gained in Yorkshire section (all shows), Mr. G. W. Marshall; runner-up, Mr. T. Ridal; that for most points Nor., Mr. J. Woolhouse. The staging was excellent. The stewards were Messrs. Lawton and Hadfield, who proved themselves very capable officials. The management throughout was superb. Dr. T. C. Jones officiated at the opening ceremony with a capital speech. Mr. G. W. Marshall proposed a vote of thanks, seconded by Mr. J. Scott. Judge, Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield), whose awards appeared to be well received.

EAST HAM F.S.

Annual members' show, held Dec. 1, Masonic Hall. The cage birds were staged in a room by themselves. Although through various causes the entry was not large, the quality was good throughout. The Yorkshires were the chief variety in the Canary Section, some good birds being staged by Messrs. Skinner, South and Son, Mead, etc. Mr. A. Skinner secured the much-coveted cup with a grand yell. cock of good length and feather. Messrs. South and Son staged a good unflighted buff of exquisite feather and col., annexing therewith special for best unflighted in show. The runner-up for the cup was a fine typical buff Norwich hen, shown by Mr. H. J. Staines. Mr. G. Oliver secured special for best softbill, with a really good Starling. The show was excellently managed, Mr. H. Rutter making a capital secretary. He was assisted in our section by Messrs. Oliver and Skinner. Mr. H. Norman judged.

LARNE & DIST. C.B.A.

Second annual show held Dec. 10th M'Garel Town Hall, a lofty and well lighted building, well suited for a show of this kind. The staging was arranged all round the room, three tiers high, which made the birds easy to see, and left all the body of the hall for the visitors—a really grand arrangement. The secretary (Mr. Mayne) had all in good working order, and was backed up by a willing lot of workers, who cleared away every class and put up cards as it was judged by Mr. A. Hirst (Accrington). The entries came up well, being 60 in advance of last year's. The show was under the patronage of the Y.C.C. of Ireland and the Yorkshire C.B.S. of Ireland. The competition in the Yorkshire section was very keen, and some downright good birds were on view, notably Mr. M'Quade's clear yellow hen, Mr. C. A. O'Reilly's tkd. yellow hen and clear buff cock, and Mr. Keating's clear buff cock. Send them to the Crystal Palace Show, boys, and I give it as my opinion that they will not return minus honours. The Norwich Plainheads were good: the two Belfast stalwarts, Messrs. Thompson and Stewart, captured most of the prizes here. The British bird section contained some gems; Mr. Lavery's grand Goldfinch was really a picture.

SWANSEA.

Swansea F. and F.S. annual show held Dec. 8th in the market, an excellent place to hold a show, there being plenty of room and light. Five classes were given to cage birds, with Mr. W. Thomas as judge. The entries came up well, considering it was a mixed show; and had the committee known that the Swansea C.B. had severed their connection with the Cage Bird Union a far greater classification would have been given, which, no doubt, would have paid them, as the cage birds seemed to be the greatest attraction in the show. It is to be hoped that next year the committee will see their way to give several more classes, which will be the means of drawing a far greater entry, for as things were this year the entry averaged twelve per class. Mr. Fort Slater, the secretary, had everything in first-class order, and the committee are fortunate in having Mr. Slater to act as their secretary; what he does not know about shows and showing is not worth worrying about.

YORKS. (10): 1, sp, 2, Mock, 1st buff, beautiful feather, as tight as a Java, plenty of length, grand sides and back, well up on leg, wins with ease, 2nd yell., not quite the length of winner, nice col., shorter on leg; 3, Baueroft, buff, nicely feathered, not quite the length of winner, one of the longest wing flights showing loose, which no doubt put it back, shown in grand condition; r, Mock, another yell., could do with a little more col.; vhc, East; he, Morgan and Wilcox; c, Ricketts. NOR. (9): 1, Longden, yell., hot as fire, lovely wing carriage, short tail, teeming with quality, wins hands down; 2, Jenkins, mkd. buff, larger but not quite the type of winner, still deserves position; 3, Hitchings, yell. tkd., hot col., nice feather, not quite so chubby; res, Stock, yell., nice shape, loses only in col., good size, grand stock bird, carrying wings better than 3rd, if better fed might have won; vhc, Woodward. BORD. FCY. (18): Some good birds were left cardless here: 1, Jenkins, yell., nice col., well moulded, silky texture, shown in spotless condition, grand trim, not a feather misplaced; 2, vhc, Evans, yell. mkd. on head, not quite so typical as winner, nice feather, loses in col. and head; 3, Williams, mkd. yell., behind in shape and type, not quite so tight as it might be; res, Hocking, some thought should have given way to others; No. 16, unnoticed, some thought should have been in the money, real good border; he, Longden; c, Ryan and Jones. GOLDFINCH (8): 1, Longden, nice square blaze, good bird; 2, Ford and Son, large square blaze, fine size, lovely tanning, grand wings; 3, Daniels Bros., nice Goldie, loses only in tanning; res, Daniels Bros., better bird, good col., very steady, well put down; vhc, Williams; he, Messer; c, East. A.O.S.: 1, Mrs. Longden, Thrush, beautifully mkd., steady as a rock, shown in grand fettle; 2, Bancroft, Bramble, very steady, lovely col., well shown; 3, Ford and Son, Chaffinch, very wild, some thought might have given way to res, Hocking, Bullfinch, lovely breast, grand col., shining like silk; vhc, Jenkins, Hocking; he, Kostromin.

HOYLAND.

Tenth annual exhibition held December 10th. The Town Hall, in which the exhibits were staged, has nice light, is spacious, and free from draughts. Entries came up well, being far in excess of last year's total, and the show throughout was voted the best held in this colliery district for some time. Yorkshires were a very fine lot, being the feature of the exhibition. The unflighted clear yell. cock, owned by Mr. A. Jowett, was a topper, and with luck should have a great future. Norwich were nice, Mr. A. W. Waters, the local enthusiast, benching a few beauties, closely followed by other meritorious specimens. The British birds added to the attraction, the Hawfinch so beautifully staged by Mr. W. G. Poole, finding many admirers. The president is Mr. T. Whittingham, the vice-president Mr. W. Oakley. These are a brace of most capable officials. The committee consists of true fanciers, who all work hard and deserve the best support the Fancy can render them. Mr. Jabez Warrender lent valuable assistance to the secretary, Mr. S. Guest, who does all in his power to help matters towards a successful issue; both are to be complimented on the exertions they put forth. Other members worthy of special mention are Messrs. Thompson, Hinchliffe, Robinson, Waters, and Oakley, who all rendered capital help. The staging was of a neat description; every bird could be seen at a glance. Cards were displayed promptly by the stewards, as each class was adjudicated upon. The management throughout was most excellent. Judging was over in good time, and everything was in readiness for Councillor W. Allen, who was down to declare the show open. Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) judged, and his awards were well received.

The Critique.

YORKS. YELL. (12): 1, spl, 3, Wilson, brace of gems, former mkd. wing, lengthy and upstanding, rich quality and col., 3rd cl., rare length and quality, good back and wing carriage, well up on leg, in the pink; 2, Blackburn and Mitchell, mkd. wings and eyes, full of col., A1 quality and position, not quite length of winner; vhc, C. and C. T. Parkes; hc, c, Race, No. 10, Blackburn and Mitchell, very much down, good one when in condition. BUFF (14): 1, spl, Mear, cl., wonderful length, capital feather, upstanding, perfect back and wing carriage, well known; 2, Edmundson and Son, clear, rich salmon-tinged col., straight as a rush, beaten only in length; 3, Jowett, cl., A1 col. and quality, rare position, full of nerve, not one of the longest, but one of the best; vhc, Mountain; hc, Ellis; c, Bishop. HEN 15): a nice class: 1, spl, Wilkinson and Elliott, very smartly moulded cl., feathered to perfection, slim, lengthy, and upstanding, quite a charmer; 2, A. ARDWICK & DIS. C.B.S.

Second annual members' show held December 3rd Onward Hall, Ashton Old Road. The hall is an ideal one for the purpose, being very spacious, lofty, well lighted, and free from draughts. Entries came up splendidly, totalling 230; this is an increase of more than 60 on last year. Competition was keen throughout. Norwich were grand, and included many fine birds. The Yorkshire section, too, contained several beauties. There was a good attendance during the afternoon, and we noticed many well-known fanciers amongst the visitors. The show came in for a great deal of comment, everything being so nicely arranged. It was voted one of the nicest members shows seen round Manchester for some time, which speaks well for a young society. The committee put out a very good schedule, and it contained a fair number of special prizes. It must have been very gratifying to them, as they entered the room, to find their efforts had been so well rewarded by such a good entry. Everything passed off very well, and by all appearances it will be a financial success. Winners of society's medals for year, Messrs. Robinson, R. Booth, A. G. Smith; best bird in show, Mr. H. Boothman, also most number of points throughout show; 2nd most points, Mr. W. Snape; 3rd, Mr. H. Slater; 4th, Mr. W. Robinson; Sandiford's medal, Mr. G. Belton; other winners, Messrs. J. Valentine, E. H. Fulcher, D. Buckley, F. Thomas. Winner of cruet stand for best bird and cage in cottage class, Mr. W. Perfect.

CLITHEROE AND DIST. C.B.S.

Third annual members' show held National Schools, December 3rd. The entry was larger than last year's. The exhibits were not only good in number, but in quality also, especially the Norwich. The secretary, Mr. J. Southworth, acted as show manager, assisted by Mr. L. Grainger. Messrs. W. Demain and W. Wilkinson, as stewards, and Mr. A. James assist-sec. Mr. J. Southworth won the society gold medal for best old bird, Mr. G. Bell that for best unflighted, and Messrs. Briggs and Demain that for the best British Mule or Hybrid. Mr. G. Bell won Dr. Barker's cup. Mr. J. Walsh (Blackburn) judged, and his awards appeared to give every satisfaction.

PERTH.

City and County of Perth O.A. annual show held Co-operative Hall, Canal Street, Dec. 10. The hall is of nice dimensions, and very free from draught. The windows being of stained glass give the hall a rather dull appearance, but apart from this the hall is very suitable for such a purpose. The society is blessed with a large body of experienced fanciers, as committee, headed by Mr D. Brown (president), A. G. Forrest (vice pres.), A. Borrie (treasurer), and last but not least, Mr. Jas. Keir, who once more carried out the secretarial duties and got through them as if to the manner born, his courtesy to the visitors making him many new friends. When reporting this show last year we made an appeal to Scotch fanciers to support it, as the Scotch Fancy section was in danger of being eliminated from the prize list altogether, and we regret to state that the society have found it necessary to take this action, as they only received 7 entries in the whole section. The total entry of 411 compared very favourably with previous results. The Crests and Crest-breds, which averaged 7 per class, were behind last year's in point of numbers, but were of undoubted quality, the leading exhibits being superb. Norwich were well up to standard both in numbers and quality, some grand north country teams being forward. The west country birds were conspicuous by their absence. Borders turned out in record numbers, and the society would be well advised to foster this section by adding to the classification. As usual, the British and Foreign sections proved the centre of attraction, and the entries here passed last year's total. Amongst the exhibits we noted a field moulted Waxwing in grand plumage, which, we learnt, was caught on the limed twigs of a Brechin catcher only three weeks ago. Foreigners were a choice collection, the winning Rock Mynah coming in for a lot of notice by reason of his clever patter. Judges: For Crests and C.-B.'s, Mr. J. Young (Rutherglen); for Norwich, Mr. A. McFarlane (Glasgow); for Border Fancies, Mr. J. Stevenson (Kirriemuir); and for British, Mules, and Foreign birds, Mr. R. V. Raine (Cathcart); their awards were on the whole well received.

ANNAN, N.B.

Annandale C.B.F.A. annual show held Dec. 10th, Good Templars' Hall. From all points of view it was a success. The entries failed to reach the total of the former year, but this can easily be accounted for by the fact that Sanquhar and Gateshead shows were held on the same date. The Good Templars' Hall is very suitable for such an exhibition, being roomy, free from draughts, and affording excellent light. The elite of the town are included in the goodly list of patrons. The officials are: Chairman, Mr. G. Hind; secretary and treasurer, Mr. J. Campbell, committee, Messrs. A. Johnstone, J. Urquhart, R. Lees, S. Boyd, D. Millar, R. Nicholson, and J. J. Robinson. Mr. Campbell, although new to the duties of secretary, got through his work in good style, and is to be complimented on his careful management. The committee are composed of right good fanciers. Scotch Fancies led the way, Mr. J. Hannay (Maxwelltown) having it all his own way in this class. Borders made a good show, and Norwich, although not strong in numbers, were very nice in quality. The Yorkshire classes contained some good birds, and the Mules and Hybrids, too, included some outstanding birds. In the British and Foreign bird section some grand specimens were put down. The Goldfinch class was a right good one, Mr. Hannay (Dumfries) winning, hotly pursued by Mr. J. Murray, junr. Judging was got through in good time, and no adverse remarks were heard. The judges were: For Borders and Yorkshires, Mr. J. Dixon (Wigton); for Scotch Fancies, Mules, British and Foreign, Mr. J. H. Adam (Glasgow). The show was well patronised by visitors during the day, and a good "gate" was secured. The prize drawing added greatly to the coffers of the society, and a good credit balance should result.

NEWPORT (I. of W.).

Newport F.A. 24th annual show held in the Medina Hall, December 7th and 8th. The hall, although a fine building, is not large enough for the entries that could be secured in the island, and so the classification has to be curtailed. The cage birds were arranged on shelves around the stage, and made a very interesting collection. Norwich were the backbone of the show. Mr. E. Baker won special for best in Canary section, and also for best in show, with the same bird that secured the special at Plymouth. The British birds mustered well, among them being a few real good ones. The show was beautifully managed, the judging over and cards up in record time. Mr. F. Cooper, the secretary, was ably supported by a good hard-working committee. Mr. H. Norman judged.

BLACKWOOD (Mon.).

Blackwood and Dis. F. and F.S. fourth annual show held Dec. 8th at the Rink. The place is an ideal show room, being large, roomy, and light. Classes were very well filled, and fanciers who missed going failed to see some really good specimens. Fanciers' interests were well looked after by the energetic and genial secretary, Mr. Coleman, who was assisted by an able band of stewards. The weather being very wet naturally affected the attendance. Judging, through the absence of Mr. F. Proud, was done by Mr. Penaluna, whose awards gave every satisfaction.

NOR. CL., ETC. (10): 1, sp, Jones, 1st lovely shape, full of quality, magnificent col., nicely packed flights, neat tail; 2, vhc, Davis, 2nd good size, close feather, nice back, neat tail; 3, Middleton, good col. and shape, not quite so neat in wings. CLACKMANNANSHIRE C.B.S.

Show held Co-operative Hall, Alloa, Dec. 3rd. Entries were not quite so many as last year. The Scotch Fancy classes were again opened out, and there were some good birds, especially the young birds. The Norwich were well represented, both in the Crests and Plainheads, there being a good increase. In the Border Fancy section there were some very good birds, the cup winner being an almost even marked cock, shown in the variegated class. The winner of Hyde's special was the 2nd prize bird in the same class, both exhibits being bred by P. Arnott, the Secretary, who has rapidly come to the front as an enthusiastic fancier. It was in this section where the entries had fallen off: The faces of some of the old members of the society were missed from the show owing to their having left the district. In the British and Foreign bird section there were some pretty and notable exhibits, some of them having graced the show bench many times this season. The entries were greatly increased in number, and were really a show in themselves. The Goldfinches and Bullfinches were a grand lot. The first prize winner in the Bullfinch class was a real eye-opener and a good deal of discussion raged round about him all the afternoon, many setting him down as a foreigner; but no, he was caught only four weeks ago in the same wee county, and when a little steadier it should turn out a real champion, being of immense size and grand colour. The only regrettable incident was a Twite exhibited in the Linnet class, and, of course, it was wrong-classed. In the variety British bird class were some good exhibits, the winners being the notable Nuthatch, Lark, and Crossbill. Taken all over, the show was really good. Thanks to the energetic secretary (Mr. Arnott) and a good committee, everything was in spick and span order.

WAKEFIELD ROLLER C.C.

Wakefield and Dis. Roller C.C. held their eighth annual contest in the Guild-room, Co-operative Hall, Dec. 9th and 10th. Entries came up splendidly, and constituted a record for the club, there being 178 in all. Perhaps the fact that prize money was extended to 25s. per class helped them on. Several well-known exhibitors' names were missing, but there were many new ones. Every credit is due to Mr. Netherwood, the sec., for having everything so well in hand; and although the judging was not finished till about seven o'clock, catalogues were printed and posted the same night. I don't think the song of the birds was as good as I have heard, especially in the novice young bird and the any age open classes. In the latter class there were several good birds that would not open out as they can do, and sang in a lazy manner. The Wakefield Silver Cup was won outright by Mr. W. Whittlestone, he having won it twice in three years. I can't help thinking that in trying to get variety we are losing the best tours. Hollow rolls are very short, and not as deep, and the hollow bell is nearly lost as far as the first three classes are concerned. When taking the points I saw very few given for hollow bell, but in the amateur and limit classes there were plenty of points for hollow bell. I hope it is a good sign that it is coming back. The judges were: Messrs. F. A. Lester, F. Oldroyd, and W. Massey.

HENFIELD (Sussex).

A capital little show was that of the Henfield F.F.S., which was held in the Assembly Rooms on Dec. 7th. The quality was good throughout, although the entry was not large. Mr. Betchley made a most obliging secretary, and under his able direction all the arrangements were most efficiently carried out by a good band of stewards. Mr. C. A. House was announced to judge, but owing to his unavoidable absence, his place was taken by Mr. G. H. Billett, whose awards were well received.

NOR. (4): 1, Rev. Miller, rich even sound yell., good head, chest, size and shape, easy win here; 2, Terry, and 3, Gibb, very nice birds, not much to choose between the two, both good; vhc, Rogers. YORKS. CREST OR C.-B. (Amalgamated) (10): A warm lot to put together: 1, 2, 3, c, Gravett, truly a grand team, in capital form, lovely buff, grizzle crest won, rare fronted crest of good length and well filled in at back; 2nd, green crested, grand frontal, close up, in good condition, these were bonny birds, 3rd good spirited C.-B., grand feather; vhc, Betchley (2); vhc, Hedges. SELL., 15s. (9): 1, Gibb; 2, Dandridge; 3, Brooks and Huntley. BRIT. (11): 1, Cadman, a lovely Goldfinch, bright scarlet blaze, beautiful size, lovely colour, good smart Finch, well placed; 2, Swaysland, Starling, not a big one, but in superb condition, nicely mkd., and good colour; 3, Mrs. Newman, another bonny Goldfinch, not quite the blaze of winner, still good one; vhc, hc, Brooks and Huntley; hc, Cadman (2); vhc, hc, Hedges.

HALIFAX.

Halifax O.S. 21st annual open exhibition, held December 9th and 10th, Mechanics' Hall, Crossley Street, under the rules of the Yorkshire Union and the patronages of the Y.C.C., C.M.Y.C.C., N.C.M.Y.C.C., G.C.A., O.N.P.U., N.C.B.B. & M.C., and the gentry of Halifax. The Mechanics' Hall is an admirable place for a show, being exceptionally lofty, well lighted, perfectly free from draughts, and within very easy reach of all stations. A very comprehensive schedule had been issued—no less than 46 classes Yorkshires being specially well catered for, all the sub-varieties having classes allocated for them, bringing out the best of the district. Mr. J. F. Thackray is a very energetic and efficient secretary, and he had all matters well in hand. He was ably seconded by his assistant, Mr. H. Whitaker. Other good workers were Messrs. Ross (president), Lord and Lee (vice-presidents), Ellis, Bull and Wild (show stewards), Townsend, Pilling, Clegg, Burdekin, and others, everything passing off quite smoothly, birds for a distance being away in good time, so as to reach home the same night. Messrs. Ogden Bros. secured most points in open section, Mr. Bailey being second, and Mr. Towers taking third place. Mr. Atherton gained most points in the four green classes, and Messrs. Davies and Thomas were 1st and 2nd respectively in the Nor. section. Mr. Mettram won special for the selling section. In the Yorkshire novice classes Mr. Morrison took premier position, Mr. Kershaw being 2nd. Mr. Heap took Sandiford's special; the medal went to Mr. Whitaker, and that for Norwich to Mr. Davies; Hyde's special, Mr. Morrison. Messrs. Bennett and Battye officiated as judges, the former taking all the open Yorkshire classes and the latter the Norwich, British, and all novice classes. Entries, unfortunately, did not reach expectations, numbering 662 from 158 exhibitors, nearly 150 less than last year. The novices were not quite as numerous as is usual at this fixture, but in previous years they were exceptionally strong. Prize money was paid out on the Saturday afternoon to all winners present.

EDINBURGH (Open).

Edinburgh (open) O.S. 57th annual show, held Dec. 10. A rare lot of Scotch Fancy Canaries graced the benches; for quality they were unsurpassable. The entries were fair in number. The management, however, deserved better support. The presidents (Messrs. Martin and Dalgleish) are well known and highly esteemed; Mr. Dalgleish has been indisposed for a fortnight, and at considerable risk he ventured to the show; it is to be hoped he will be none the worse for the venture. Mr. J. R. Meikle is an ideal secretary; he is smart and capable. His committee had the arrangements perfect. It was a treat to visit the show. The hall, which is comfortable and commodious, was well filled, a goodly proportion of the visitors being of the fair sex. Of the management it would be impossible to speak too highly, every care and attention being bestowed upon the exhibits. The judges were: Messrs. Carson, Stewart, Black, and Paterson for Scotch Fancy, and Mr. Dewar for Belgians. The honours, cups, and medals for best young birds were won by Mr. Dalgleish with the famous yellow cock, and by Mr. King with a charming buff plebald hen of rare quality.

The Critique.

MID-RHONDDA AND DIS. C.B.S.

First annual members' show held December 8th, Parry's Temperance Bar (late Davis's), Tonypandy Rhondda Valley. Entries came up very good considering the state of affairs in the district, the majority of the members being on strike. This show was to have taken place on November 10th, but was postponed owing to the riots. Two cups were offered—one for best Canary in show, and one for best British bird. Mr. Jelly (Penygraig) won the former, and Mr. A. H. C. Legg (Porth) the latter. The best Canary was a beautiful yellow Yorkshire cock, and the best British bird a grand Goldfinch of nice, bright, square-cut blaze, good tanuing, bars and buttons. The secretary, Mr. Arthur H. C. Legg, had everything well arranged. The judge, Mr. T. H. Melhuish (Cardiff), placed the awards, and gave entire satisfaction.

WOOD GREEN.

The Cage bird section at this show, held on December 3rd, was not quite up to last year's form; still, some very nice exhibits were staged. The cup for best in section fell to a yell. Nor., of most excellent quality and colour, shown by Mr. J. Griffin, the medal for the runner-up going to a nice even-marked Crest, shown by Mr. Penney, which lost the cup on condition. The exhibits were nicely staged on one side of the hall by themselves, and formed a very attractive feature. Mr. Bruce, the hon sec., is a most excellent official, and he was most ably assisted by the committee, headed by Mr. C. Willson. Mr. C. A. House judged.

ALWAYS USE OUR
DEPOSIT SYSTEM.
We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers in all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.
SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.- If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.
HOW TO REMIT. Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

"RELIABLE."

That's the word for the British birds I supply. I have also some very fine Siberian Goldfinches, extra selected, 10/-, 12/-, 15/- each. For others, see following prices, also example of what I can supply for a low figure:

, Scotland, December 17th, 1910. You will be glad to know Bullfinch was 3rd at out the in a class of 10, and the Siskin also 3rd, and Bullie again 3rd to-day, at I am very satisfied with them. They have been very highly spoken of in "Cage Birds" report. yours truly, to W. Rudd.

Now readers will understand it takes a good bird to get in the money in Scotland, but here are a couple that are sure to go on winning. Yet not costing several pounds, as they would from some people the fact is the two cost under a sovereign. (W. R.)

Splendid lot of steady selected hen Bullfinches for Hybrid breeding, British, 1/6 and 2/- each; also hand-reared German ditto, 3/6, 4/-; cages 3d.; for really healthy and reliable cock Bullfinches, several good cock Goldfinches, that have proved themselves breeders, British, and Siberian hens and cocks, also Siskins, etc.; see my illustrated list.

W. RUDD, The Bird Specialist, NORWICH.

During the Holidays many readers of this Journal will, no doubt, have some extra spare time, both for reading and looking over their stock. For that reason I respectfully wish to draw attention to my advertisements in the pages numbered above of "Cage Birds," Dec. 17th, all of which Advertisements will hold good to the end of Dec. I would also draw special attention to page 539 for same Journal and same date. Any persons desirous of seeing me or the stock are asked to make an appointment, either by letter or wire, to avoid any useless journey or disappointment. In conclusion, allow me to thank all the many thousands that have honoured me with their kind patronage during the year 1910, and to wish them and every other fancier—customer or no customer—A Happy Christmas and Most Prosperous New Year.

Faithfully yours, W. RUDD.

XMAS AND NEW YEAR HOLIDAYS

Remember, I give you a special invitation to pay a visit to my rooms during the Holidays. You will not be asked to make a purchase, and it will be a pleasure to me to show you round. I have a magnificent collection, including nearly all varieties of Canaries or Mules.

If you are wanting a winning Yorkshire or Norwich, come and select it for yourself. If you want a really first-class hen for breeding, I have hundreds for you to select from. If you want a St. Andreasberg or Seifert Roller, come and hear him in full, rolling song before you buy. You can make a selection of stock birds from thousands of specimens in the following varieties:—

Yorkshires, Norwich, Greens, Cinnamons, Crests, Crest-breds, Scoteh Fancies, Border Fancies, Mules, St. Andreasberg, or pure Seifert Rollers, Siberian Goldfinches, grand Sib hens for Muling, Muling Finches, Singing cocks, etc., etc.

Remember this.—Not only is the quality of my birds right, but the price is right also. One trial will prove this.

Cars from Bradford and Halifax pass my doors.

If it is impossible for you to come, however, and you are in want of stock birds or exhibition specimens, do not forget to send a P.C. for my free illustrated catalogue, containing full list of prices, advice to breeders, etc., etc., and remember I am prepared to send any bird on 7 days' approval, at my risk, and guarantee satisfaction. Thirty-two years at same address:—

JOE THOMAS, Breeder and Exhibitor, AMBLER THORN, HALIFAX.

BROADBENT'S SYSTEM

of selling Canaries is this: I send you any bird, or birds, advertised, on receipt of half its proper value. The balance to be sent when satisfied in one or more payments. Is this fair? Is it quite clear? If not, send your name on a post card for full price list and particulars. Yorkshire and Norwich cocks, 6/-, 7/6; hens, 3/-; pairs, 10/-; all colours, and typical birds. Border Fancies, cocks, 5/-, hens 2/6; pairs 7/-; St. Andreasberg Rollers, 10/-; hens, 2/6; Crest hens, 7/-. Note, some of my 2/6 hens have won just lately. See the birds before payment is my advice to all.

EDGAR BROADBENT, Painter, etc., The Millhouse, LIME STREET, SHEFFIELD.

THE ONLY WAY

to win, you must buy or breed winners. I can supply winners, of the sort that breed them. Business prevents me exhibiting so much in the future. Write, stating wants, and I will do my best to supply you: W. Richmond, 16, Mayfield Grove, Harrogate.

J. ROBERTSHAW,

must sell several pairs of high-class Yorkshires, not having sufficient time to attend to them, all related to my winners at Burnley, Rochdale, York, Harrogate, Halifax, etc., from 15s. a pair upwards: 151, Bolton Brow, Sowerby Bridge.

KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES

Owing to failing health, am obliged to sell out practically the whole of my present stock (about 300) of high-class Yorkshires, including part breeders, comprising all varieties excepting whole greens. To induce a quick sale and give facilities to those who desire to purchase reliable birds for show or stock cheaply by comparison, will deduct 25 per cent., or 5/- in the £, on all orders sent out this month. My past 30 years' experience in breeding and keeping Yorkshire varieties only coupled with the fact that my name is familiar to all Yorkshire breeders and fanciers in this and other countries is sufficient guarantee of purity of breed without further advertisement or comment. Properly matched and unrelated breeding pairs personally selected, also single cocks and hens; all cold room bred, reared and kept; all three clear days' approval; cash or deposit; intending purchasers will best consult their future interest by sending postcard for season's list, with deductions, to Jonas Knight (author of "The Yorkshire Canary: Its Breeding and Management"), Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

PURE YORKSHIRES,

Direct from strains which won at Crystal Palace this last 20 years, including Mr. Bates', Mr. Binns', Mr. Blackhurst's, all big winners up to 1910. I have supplied scores of winners and can do so yet, not exhibiting this variety myself; some grand yellows and buff cocks, 6/-, 7/-, 8/-, 10/-, 12/-, 15/-, 20/- each; hens, yellows or buffs, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/-, 8/-, 10/-; matched pairs to breed winners, 12/-, 15/-, 16/-, 18/-, 20/-, 25/- pair; any on approval; full guarantee given; breeder 30 years this address: Sandiford, Canary Breeder, Preston, Lancs.

L. DYKES.

Yorkshires, have won highest honours at all leading shows, see reports. If you want a winner for the keenest company, or for local shows, state wants, and I will do my best to suit you; and what I cannot do in this respect, it is almost impossible for anyone else to do. Birds I have sent to customers (including many noted exhibitors), are winning in all parts of the country. I have received thousands of testimonials, which are open for your inspection at any time. Splendid Yorkshire cocks, any colour, at 6/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, upwards; hens, at 3/6, 4/6, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, upwards; pairs, matched correctly, at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- per pair upwards; all cocks, on full song, and 7in. long; in clears, ticked green, and cinnamon marks, and a few whole greens; come and inspect them at any time; or send for free price list, and scores of winning testimonials recently received; and remember, I send every bird on a full week's approval, at my risk; either for cash, or deposit with Editor; a trial order will at once convince you where is the proper place to get full value for your money; travelling cages 3d. extra; reliable strains: 70, Bolton Hall-rd., Bolton Woods, Bradford.

"THE Stock Book," our Invaluable "Breeding Room Register," by G. E. Weston. A well-known fancier has said of it:—"It makes bird breeding easy." It simplifies the operations in the bird-room, and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred; it contains both pedigree, breeding, young bird and show registers of simple and unique character, post free, 7d. from CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet-street, London, E.C.

"HOUSE'S Canary Manual," by C. A. House, includes, among other interesting features, a chapter on the Roller Canary, and is entirely up-to-date. It contains information on feeding, rearing, diseases, etc., and a chapter with a model illustration is devoted to every known variety of Canary. Illustrated by Mr. H. Norman. Every bird depicted is a veritable model, and shows the breeder what to aim for; post free, 1/2; cloth bound, 2/2: From CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.
